Nixon Plans Journey Behind Iron Curtain, To South Asia

To See Astronauts' Pacific Splashdown

NEW YORK (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon will embark on a round-the-world trip next month in which he will watch the Apollo 11 splashdown in the Pacific, lay foundations for a post-Vietnam Asian policy and visit behind the Iron Curtain.

The visit to Communist Romania in early August will make Nixon the first U.S. chief executive to cross the Iron Curtain since the Cold War began. He also will visit five Asian nations.

A high White House official indicated there will be other visits by the President to other Communist nations in the future.

The announcement of the far-ranging trip was made in New York by White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, who said the President will leave Washington July 23 and return on or about Aug. 3.

Nixon was in New York today for a visit to his dentist, after a trip to the St. Lawrence Seaway and Montreal, Canada, yesterday.

In addition to watching the Apollo splashdown, Ziegler said, the President will fly to the John F. Kennedy Space Center in Florida on the eve of the July 16 launching to dine with astronauts Neil Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin Aldrin in the crew quarters. Their flight is to be the first attempted manned lunar landing.

President Nixon will watch the splashdown eight days later from the aircraft carrier Hornet. The splashdown is scheduled July 24, about 300 miles off Johnston Island in the Pacific, after the astronauts' planned walk on the surface of the moon.

From there, the President will visit five Southeast Asia cities: Manila, the Philippines; Jakarta, Indonesia; Bangkok, Thailand; New Delhi, India; and Lahore, Pakistan.

Details of this stage of the trip were not yet ready, Ziegler said. And he did not give the President's travel plans to Ro-

State Campus Black Leaders Quit In Blast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Four Negro administrators resigned yesterday at San Francisco State College, saying they were sick of being "niggers in residence."

"We refuse to condone racism in education by participating in this administration," said one of them, Dr. Joseph White, dean of undergraduate studies.

"A grandstand play," said acting President S. I. Hayakawa of the resignations. "I'm glad to see them go.

"They have been engaged in revolutionary rhetoric and had only been helping revolutionary students. They gave no help to black moderates or white students," he said.

Besides White, the others who announced their resignation on television were associate dean of activities Elmer Cooper, assistant dean of students Edward Reavis, and Reginald Major, head of the Economic Opportunity Program at the college.

Dr. White also named Dr. Nathan Hare as resigning. Hare, who was to head a black studies program, has a contract that expires next Monday, and

Monkey Due For Longest Space Voyage

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A 14-pound pigtail monkey named Bonny is to rocket into orbit tonight to start the longest space flight ever taken by a living creature.

Bonny, a 3-year-old male from the jungles of Thailand, is to ride into space atop a Delta rocket at 11:10 p.m. EDT. He is to orbit for 30 days, strapped in a couch in his flying biological laboratory.

His arms will be free to push buttons in two behavioral tests designed to determine if his memory capacity deteriorates after long exposure to the space environment, primarily in weightlessness. He will receive food pellets as a reward for good performance.

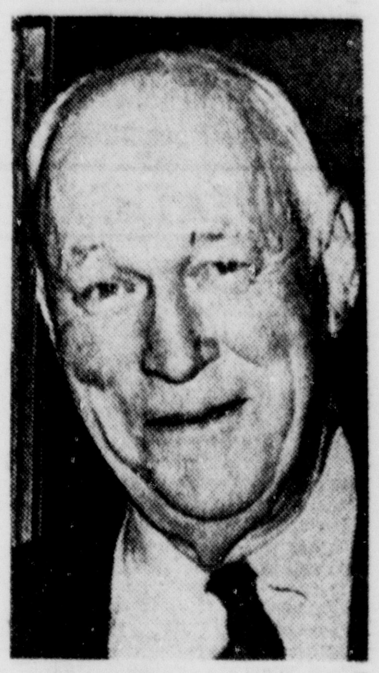
Californian Gets U.S. Health Post



DR. ROGER EGEBERG
Not Finch's choice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Roger Egeberg, dean of the University of Southern California School of Medicine, was named today as assistant secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

The announcement was made in New York by President Richard M. Nixon through Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler less than 24 hours after HEW Secretary Robert H. Finch withdrew the name of his first choice for the post, Dr. John H. Knowles.

Finch, at a news conference following the announcement, said of the controversy which surrounded his effort to put Knowles in what has been termed as the country's No. 1 health job, he may have been politically naive.

"While I may not win all my battles, I'm going to fight them as I see them," Finch said at the session called to introduce Egeberg to newsmen.

Finch said he was not sure what happened to his attempt to nominate Knowles.

"I'm not sure I know," he said. "One account had me as politically naive. Maybe I am."

The secretary said he thought "I've learned a valuable lesson" and that was it simply was not the American Medical Association, acting alone, nor Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen acting alone that thwarted his efforts to bring Knowles into the department.

Asked about his relationship now with President Nixon, a long-time political partner from their days in California together, Finch replied:

"I'm satisfied with the nature of that relationship." He denied reports that he would quit his cabinet post over the Knowles issue and other matters.

Finch said the American Medical Association "has no veto power over this appointment, that is clear" in

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Conference Committee negotiations on Gov. Ronald Reagan's $6.2 billion state budget went into their third day today with time running out on the six-member panel. (See also tax story, page 2.)

The conferees, three from each house of the Legislature, must resolve differences in the Senate and Assembly versions of the budget and the compromise spending program must win approval of both houses before Monday midnight.

The conference committee talks got under way Thursday.

Allies Drive To Break Red Ring At Camp

SAIGON (AP) — Government infantrymen began clearing a vital supply route into the besieged Special Forces camp at Ben Het today. Around the base, enemy artillerymen and allied pilots carried on the brunt of the fighting, exchanging fire for the 58th straight day.

Some 1,500 South Vietnamese soldiers, airlifted 130 miles from Ban Me Thuot, relieved other battle-weary government troops at Dak To and began their push to clear the 10 miles of Route 579 leading westward to Ben Het.

No significant resistance was reported and the battle for the small, frontier outpost in the central highlands continued to be fought primarily between North Vietnamese army gunners and allied warplanes.

The gunners, firing 85-mm howitzers, mortars and recoilless rifles, sent a record 236 shells whistling into the Special Forces camp yesterday, and 43 additional rounds impacted there by midmorning today.

In turn, allied fighter-bomber pilots, taking advantage of a break in the monsoon weather, doubled their sorties yesterday in an unsuccessful effort to muzzle the enemy bombardment.

Coast Guard Housing Gets Mixed Reaction

The Coast Guard's plans to construct a large housing development in Inverness Valley drew mixed reactions last night from the area's homeowners and residents.

Richard Plant, president of the Inverness Improvement Association, said that homeowners were "split about down the middle" on the proposal which was outlined by Coast Guard officials at a meeting of the association.

The development —, four barracks to house 41 men and townhouses for 36 families — would be constructed on a 22.5 acre ribbon of land along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. The development will serve major communications stations the Coast Guard plans to build in Point Reyes Station by 1971.

Part of the property is now occupied by the Inverness Valley Inn, whose three chalets would be converted into barracks. A mess hall also would be constructed on the site.

Jack R. Walsh, a civilian architect for the Coast Guard told the Independent-Journal today that an option to purchase the 22.5 acres had been acquired from its owner, Mrs. Dorothy Kulp.

Plant said that the residents' main concerns were about the development's impact on local schools, the water supply and sewage facilities.

"I think most of them came to the meeting in negative frame of mind, but after hearing the Coast Guard's proposal I'm sure many of them now have an open mind," Plant said.

Plant added that many residents now apparently felt that the Coast Guard might produce a better development than a private developer.

Plant said that Mrs. Kulp reported that she had been offered more money by private land developers but turned them down because she felt the Coast Guard's proposal was more in keeping with the area's wishes.

Walsh said today he had spoken some time ago to Howard F. Brose, superintendent of the West Marin School District, who reportedly indicated there would be little difficulty handling the extra children as long as the district could plan far enough in advance.

To handle sewage, Walsh said, a small treatment plant is proposed. It would feed treated affluent into a lagoon whose contents then would irrigate an additional patch of land to be purchased.

Wast Main is served by septic tanks.

Walsh said he was unaware of reported concern by health officials that the effluent would seep into nearby Tomales Bay during intense winter rains.

$7,000 Cash Stolen In Mill Valley

A moneybag stuffed with an estimated $7,000 was stolen early Thursday from the Mill Valley home of a San Francisco restaurant owner, only hours after he disclosed the contents to a helpful stranger.

Robert N. Nolt, of 16 Bay Vista Drive, told Marin sheriff's inspectors all but about $400 in the bag was in cash.

The money, which had been put inside a coffee sack, was discovered missing when Nolt awakened Thursday. He said he last saw the bag when he gave it to his wife, who dropped it in a clothes hamper.

Inspector said today they were looking for the stranger who drove Nolt and his wife home after their car blew a tire and hit a guard rail on the Park Presidio approach to the Golden Gate bridge.

Fairfax Council Toils, Snips Recreation Cost

Fairfax city councilmen plodded line-by-line through the budget for three hours last night and wound up approving park and recreation expenditures totaling $33,486, a cut of $80 from the original proposal.

The $33,486 budget is an increase of $11,830 over last year's park and recreation expenditures, but $8,136 of that is merely a paper-work transfer of the park maintenance man's salary from the general fund to the park fund.

The park and recreation budget approved last night will carry a 16-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax rate, an increase of 7 cents, but 5 cents will be cut from the general fund tax rate because of the transfer of the maintenance man's salary so the total rate increase is only 2 cents. The total city tax rate is expected to be $1.80, up six cents from last year.

The council made only three changes in the proposed budget, all of them upward, but discovery of a typographical error left them $80 under City Administrator Frances R. Lestanguet's proposal.

During the three-hour meeting, the council raised from $800 to $900 the amount for building supplies, increased the salary

A moneybag stuffed with an estimated $7,000 was stolen early Thursday from the Mill Valley home of a San Francisco restaurant owner, only hours after he disclosed the contents to a helpful stranger.

Robert N. Nolt, of 16 Bay Vista Drive, told Marin sheriff's inspectors all but about $400 in the bag was in cash.

The money, which had been put inside a coffee sack, was discovered missing when Nolt awakened Thursday. He said he last saw the bag when he gave it to his wife, who dropped it in a clothes hamper.

Inspector said today they were looking for the stranger who drove Nolt and his wife home after their car blew a tire and hit a guard rail on the Park Presidio approach to the Golden Gate bridge.

Nolt, who was shaken by the mishap, told inspectors he

To See Astronauts' Pacific Splashdown

NEW YORK (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon will embark on a round-the-world trip next month in which he will watch the Apollo 11 splashdown in the Pacific, lay foundations for a post-Vietnam Asian policy and visit behind the Iron Curtain.

The visit to Communist Romania in early August will make Nixon the first U.S. chief executive to cross the Iron Curtain since the Cold War began. He also will visit five Asian nations.

A high White House official indicated there will be other visits by the President to other Communist nations in the future.

The announcement of the far-ranging trip was made in New York by White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, who said the President will leave Washington July 23 and return on or about Aug. 3.

Nixon was in New York today for a visit to his dentist, after a trip to the St. Lawrence Seaway and Montreal, Canada, yesterday.

In addition to watching the Apollo splashdown, Ziegler said, the President will fly to the John F. Kennedy Space Center in Florida on the eve of the July 16 launching to dine with astronauts Neil Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin Aldrin in the crew quarters. Their flight is to be the first attempted manned lunar landing.

President Nixon will watch the splashdown eight days later from the aircraft carrier Hornet. The splashdown is scheduled July 24, about 300 miles off Johnston Island in the Pacific, after the astronauts' planned walk on the surface of the moon.

From there, the President will visit five Southeast Asia cities: Manila, the Philippines; Jakarta, Indonesia; Bangkok, Thailand; New Delhi, India; and Lahore, Pakistan.

Details of this stage of the trip were not yet ready, Ziegler said. And he did not give the President's travel plans to Ro-

State Campus Black Leaders Quit In Blast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Four Negro administrators resigned yesterday at San Francisco State College, saying they were sick of being "niggers in residence."

"We refuse to condone racism in education by participating in this administration," said one of them, Dr. Joseph White, dean of undergraduate studies.

"A grandstand play," said acting President S. I. Hayakawa of the resignations. "I'm glad to see them go.

"They have been engaged in revolutionary rhetoric and had only been helping revolutionary students. They gave no help to black moderates or white students," he said.

Besides White, the others who announced their resignation on television were associate dean of activities Elmer Cooper, assistant dean of students Edward Reavis, and Reginald Major, head of the Economic Opportunity Program at the college.

Dr. White also named Dr. Nathan Hare as resigning. Hare, who was to head a black studies program, has a contract that expires next Monday, and

Set for space voyage

Monkey Due For Longest Space Voyage

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A 14-pound pigtail monkey named Bonny is to rocket into orbit tonight to start the longest space flight ever taken by a living creature.

Scientists hope the "astromonk" will help set guidelines for future manned missions in space stations and planetary voyages that could last months or years.

Bonny, a 3-year-old male from the jungles of Thailand, is to ride into space atop a Delta rocket at 11:10 p.m. EDT. He is to orbit for 30 days, strapped in a couch in his flying biological laboratory.

His arms will be free to push buttons in two behavioral tests designed to determine if his memory capacity deteriorates after long exposure to the space environment, primarily in weightlessness. He will receive food pellets as a reward for good performance.

Delicate instruments implanted in the brain, heart and other vital body areas will radio data

Californian Gets U.S. Health Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Roger Egeberg, dean of the University of Southern California School of Medicine, was named today as assistant secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

DR. ROGER EGEBERG

The announcement was made in New York by President Richard M. Nixon through Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler less than 24 hours after HEW Secretary Robert H. Finch withdrew the name of his first choice for the post, Dr. John H. Knowles.

Finch, at a news conference following the announcement, said of the controversy which surrounded his effort to put Knowles in what has been termed as the country's No. 1 health job, he may have been politically naive.

"While I may not win all my battles, I'm going to fight them as I see them," Finch said at the session called to introduce Egeberg to newsmen.

Finch said he was not sure what happened to his attempt to nominate Knowles.

"I'm not sure I know," he said. "One account had me as politically naive. Maybe I am."

The secretary said he thought "I've learned a valuable lesson" and that was it simply was not the American Medical Association, acting alone, nor Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen acting alone that thwarted his efforts to bring Knowles into the department.

Asked about his relationship now with President Nixon, a long-time political partner from their days in California together, Finch replied:

"I'm satisfied with the nature of that relationship." He denied reports that he would quit his cabinet post over the Knowles issue and other matters.

Finch said the American Medical Association "has no veto power over this appointment, that is clear" in

Lawmakers Struggling Over Budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Conference Committee negotiations on Gov. Ronald Reagan's $6.2 billion state budget went into their third day today with time running out on the six-member panel. (See also tax story, page 2.)

The conferees, three from each house of the Legislature, must resolve differences in the Senate and Assembly versions of the budget and the compromise spending program must win approval of both houses before Monday midnight.

Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, said the committee would again listen to individual legislators testify on proposed changes in the budget for the 1969-70 fiscal year.

The conference committee talks got under way Thursday.

Fairfax Council Toils, Snips Recreation Cost

Fairfax city councilmen plodded line-by-line through the budget for three hours last night and wound up approving park and recreation expenditures totaling $33,486, a cut of $80 from the original proposal.

The $33,486 budget is an increase of $11,830 over last year's park and recreation expenditures, but $8,136 of that is merely a paper-work transfer of the park maintenance man's salary from the general fund to the park fund.

The park and recreation budget approved last night will carry a 16-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax rate, an increase of 7 cents, but 5 cents will be cut from the general fund tax rate because of the transfer of the maintenance man's salary so the total rate increase is only 2 cents. The total city tax rate is expected to be $1.80, up six cents from last year.

The council made only three changes in the proposed budget, all of them upward, but discovery of a typographical error left them $80 under City Administrator Frances R. Lestanguet's proposal.

During the three-hour meeting, the council raised from $800 to $900 the amount for building supplies, increased the salary

IS SHE 'TIGER WOMAN' JUDD?—Contra Costa Sheriff Walt Young escorts to county jail in Martinez a a woman believed to be the famed Winnie Ruth Judd. The woman, who claims she is Marian Lane, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of being the famous murderess who escaped from a mental institution seven years ago. (UPI Telephoto)

'Tiger Woman' Caught In Contra Costa?

MARTINEZ (AP) — Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted of double murder in a sensational trial in 1933 and missing since she escaped from an Arizona mental hospital in 1962, has been captured in rural Danville, where she was working as a domestic.

Sheriff's Lt. Robert Sang said the woman convicted of murdering her two best girl friends in Phoenix in 1931, and shipping their remains to Los Angeles "steadfastly denies she is Winnie Ruth Judd."

But Sang, a crew-cut veteran detective, said he identified her through fingerprints, old photos and a scar on her left index finger.

He conceded that the woman who was working as a cook and housekeeper under the name of Marian Lane "looks about 10 years younger" than Winnie Ruth Judd's 64 years..

LOOKS DIFFERENT

The woman, who says she's 54, is plump and matronly compared with the wasted woman who walked away from Arizona State Hospital seven years ago in her seventh escape.

She was picked up at 2 p.m. yesterday by Sang and Sgt. Joe Walsh at the Danville home of Dr. John Blemer, a general practitioner vacationing with his wife in Europe.

Sang said "everything she has indicates she is Marian Lane," but that "information from both inside and outside" California, as well as his own fingerprint check, led him to believe Marian Lane is Winnie Ruth Judd, once known as "the tiger woman."

He booked her as a fugitive from an Arizona mental institution and said Arizona would extradite her.

The woman was located during checks on the still unsolved homicide death in nearby Alamo of Mrs. Z. Alexander Aarons, wife of a psychiatrist. She was beaten to death last April 28.

SLEUTH SUSPICIOUS

Sang said Lt. David Gardella, a detective for 25 years, checking license plates on cars visiting the psychiatrist's home-office, came upon one registered to Marian Lane.

He located her in Piedmont, a section of Oakland, working at the home of a deceased elderly couple whose estate was being liquidated.

Sang said Gardella, now in Italy, did not suspect the Lane woman of being involved in the Aarons murder, but "felt there was something wrong" about her. Investigation led him to suspect she was Mrs. Judd, and after more checks the arrest was made yesterday.

Sang said the woman had been under surveillance for some time. He said she told him she had started to work at the Blemer residence only last Monday. But he added he had indications she had worked there before and that the Blemers had no idea she was Mrs. Judd.

Sang said that before coming to the Bay area—he did not specify when—Mrs. Judd apparently had been in the Los Angeles area for some time. He refused to say how long.

He said her car was driven to the Aarons residence by her nephew, whom she refused to identify.

OLD CRIME

The one-time "tiger woman" gave up quietly, Sang said. He brought her in for booking dressed neatly in a dark dress with a wide white collar. She smiled broadly at news cameramen. It was almost 36 years ago that Mrs. Judd was arrested in Los Angeles when she sought to claim two trunks. Authorities who had spotted blood dripping from one made her open them.

Inside were the remains of Agnes Ann Lerio, an X-ray technician, and Hedvig Samuelson, a schoolteacher, both of Phoenix.

Mrs. Judd was convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged in 1933, but 72 hours before her execution she won a sanity hearing.

She was judged insane and committed to a state hospital where she escaped a total of six times over the years but always was recaptured quickly.

On the seventh try, in 1962, her hospital clothing was found on a building nearby, and no further clues ever were announced that pointed to where Winnie Ruth Judd had gone. By this time she was 57, haggard and looked little like the attractive blonde committed nearly 30 years before.

Authorities had abandoned all but routine search for her.

Reagan Still Unhappy With Tax Reform Try

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Assembly Republicans— facing unexpected criticism from GOP Gov. Ronald Reagan — pushed for lower house passage today of a controversial tax revision that boosts the sales tax one per cent.

Reagan, once reported by GOP legislators to favor the plan, told newsmen yesterday the people should vote on it before it takes effect. And he said "I am definitely opposed to some of the amendments reported to have been proposed."

DEMOS OPPOSED

Democrats were strongly opposed to the program, put together by lower house GOP leaders to meet Democratic demands for tax reform.

It would boost the sales tax from 5 to 6 per cent, financing a $464 million cut in residential and other property taxes.

It would mean a $165 property tax reduction for a homeowner paying a property tax of $10 per each $100 of assessed valuation — the statewide average.

Democratic opposition solidified as the minority party battled Republicans who pushed the four-bill package through the Assembly Ways and Means Committee yesterday.

"I can't think of any Democrat who would support it," said Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda. Crown, a Democratic fiscal leader, objected to the big sales tax increase.

CHANCES DIM

Without minority party votes, Republicans had no chance of winning the two-thirds majority of 54 required for passage in the 80-seat house, where the GOP holds only 41-39 control.

The fighting moved the state closer to a fiscal crisis. Without a tax reform bill — and a big boost in state aid to local schools — Democrats said they will not vote for Reagan's $6.19 billion budget. And the budget requires a two-thirds vote.

If the legislature doesn't send Reagan a budget by the end of the fiscal year, midnight Monday, state officials say they won't be able to pay state bills when the new fiscal year begins Tuesday.

The plan — latest in a series of proposals to shift tax burden away from property owners — was proposed to Reagan by Republican assemblymen who told him his own plan wouldn't pass.

Reagan favored a two-year program, without the sales tax hike but with an average 50 per cent income tax boost that would have financed a property tax cut. It would have gone before the voters in 1970.

Many Democrats said privately that the plan would hurt Reagan if he seeks another term in 1970. They joined Republicans in pushing his bill out of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee early Thursday morning.

Both legislative leaders and Reagan's executive secretary, Edwin Meese III, said Thursday Reagan had agreed to the latest version.

SURPRISE STAND

But after the new plan cleared the Ways and Means Committee yesterday, Reagan surprised friends and foes with a statement saying he still liked his own plan best.

He said he would support the GOP compromise only "to get tax reform moving." Asked if he would try to restore the plan to what he wants in the Senate, Reagan said "of course."

Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, an architect of the compromise, told newsmen Reagan accepted it "grudgingly." The sponsor of the Reagan bills, Assemblyman W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, agreed.

As it stands now, the compromise would:

Boost the sales tax to 6 per cent except in San Francisco, Alameda and Contra Costa Counties where it would go up to 6.5 per cent. Residents in those counties will be paying a half cent extra to finance the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

Revise the system of permitting income taxpayers to deduct tax credits. Deductions would be less for single and married people, but would be increased for dependents. That would help middle-income families, hard hit by Reagan's 1967 income tax hike.

Increase the homeowner's property tax exemption from $750 to $1,650.

Provide another 15 per cent cut in the business inventory property tax, increase property tax relief for senior citizens and provide income tax relief to renters. The sales tax on artificial limbs, fruit juices and a few other things would be eliminated. Some property tax relief would be provided farmers.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Sweeper Found

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles' latest wayward street sweeper was recovered yesterday in Irwindale, 20 miles from where it disappeared in downtown Los Angeles.

The nine-ton, bright orange sweeper was stolen early yesterday when its driver parked it for a 15-minute coffee break. When he returned it was gone.

Earlier this month the city finally got back another sweeper which was stolen from a city yard in November, 1967. It turned up in Aurora, Colo.

Viet Press Row

SAIGON (UPI) A national assembly deputy said today he would refuse to resume publishing his newspaper because of what he described as a complete lack of press freedom under the government of Nguyen Van Thieu.

"There is no more press freedom," said Ly Qui Chung, a member of the Vietnamese House of Representatives and editor-publisher of the newspaper Tieng Noi Dan Toc (The People's Voice).

The newspaper was closed down 17 days ago by the government after authorities charged that it was "creating confusion and damaging the fighting spirit of the army and the people."

SDS Plans Bared

MIAMI (AP) — Tens of thousands of American students will flock to factories this summer to organize confrontations with police, an official of the Students for a Democratic Society told a Cuban interviewer yesterday.

Jess Johns, identified by Havana Radio as national secretary for SDS, said the campaign would begin in September.

According to the Miami-monitored broadcast, Johns said that SDS's objectives were the unconditional withdrawal of police and other "repressive forces from Negro communities and U.S. universities."

Barges Checked

BONN (UPI) — Investigators said today they have cleared eight of the 23 barges suspected of dumping an insecticide into the Rhine River that killed 40 million fish and cost commercial fishermen an estimated $625,000.

The search went on for the barge from which as little as two barrels of the insecticide Endosulfan fell into the water at a point near Geisenheim 11 days ago.

Officials has said it would take three to five years for the fish population to reach the pre-poisioning level. The fishing industry was plagued already by poor catches because of water pollution.

Grape Talks On

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Negotiations continued today with the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee optimistic about settling their long dispute with some of California's table grape prowers.

Union negotiators and representatives of 10 Coachella Valley growers met face-to-face for the first time yesterday with the 10 growers presenting a set of proposals aimed at ending the three-year-old dispute.

Although a UFWOC spokesman said the offer was disappointing, he said "we very much believe that the employers are there negotiating in good faith."

Heart Doctors Quit

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Heart surgeoin Dr. Denton A. Cooley and his associate Dr. Grady L. Hallman have quit the faculty of the Baylor College of Medicine — an act which apparently frees them from any Baylor restrictions on their medical experiments.

They announced Thursday night they will accept unsalaried clinical positions on the Baylor staff and will lecture part-time and supervise interns and resident physicians.

Cleaver Bail Lost

OAKLAND (UPI) — Six friends of missing Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver will have to forfeit the $50,000 bail posted on his behalf.

Alameda County Superior Judge Leonard Dieden yesterday denied arguments by attorney Harry Bremond who argued that Cleaver would have been in court had he not been detained in Cuba against his will.

Those who posted bail and are now liable for it include Cleaver's pregnant wife, Kathleen; writer Paul Jacobs, attorney and former Ramparts Magazine publisher Edward Keating, comedian Godfrey Cambridge, psychiatrist Phillip Schapiro, and an unidentified woman doctor in Palo Alto.

Election Eased

LISBON, Portugal (AP) Prime Minister Marcello Caetano's government lifted Friday a 40-year-old decree that barred antigovernment candidates from examining voter registration lists.

The ban had been imposed by Caetano's aged and ailing predecessor, Antonio Salazar.

Campaigning has started for the country's November National Assembly elections. There are about 1.8 million registered voters among Portuga's nine million population.

Red Border Games

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Defense Ministry disclosed today that the Soviet army has been carrying out maneuvers in a military district on the Communist Chinese border.

The ministry newspaper Krasnaya Zevzda (Red Star) said troops in the Trans-Baikal district have been working out "ways and methods of attacking," but the report did not say how close they came to the border or how many troops were involved.

The district borders China along a 500-mile frontier.

State Income Tax

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Senate has approved an income tax asked by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and voted to embark the state on a $2-billion highway program.

The 35-to-21 vote of the Senate last night, sending the income tax bill to the House, marked the first time in more than 30 years the state has turned its back on the sales tax and other levies as a major emergency revenue source.

The Senate approved a 1½-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline taxes and boosts in automobile and truck license fees to help retire the $2 billion dollars in bonds to be issued for highways. The House must ratify the levies.

Another tax change approved by the Senate and returned to the House would reduce the present 4.5 cent state sales tax to 4 cents Oct. 1 and permit cities and counties to increase their three-quarter cent sales tax to a full cent after that date.

Mrs. Candhi Flies

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India left for Indonesia today after a five-day official visit to Japan. Before leaving, she and Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato issued a communique calling for a settlement of the Vietnam war "consistent with the wishes of the Vietnamese people" and based on the 1954 Geneva accords.

Seoul Youth Riot

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — About 1,000 students of Korea University clashed with riot police today for the second straight day in a demonstration opposing constitutional amendments to allow President Chung Hee Park's election to third term.

Riots In India

NEW DELHI (UPI) — A mob led by students sacked a train in the Hindaun railway station in Rajasthan state yesterday. Police shot into the mob and wounded 10 persons, two seriously.

Reagan Still Unhappy With Tax Reform Try

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Assembly Republicans— facing unexpected criticism from GOP Gov. Ronald Reagan — pushed for lower house passage today of a controversial tax revision that boosts the sales tax one per cent.

Reagan, once reported by GOP legislators to favor the plan, told newsmen yesterday the people should vote on it before it takes effect. And he said "I am definitely opposed to some of the amendments reported to have been proposed."

DEMOS OPPOSED

Democrats were strongly opposed to the program, put together by lower house GOP leaders to meet Democratic demands for tax reform.

It would boost the sales tax from 5 to 6 per cent, financing a $464 million cut in residential and other property taxes.

It would mean a $165 property tax reduction for a homeowner paying a property tax of $10 per each $100 of assessed valuation — the statewide average.

Democratic opposition solidified as the minority party battled Republicans who pushed the four-bill package through the Assembly Ways and Means Committee yesterday.

"I can't think of any Democrat who would support it," said Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda. Crown, a Democratic fiscal leader, objected to the big sales tax increase.

CHANCES DIM

Without minority party votes, Republicans had no chance of winning the two-thirds majority of 54 required for passage in the 80-seat house, where the GOP holds only 41-39 control.

The fighting moved the state closer to a fiscal crisis. Without a tax reform bill — and a big boost in state aid to local schools — Democrats said they will not vote for Reagan's $6.19 billion budget. And the budget requires a two-thirds vote.

If the legislature doesn't send Reagan a budget by the end of the fiscal year, midnight Monday, state officials say they won't be able to pay state bills when the new fiscal year begins Tuesday.

The plan — latest in a series of proposals to shift tax burden away from property owners — was proposed to Reagan by Republican assemblymen who told him his own plan wouldn't pass.

Reagan favored a two-year program, without the sales tax hike but with an average 50 per cent income tax boost that would have financed a property tax cut. It would have gone before the voters in 1970.

Many Democrats said privately that the plan would hurt Reagan if he seeks another term in 1970. They joined Republicans in pushing his bill out of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee early Thursday morning.

Both legislative leaders and Reagan's executive secretary, Edwin Meese III, said Thursday Reagan had agreed to the latest version.

SURPRISE STAND

But after the new plan cleared the Ways and Means Committee yesterday, Reagan surprised friends and foes with a statement saying he still liked his own plan best.

He said he would support the GOP compromise only "to get tax reform moving." Asked if he would try to restore the plan to what he wants in the Senate, Reagan said "of course."

Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, an architect of the compromise, told newsmen Reagan accepted it "grudgingly." The sponsor of the Reagan bills, Assemblyman W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, agreed.

As it stands now, the compromise would:

Boost the sales tax to 6 per cent except in San Francisco, Alameda and Contra Costa Counties where it would go up to 6.5 per cent. Residents in those counties will be paying a half cent extra to finance the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

Revise the system of permitting income taxpayers to deduct tax credits. Deductions would be less for single and married people, but would be increased for dependents. That would help middle-income families, hard hit by Reagan's 1967 income tax hike.

Increase the homeowner's property tax exemption from $750 to $1,650.

Provide another 15 per cent cut in the business inventory property tax, increase property tax relief for senior citizens and provide income tax relief to renters. The sales tax on artificial limbs, fruit juices and a few other things would be eliminated. Some property tax relief would be provided farmers.

Strike In Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — Most workers have returned to their jobs after a 72-hour general strike in Uruguay, but effects of the walkout were still being felt in some areas late yesterday.

Newspaper workers continued their strike protesting the governments's closing down of the Daily Extra, accused of publishing subversive material.

'Tiger Woman' Caught In Contra Costa?

MARTINEZ (AP) — Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted of double murder in a sensational trial in 1933 and missing since she escaped from an Arizona mental hospital in 1962, has been captured in rural Danville, where she was working as a domestic.

Sheriff's Lt. Robert Sang said the woman convicted of murdering her two best girl friends in Phoenix in 1931, and shipping their remains to Los Angeles "steadfastly denies she is Winnie Ruth Judd."

But Sang, a crew-cut veteran detective, said he identified her through fingerprints, old photos and a scar on her left index finger.

He conceded that the woman who was working as a cook and housekeeper under the name of Marian Lane "looks about 10 years younger" than Winnie Ruth Judd's 64 years..

LOOKS DIFFERENT

The woman, who says she's 54, is plump and matronly compared with the wasted woman who walked away from Arizona State Hospital seven years ago in her seventh escape.

She was picked up at 2 p.m. yesterday by Sang and Sgt. Joe Walsh at the Danville home of Dr. John Blemer, a general practitioner vacationing with his wife in Europe.

Sang said "everything she has indicates she is Marian Lane," but that "information from both inside and outside" California, as well as his own fingerprint check, led him to believe Marian Lane is Winnie Ruth Judd, once known as "the tiger woman."

He booked her as a fugitive from an Arizona mental institution and said Arizona would extradite her.

The woman was located during checks on the still unsolved homicide death in nearby Alamo of Mrs. Z. Alexander Aarons, wife of a psychiatrist. She was beaten to death last April 28.

SLEUTH SUSPICIOUS

Sang said Lt. David Gardella, a detective for 25 years, checking license plates on cars visiting the psychiatrist's home-office, came upon one registered to Marian Lane.

He located her in Piedmont, a section of Oakland, working at the home of a deceased elderly couple whose estate was being liquidated.

Sang said Gardella, now in Italy, did not suspect the Lane woman of being involved in the Aarons murder, but "felt there was something wrong" about her. Investigation led him to suspect she was Mrs. Judd, and after more checks the arrest was made yesterday.

Sang said the woman had been under surveillance for some time. He said she told him she had started to work at the Blemer residence only last Monday. But he added he had indications she had worked there before and that the Blemers had no idea she was Mrs. Judd.

Sang said that before coming to the Bay area—he did not specify when—Mrs. Judd apparently had been in the Los Angeles area for some time. He refused to say how long.

He said her car was driven to the Aarons residence by her nephew, whom she refused to identify.

OLD CRIME

The one-time "tiger woman" gave up quietly, Sang said. He brought her in for booking dressed neatly in a dark dress with a wide white collar. She smiled broadly at news cameramen. It was almost 36 years ago that Mrs. Judd was arrested in Los Angeles when she sought to claim two trunks. Authorities who had spotted blood dripping from one made her open them.

Inside were the remains of Agnes Ann Lerio, an X-ray technician, and Hedvig Samuelson, a schoolteacher, both of Phoenix.

Mrs. Judd was convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged in 1933, but 72 hours before her execution she won a sanity hearing.

She was judged insane and committed to a state hospital where she escaped a total of six times over the years but always was recaptured quickly.

On the seventh try, in 1962, her hospital clothing was found on a building nearby, and no further clues ever were announced that pointed to where Winnie Ruth Judd had gone. By this time she was 57, haggard and looked little like the attractive blonde committed nearly 30 years before.

Authorities had abandoned all but routine search for her.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Sweeper Found

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles' latest wayward street sweeper was recovered yesterday in Irwindale, 20 miles from where it disappeared in downtown Los Angeles.

The nine-ton, bright orange sweeper was stolen early yesterday when its driver parked it for a 15-minute coffee break. When he returned it was gone.

Earlier this month the city finally got back another sweeper which was stolen from a city yard in November, 1967. It turned up in Aurora, Colo.

Viet Press Row

SAIGON (UPI) A national assembly deputy said today he would refuse to resume publishing his newspaper because of what he described as a complete lack of press freedom under the government of Nguyen Van Thieu.

"There is no more press freedom," said Ly Qui Chung, a member of the Vietnamese House of Representatives and editor-publisher of the newspaper Tieng Noi Dan Toc (The People's Voice).

The newspaper was closed down 17 days ago by the government after authorities charged that it was "creating confusion and damaging the fighting spirit of the army and the people."

SDS Plans Bared

MIAMI (AP) — Tens of thousands of American students will flock to factories this summer to organize confrontations with police, an official of the Students for a Democratic Society told a Cuban interviewer yesterday.

Jess Johns, identified by Havana Radio as national secretary for SDS, said the campaign would begin in September.

According to the Miami-monitored broadcast, Johns said that SDS's objectives were the unconditional withdrawal of police and other "repressive forces from Negro communities and U.S. universities."

Barges Checked

BONN (UPI) — Investigators said today they have cleared eight of the 23 barges suspected of dumping an insecticide into the Rhine River that killed 40 million fish and cost commercial fishermen an estimated $625,000.

The search went on for the barge from which as little as two barrels of the insecticide Endosulfan fell into the water at a point near Geisenheim 11 days ago.

Officials has said it would take three to five years for the fish population to reach the pre-poisioning level. The fishing industry was plagued already by poor catches because of water pollution.

Grape Talks On

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Negotiations continued today with the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee optimistic about settling their long dispute with some of California's table grape prowers.

Union negotiators and representatives of 10 Coachella Valley growers met face-to-face for the first time yesterday with the 10 growers presenting a set of proposals aimed at ending the three-year-old dispute.

Although a UFWOC spokesman said the offer was disappointing, he said "we very much believe that the employers are there negotiating in good faith."

Heart Doctors Quit

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Heart surgeoin Dr. Denton A. Cooley and his associate Dr. Grady L. Hallman have quit the faculty of the Baylor College of Medicine — an act which apparently frees them from any Baylor restrictions on their medical experiments.

They announced Thursday night they will accept unsalaried clinical positions on the Baylor staff and will lecture part-time and supervise interns and resident physicians.

Cleaver Bail Lost

OAKLAND (UPI) — Six friends of missing Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver will have to forfeit the $50,000 bail posted on his behalf.

Alameda County Superior Judge Leonard Dieden yesterday denied arguments by attorney Harry Bremond who argued that Cleaver would have been in court had he not been detained in Cuba against his will.

Those who posted bail and are now liable for it include Cleaver's pregnant wife, Kathleen; writer Paul Jacobs, attorney and former Ramparts Magazine publisher Edward Keating, comedian Godfrey Cambridge, psychiatrist Phillip Schapiro, and an unidentified woman doctor in Palo Alto.

Election Eased

LISBON, Portugal (AP) Prime Minister Marcello Caetano's government lifted Friday a 40-year-old decree that barred antigovernment candidates from examining voter registration lists.

The ban had been imposed by Caetano's aged and ailing predecessor, Antonio Salazar.

Campaigning has started for the country's November National Assembly elections. There are about 1.8 million registered voters among Portuga's nine million population.

Red Border Games

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Defense Ministry disclosed today that the Soviet army has been carrying out maneuvers in a military district on the Communist Chinese border.

The ministry newspaper Krasnaya Zevzda (Red Star) said troops in the Trans-Baikal district have been working out "ways and methods of attacking," but the report did not say how close they came to the border or how many troops were involved.

The district borders China along a 500-mile frontier.

State Income Tax

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Senate has approved an income tax asked by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and voted to embark the state on a $2-billion highway program.

The 35-to-21 vote of the Senate last night, sending the income tax bill to the House, marked the first time in more than 30 years the state has turned its back on the sales tax and other levies as a major emergency revenue source.

The Senate approved a 1½-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline taxes and boosts in automobile and truck license fees to help retire the $2 billion dollars in bonds to be issued for highways. The House must ratify the levies.

Another tax change approved by the Senate and returned to the House would reduce the present 4.5 cent state sales tax to 4 cents Oct. 1 and permit cities and counties to increase their three-quarter cent sales tax to a full cent after that date.

Mrs. Candhi Flies

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India left for Indonesia today after a five-day official visit to Japan. Before leaving, she and Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato issued a communique calling for a settlement of the Vietnam war "consistent with the wishes of the Vietnamese people" and based on the 1954 Geneva accords.

Seoul Youth Riot

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — About 1,000 students of Korea University clashed with riot police today for the second straight day in a demonstration opposing constitutional amendments to allow President Chung Hee Park's election to third term.

The woman was located during checks on the still unsolved homicide death in nearby Alamo of Mrs. Z. Alexander Aarons, wife of a psychiatrist. She was beaten to death last April 28.

SLEUTH SUSPICIOUS

Sang said Lt. David Gardella, a detective for 25 years, checking license plates on cars visiting the psychiatrist's home-office, came upon one registered to Marian Lane.

He located her in Piedmont, a section of Oakland, working at the home of a deceased elderly couple whose estate was being liquidated.

Sang said Gardella, now in Italy, did not suspect the Lane woman of being involved in the Aarons murder, but "felt there was something wrong" about her. Investigation led him to suspect she was Mrs. Judd, and after more checks the arrest was made yesterday.

Sang said the woman had been under surveillance for some time. He said she told him she had started to work at the Blemer residence only last Monday. But he added he had indications she had worked there before and that the Blemers had no idea she was Mrs. Judd.

Sang said that before coming to the Bay area—he did not specify when—Mrs. Judd apparently had been in the Los Angeles area for some time. He refused to say how long.

He said her car was driven to the Aarons residence by her nephew, whom she refused to identify.

OLD CRIME

The one-time "tiger woman" gave up quietly, Sang said. He brought her in for booking dressed neatly in a dark dress with a wide white collar. She smiled broadly at news cameramen. It was almost 36 years ago that Mrs. Judd was arrested in Los Angeles when she sought to claim two trunks. Authorities who had spotted blood dripping from one made her open them.

Inside were the remains of Agnes Ann Lerio, an X-ray technician, and Hedvig Samuelson, a schoolteacher, both of Phoenix.

Mrs. Judd was convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged in 1933, but 72 hours before her execution she won a sanity hearing.

She was judged insane and committed to a state hospital where she escaped a total of six times over the years but always was recaptured quickly.

On the seventh try, in 1962, her hospital clothing was found on a building nearby, and no further clues ever were announced that pointed to where Winnie Ruth Judd had gone. By this time she was 57, haggard and looked little like the attractive blonde committed nearly 30 years before.

Authorities had abandoned all but routine search for her.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Sweeper Found

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles' latest wayward street sweeper was recovered yesterday in Irwindale, 20 miles from where it disappeared in downtown Los Angeles.

The nine-ton, bright orange sweeper was stolen early yesterday when its driver parked it for a 15-minute coffee break. When he returned it was gone.

Earlier this month the city finally got back another sweeper which was stolen from a city yard in November, 1967. It turned up in Aurora, Colo.

Viet Press Row

SAIGON (UPI) A national assembly deputy said today he would refuse to resume publishing his newspaper because of what he described as a complete lack of press freedom under the government of Nguyen Van Thieu.

"There is no more press freedom," said Ly Qui Chung, a member of the Vietnamese House of Representatives and editor-publisher of the newspaper Tieng Noi Dan Toc (The People's Voice).

The newspaper was closed down 17 days ago by the government after authorities charged that it was "creating confusion and damaging the fighting spirit of the army and the people."

SDS Plans Bared

MIAMI (AP) — Tens of thousands of American students will flock to factories this summer to organize confrontations with police, an official of the Students for a Democratic Society told a Cuban interviewer yesterday.

Jess Johns, identified by Havana Radio as national secretary for SDS, said the campaign would begin in September.

According to the Miami-monitored broadcast, Johns said that SDS's objectives were the unconditional withdrawal of police and other "repressive forces from Negro communities and U.S. universities."

Barges Checked

BONN (UPI) — Investigators said today they have cleared eight of the 23 barges suspected of dumping an insecticide into the Rhine River that killed 40 million fish and cost commercial fishermen an estimated $625,000.

The search went on for the barge from which as little as two barrels of the insecticide Endosulfan fell into the water at a point near Geisenheim 11 days ago.

Officials has said it would take three to five years for the fish population to reach the pre-poisoning level. The fishing industry was plagued already by poor catches because of water pollution.

Grape Talks On

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Negotiations continued today with the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee optimistic about settling their long dispute with some of California's table grape prowers.

Union negotiators and representatives of 10 Coachella Valley growers met face-to-face for the first time yesterday with the 10 growers presenting a set of proposals aimed at ending the three-year-old dispute.

Although a UFWOC spokesman said the offer was disappointing, he said "we very much believe that the employers are there negotiating in good faith."

Heart Doctors Quit

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Heart surgeoin Dr. Denton A. Cooley and his associate Dr. Grady L. Hallman have quit the faculty of the Baylor College of Medicine — an act which apparently frees them from any Baylor restrictions on their medical experiments.

They announced Thursday night they will accept unsalaried clinical positions on the Baylor staff and will lecture part-time and supervise interns and resident physicians.

Cleaver Bail Lost

OAKLAND (UPI) — Six friends of missing Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver will have to forfeit the $50,000 bail posted on his behalf.

Alameda County Superior Judge Leonard Dieden yesterday denied arguments by attorney Harry Bremond who argued that Cleaver would have been in court had he not been detained in Cuba against his will.

Those who posted bail and are now liable for it include Cleaver's pregnant wife, Kathleen; writer Paul Jacobs, attorney and former Ramparts Magazine publisher Edward Keating, comedian Godfrey Cambridge, psychiatrist Phillip Schapiro, and an unidentified woman doctor in Palo Alto.

Election Eased

LISBON, Portugal (AP) Prime Minister Marcello Caetano's government lifted Friday a 40-year-old decree that barred antigovernment candidates from examining voter registration lists.

The ban had been imposed by Caetano's aged and ailing predecessor, Antonio Salazar.

Campaigning has started for the country's November National Assembly elections. There are about 1.8 million registered voters among Portuga's nine million population.

Red Border Games

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Defense Ministry disclosed today that the Soviet army has been carrying out maneuvers in a military district on the Communist Chinese border.

The ministry newspaper Krasnaya Zevzda (Red Star) said troops in the Trans-Baikal district have been working out "ways and methods of attacking," but the report did not say how close they came to the border or how many troops were involved.

The district borders China along a 500-mile frontier.

State Income Tax

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Senate has approved an income tax asked by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and voted to embark the state on a $2-billion highway program.

The 35-to-21 vote of the Senate last night, sending the income tax bill to the House, marked the first time in more than 30 years the state has turned its back on the sales tax and other levies as a major emergency revenue source.

The Senate approved a 1½-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline taxes and boosts in automobile and truck license fees to help retire the $2 billion dollars in bonds to be issued for highways. The House must ratify the levies.

Another tax change approved by the Senate and returned to the House would reduce the present 4.5 cent state sales tax to 4 cents Oct. 1 and permit cities and counties to increase their three-quarter cent sales tax to a full cent after that date.

Mrs. Candhi Flies

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India left for Indonesia today after a five-day official visit to Japan. Before leaving, she and Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato issued a communique calling for a settlement of the Vietnam war "consistent with the wishes of the Vietnamese people" and based on the 1954 Geneva accords.

People's Pad Lease Status In Confusion

BERKELEY (UPI) — The foundations of a plan to turn a two-story housing unit into a so-called People's Pad to handle the expected summer influx of youths have received a jolt.

President of the Berkeley School Board Carol Sibley yesterday said the district had not yet leased the unit to the Telegraph Avenue Summer Program (TASP). The Telegraph Avenue group is comprised of street people and merchants sympathetic to the People's Park movement.

Mrs. Sibley statement was in contradiction of another board member who announced Thursday that a three-month lease had been signed with TASP. Mrs. Sibley stated that negotiations are still underway between the school district and representatives of TASP.

The board also called "premature" a march by 1000 young people from the University of California to the seven ramshackled buildings. The youths began cleaning and renovating the property Thursday.

"The facilities must be used for a youth hostel and not a pad in the Haight-Ashbury tradition," Mrs. Sibley said. "The program must assume responsibility and obtain personal liability insurance."

"In short," she said, "there must be separate facilities for men and women and a paid married couple must take full-time responsibility for hostel operations. All public laws and standards of health, safety and order must be established."

Elsewhere in Berkeley yesterday, Police Chief Bruce Baker said there was a time during the student "People's Park crisis when serious consideration was being given to employing federal forces.

"We are closer to it at this time than you might think," Chief Baker told the weekly meeting of the Berkeley City Commons, an organization of businessmen and professional people.

Nixon will be accompanied to the Philippines and Indonesia by Secretary of State William P. Rogers. Rogers will then go on to Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Australia and New Zealand.

Mrs. Nixon will accompany the President to the Asian nations and Romania, but she will not be along for the splashdown.

The visit to Romania is at the invitation of Nikolai Ceausescu, president of the Romanian State Council. It was extended through the Romanian ambassador in Washington either at the end of February or in early March.

One high White House official, asked if the subject of the recognition of Communist China would be taken up, said the United States does not intend to make any specific proposals but added that Romania is free to discuss the subject if she wishes. He did not pursue the point.

The Soviet Union, the official said, was not consulted in advance on the Romanian visit. "We feel under no obligation," he said, "to check with the Soviet Union before making visits to sovereign countries."

"We are not visiting Romania as an anti-Soviet gesture," he continued.

Motorcycle Crash Victim Recovers

Carl A. Hultman III, 22, of the Presidio of San Francisco, was released from Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco today after treatment from injuries suffered Thursday when his motorcycle plunged into Bolinas Lagoon tidelands.

The California Highway Patrol said Hultman went off a sharp curve five miles north of Stinson Beach at 10:15 a.m. He suffered a concussion and multiple cuts and scrapes of the face and scalp when the machine landed on rocks below the road.

Youth On Mend After Cycle Spill

A 17-year-old San Rafael youth was reported in satisfactory condition in Marin General Hospital today after he fell from his motorcycle yesterday evening at the intersection of Fourth and Irwin Streets in San Rafael.

Police said that William Tobener, 26 Beach Drive, fell to the pavement about 9:30 p.m.

Tobener was treated for multiple scrapes and bruises.

A state Department of Public Works sketch pictures San Rafael's viaduct as it will look when completed in about two years. Groundbreaking for the eight-tenths of a mile viaduct will be at 2 p.m. Monday. The viaduct will widen Highway 101 from four to six lanes. The work contract includes lighting, off and on ramps, a new drainage channel and modifications of traffic signals at Second Street.

reference to Egeberg taking the position.

The appointment of the 65-year old former Army doctor who served under Gen. Douglas MacArthur, however, does require Senate confirmation. In announcing his appointment, Ziegler made a special point of pointing out the eminent medical educator a Democrat.

In Boston, Dr. John H. Knowles says he lost out on appointment to the nation's No. 1 health post because of political debts owed by President Nixon to conservatives.

"If he has had to make good some promises or debts made in his campaign, I think that's only fair," said Knowles yesterday of the President's refusal to name him assistant secretary.

But at the same time the 43-year-old director of Massachusetts General Hospital was sharply critical of the 15 trustees of the American Medical Association and its political arm, the American Medical Political Action Committee (AMPAC).

He called for an investigation of AMPAC and "the incredible power it seems to hold. It must be determined whether this power is in the public interest."

"I think the trustees of the AMA are fearful of any moderate political position. They felt an individual activist—who spots problems and tries to solve them—would not necessarily protect the interests of a certain segment of organized medicine."

Midspan Change Of Drivers Brings Arrest

To update an old proverb, never change drivers in the middle of a bridge.

A 15-year-old Fort Bragg boy did today and was booked into Marin County Juvenile Hall a little later on suspicion of car theft, the California Highway Patrol said. The patrol gave this account:

A patrol car came upon a car stopped at midspan on Golden Gate Bridge at 4:45 a.m. with Daniel M. Coats, 15, driving and a 22-year-old passenger aboard.

A check showed the car was stolen earlier today from Dan W. Rudolph of Cloverdale.

Coats, it was reported, took the car, headed south, and picked up his hitchhiking passenger near Petaluma.

Once on the bridge, he realized he had neither bridge toll nor a drivers license and asked the passenger to drive. The highway patrol came on the scene as Coats stopped to make the transfer.

The hitchhiker was released and Coats taken to juvenile hall, the patrol said.

Petaluma Factory Bomb Hoax Target

The Kresky Manufacturing Co., Petaluma, received a telephoned bomb threat Thursday at 4:21 p.m., police reported.

Company officials said their telephone operator received a call from a man with a deep voice who said, "There's a bomb in your plant. This is no joke." A search by police and fire officials turned up no bomb at the building at Second and H streets.

Olompali Chief Enters Hospital For Treatment

Donald C. McCoy Jr., 37-year-old hippie commune leader and ex-real estate tycoon, admitted himself to the psychiatric unit at Marin General Hospital a week ago and has been undergoing psychiatric treatment since.

McCoy is the founder and financier of a commune of some 55 persons at Rancho Olompali outside Novato which calls itself the Chosen Family.

He and 11 members of the commune face charges in Marin courts resulting from two drug raids at the rancho in January.

Before dropping out of business, McCoy made an estimated $500,000 in real estate. Last year his father-in-law, Arthur E. Lang, of Mill Valley, petitioned the courts to have McCoy named incompetent to handle his money.

Lang was later named conservator of the estate, which had reportedly dwindled to $200,000 in eight months. McCoy was given a $200 a week allowance.

Hospital authorities declined comment on McCoy's admission.

Hare was a leader in last winter's strike at the college and Hayakawa accused him of sabotaging the black studies program he was supposed to head by failing to draw up concrete plans. White and Major both had demanded that Hare be rehired.

Only one Negro administrator is left in the college, Ronald Boyd in the financial aid office.

Students who led the strike last winter demanded a full professorship for Hare and an autonomous program of minority studies.

Church Classroom Burglary Discovered

About $33 in cash and a tape recorder, value undetermined, were stolen from a flimsy safe in a classroom building at Christ Presbyterian Church sometime between June 16 and Wednesday, Marin sheriff's deputies reported today.

The safe at the Terra Linda church was inside a metal filing cabinet. Church officials said the theft might have taken place last Sunday when doors to the building were unlocked most of the day.

Truck Overturns, Injures Teener

Jeffery D. Smith, 13, of 513 Idylberry Drive, Marinwood, was treated for a bruised forehead Thursday at Marin General Hospital after a pickup truck overturned on Las Gallinas Avenue, the California Highway Patrol said.

The patrol said Smith was one of six boys in the truck driven by Matthew W. Fenn, 15, of 823 Greenberry Drive, Marinwood, which overturned at 11:45 a.m. near Minestone Court.

Contractor Found Dead Inside Car

Raymond Eugene Sarraille, 49, Inverness contractor, was found dead in his car yesterday behind the Bolinas fire station.

Sarraille took his life, the coroner's office said, by running a hose from the car exhaust into the car.

Sarraille was first assistant chief of the Bolinas Volunteer Fire Department until the family moved to Inverness in 1968.

Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan said Sarraille was believed depressed over his health.

A native of California, Sarraille had lived in Marin 15 years. He was a member of the Bolinas Rod and Boat Club. His wife, Edith, was elected to the Bolinas-Stinson School District Board in 1967 but resigned four months later after a school bond issue was defeated twice at the polls.

He is also survived by five children. Funeral is pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

"We're concerned about being good neighbors," he said. "We believe we'll be an asset to the community in all respects."

Walsh said the housing would be constructed in character with West Marin's pastoral atmosphere.

A preliminary development plan has been submitted to the Marin County Planning Department, which said yesterday it has begun density studies. However, Walsh said that the federal government is not subject to local planning department regulations.

The Coast Guard announced in April plans to build large transmitting and receiving stations on property to be bought from the Radio Corporation of America in Point Reyes Station. Walsh said the stations are scheduled to begin operating in July 1971.

Coast Guard officials will meet again with Inverness homeowners July 12 at the annual meeting of the Improvement Association.

asked the man to retrieve the money sack from the disabled 1966 Cadillac before continuing the trip home.

The cioule told investigatiors the stranger, who sported a mustache and goatee and was garbed in western boots, stayed for coffee upon arriving in Mill Valley.

He left shortly before a tow truck arrived to take the Nolts across the bridge to retrieve their auto, Nolt said.

They returned to the darkened home and entered through a sliding door at about 3:15 a.m. Nolt said he noticed nothing amiss.

The money was found missing when the Nolts awakened at about 11:15 a.m. Also gone was $210 left on a dresser, Nolt said.

Nolt said he did not usually make a practice of carrying such large amounts of money to his Marin home.

for the city's senior citizen director from $800 to $900 per year and increased the city's subsidy to Little League from $250 to $370 per year.

That accounted for an increase of $320 in the budget but councilman Frank J. Eggers discovered a $400 error in the office supplies budget, which read $500 instead of $100.

The council spent nearly 45 minutes of the meeting arguing the city's contribution to Little League. Since 1963, the council has budgeted $250, but last night Leo T. Cronin presented a request for $2,500.

Cronin told the council that the $2,500 figure was "merely a bargaining figure" and that he actually wanted $600.

"We pay $400 for cleanup of the ball park every year and we pay $120 for portable toilets," Cronin said. "Every day we clean up we find cigars and wine bottles and they don't belong to the Little Leaguers. We think the city should contribute a little more."

Cronin, his voice dripping with sarcasm, told the council that the crowning blow came recently when he received a bill for $154 for lumber costs to repair the grandstands.

"We only use the field three months of the year and now they want us to foot the bill to repair the city property," he said.

Egger, although citing his support of Little League, said he felt that the operation should be self-supporting for the most part.

The council voted 4-1, however, to increase city support from $250 to $370, with the extra $120 to be used to pay the cost of the portable toilets at the city ballpark. Councilman Robert R. Souza cast the lone dissenting vote.

The council also rejected a plea for $2,500 from Park and Recreation Commission Chairman Dolores Dollahite, who said the money was needed to implement the city's park plans. Councilmen turned down the request, they said, because plans and specifications were not yet completed for the park and that it didn't make sense to begin implementation of a park still in the planning stage.

For the second straight budget session, councilmen were unable to reach agreement on the city administrator-city clerk budget and again tabled the matter until next Tuesday night.

Mrs. Lestanguet is asking for $600 in the budget to pay a deputy city clerk to take minutes at council sessions. Mrs. Lestanguet currently serves as both city clerk and city administrator and says that it is impossible to do both jobs during council meetings.

A motion was made by Souza to approve the budget — which includes a $11,796 a year salary for Mrs. Lestanguet — but it was defeated 3-2 because of the extra $600 sought for the part-time help.

Mayor Francis J. O'Connell, Adelaide P. Wilson and Egger voted against the motion.

Sausalitan Reaches Safety Aboard Yacht

I-J Special Report

SANTA BARBARA — Two Marin County residents were reported aboard a 40-foot sailboat which was escorted to port by the Coast Guard yesterday after its skipper radioed that the vessel was sinking.

Reportedly in the Valkyrie II, owned and skippered by Reed Christensen of Sacramento, were Steven Harris, 18, of San Rafael and Mark Anderson, 21 of Sausalito.

Christensen radioed to the Coast Guard late yesterday that the yacht was sinking because it was taking on water in heavy seas. A helicopter was dispatched, but when it arrived, Christensen said it wasn't needed. A Coast Guard cutter then escorted the sailboat to the harbor here.

The yacht was about 50 miles southwest of Point Conception when it radioed for help.

The Valkyrie II left San Francisco last Wednesday for Santa Barbara to enter the 1969 Transpacific Yacht Race, which begins July 4.

A second 40-footer, The Escape, was also towed into the harbor here by a Norwegian freighter. The Escape, owned by W. V. Fleming of Los Angeles, was on its way to Berkeley. Harbor officials said that The Escape sustained rudder damage in heavy seas and that the wind was too strong for sails.

People's Pad Lease Status In Confusion

BERKELEY (UPI) — The foundations of a plan to turn a two-story housing unit into a so-called People's Pad to handle the expected summer influx of youths have received a jolt.

President of the Berkeley School Board Carol Sibley yesterday said the district had not yet leased the unit to the Telegraph Avenue Summer Program (TASP). The Telegraph Avenue group is comprised of street people and merchants sympathetic to the People's Park movement.

Mrs. Sibley statement was in contradiction of another board member who announced Thursday that a three-month lease had been signed with TASP. Mrs. Sibley stated that negotiations are still underway between the school district and representatives of TASP.

The board also called "premature" a march by 1000 young people from the University of California to the seven ramshackled buildings. The youths began cleaning and renovating the property Thursday.

"The facilities must be used for a youth hostel and not a pad in the Haight-Ashbury tradition," Mrs. Sibley said. "The program must assume responsibility and obtain personal liability insurance."

"In short," she said, "there must be separate facilities for men and women and a paid married couple must take full-time responsibility for hostel operations. All public laws and standards of health, safety and order must be established."

Elsewhere in Berkeley yesterday, Police Chief Bruce Baker said there was a time during the student "People's Park crisis when serious consideration was being given to employing federal forces.

"We are closer to it at this time than you might think," Chief Baker told the weekly meeting of the Berkeley City Commons, an organization of businessmen and professional people.

mania and beyond.

Nixon will be accompanied to the Philippines and Indonesia by Secretary of State William P. Rogers. Rogers will then go on to Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Australia and New Zealand.

Mrs. Nixon will accompany the President to the Asian nations and Romania, but she will not be along for the splashdown.

The visit to Romania is at the invitation of Nikolai Ceausescu, president of the Romanian State Council. It was extended through the Romanian ambassador in Washington either at the end of February or in early March.

One high White House official, asked if the subject of the recognition of Communist China would be taken up, said the United States does not intend to make any specific proposals but added that Romania is free to discuss the subject if she wishes. He did not pursue the point.

The Soviet Union, the official said, was not consulted in advance on the Romanian visit. "We feel under no obligation," he said, "to check with the Soviet Union before making visits to sovereign countries."

"We are not visiting Romania as an anti-Soviet gesture," he continued.

Motorcycle Crash Victim Recovers

Carl A. Hultman III, 22, of the Presidio of San Francisco, was released from Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco today after treatment from injuries suffered Thursday when his motorcycle plunged into Bolinas Lagoon tidelands.

The California Highway Patrol said Hultman went off a sharp curve five miles north of Stinson Beach at 10:15 a.m. He suffered a concussion and multiple cuts and scrapes of the face and scalp when the machine landed on rocks below the road.

reference to Egeberg taking the position.

The appointment of the 65-year old former Army doctor who served under Gen. Douglas MacArthur, however, does require Senate confirmation. In announcing his appointment, Ziegler made a special point of pointing out the eminent medical educator a Democrat.

In Boston, Dr. John H. Knowles says he lost out on appointment to the nation's No. 1 health post because of political debts owed by President Nixon to conservatives.

"If he has had to make good some promises or debts made in his campaign, I think that's only fair," said Knowles yesterday of the President's refusal to name him assistant secretary.

But at the same time the 43-year-old director of Massachusetts General Hospital was sharply critical of the 15 trustees of the American Medical Association and its political arm, the American Medical Political Action Committee (AMPAC).

He called for an investigation of AMPAC and "the incredible power it seems to hold. It must be determined whether this power is in the public interest."

"I think the trustees of the AMA are fearful of any moderate political position. They felt an individual activist—who spots problems and tries to solve them—would not necessarily protect the interests of a certain segment of organized medicine."

Midspan Change Of Drivers Brings Arrest

To update an old proverb, never change drivers in the middle of a bridge.

A 15-year-old Fort Bragg boy did today and was booked into Marin County Juvenile Hall a little later on suspicion of car theft, the California Highway Patrol said. The patrol gave this account:

A patrol car came upon a car stopped at midspan on Golden Gate Bridge at 4:45 a.m. with Daniel M. Coats, 15, driving and a 22-year-old passenger aboard.

A check showed the car was stolen earlier today from Dan W. Rudolph of Cloverdale.

Coats, it was reported, took the car, headed south, and picked up his hitchhiking passenger near Petaluma.

Once on the bridge, he realized he had neither bridge toll nor a drivers license and asked the passenger to drive. The highway patrol came on the scene as Coats stopped to make the transfer.

The hitchhiker was released and Coats taken to juvenile hall, the patrol said.

Petaluma Factory Bomb Hoax Target

Olompali Chief Enters Hospital For Treatment

Donald C. McCoy Jr., 37-year-old hippie commune leader and ex-real estate tycoon, admitted himself to the psychiatric unit at Marin General Hospital a week ago and has been undergoing psychiatric treatment since.

McCoy is the founder and financier of a commune of some 55 persons at Rancho Olompali outside Novato which calls itself the Chosen Family.

He and 11 members of the commune face charges in Marin courts resulting from two drug raids at the rancho in January.

Before dropping out of business, McCoy made an estimated $500,000 in real estate. Last year his father-in-law, Arthur E. Lang, of Mill Valley, petitioned the courts to have McCoy named incompetent to handle his money.

Lang was later named conservator of the estate, which had reportedly dwindled to $200,000 in eight months. McCoy was given a $200 a week allowance.

Hospital authorities declined comment on McCoy's admission.

Hare was a leader in last winter's strike at the college and Hayakawa accused him of sabotaging the black studies program he was supposed to head by failing to draw up concrete plans. White and Major both had demanded that Hare be rehired.

Only one Negro administrator is left in the college, Ronald Boyd in the financial aid office.

Students who led the strike last winter demanded a full professorship for Hare and an autonomous program of minority studies.

The safe at the Terra Linda church was inside a metal filing cabinet. Church officials said the theft might have taken place last Sunday when doors to the building were unlocked most of the day.

Contractor Found Dead Inside Car

Raymond Eugene Sarraille, 49, Inverness contractor, was found dead in his car yesterday behind the Bolinas fire station.

Sarraille took his life, the coroner's office said, by running a hose from the car exhaust into the car.

Sarraille was first assistant chief of the Bolinas Volunteer Fire Department until the family moved to Inverness in 1968.

Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan said Sarraille was believed depressed over his health.

A native of California, Sarraille had lived in Marin 15 years. He was a member of the Bolinas Rod and Boat Club. His wife, Edith, was elected to the Bolinas-Stinson School District Board in 1967 but resigned four months later after a school bond issue was defeated twice at the polls.

He is also survived by five children. Funeral is pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

"We're concerned about being good neighbors," he said. "We believe we'll be an asset to the community in all respects."

Walsh said the housing would be constructed in character with West Marin's pastoral atmosphere.

A preliminary development plan has been submitted to the Marin County Planning Department, which said yesterday it has begun density studies. However, Walsh said that the federal government is not subject to local planning department regulations.

The Coast Guard announced in April plans to build large transmitting and receiving stations on property to be bought from the Radio Corporation of America in Point Reyes Station. Walsh said the stations are scheduled to begin operating in July 1971.

Coast Guard officials will meet again with Inverness homeowners July 12 at the annual meeting of the Improvement Association.

asked the man to retrieve the money sack from the disabled 1966 Cadillac before continuing the trip home.

The cioule told investigatiors the stranger, who sported a mustache and goatee and was garbed in western boots, stayed for coffee upon arriving in Mill Valley.

He left shortly before a tow truck arrived to take the Nolts across the bridge to retrieve their auto, Nolt said.

They returned to the darkened home and entered through a sliding door at about 3:15 a.m. Nolt said he noticed nothing amiss.

The money was found missing when the Nolts awakened at about 11:15 a.m. Also gone was $210 left on a dresser, Nolt said.

Nolt said he did not usually make a practice of carrying such large amounts of money to his Marin home.

FAIRFAX

for the city's senior citizen director from $800 to $900 per year and increased the city's subsidy to Little League from $250 to $370 per year.

That accounted for an increase of $320 in the budget but councilman Frank J. Eggers discovered a $400 error in the office supplies budget, which read $500 instead of $100.

The council spent nearly 45 minutes of the meeting arguing the city's contribution to Little League. Since 1963, the council has budgeted $250, but last night Leo T. Cronin presented a request for $2,500.

Cronin told the council that the $2,500 figure was "merely a bargaining figure" and that he actually wanted $600.

"We pay $400 for cleanup of the ball park every year and we pay $120 for portable toilets," Cronin said. "Every day we clean up we find cigars and wine bottles and they don't belong to the Little Leaguers. We think the city should contribute a little more."

Cronin, his voice dripping with sarcasm, told the council that the crowning blow came recently when he received a bill for $154 for lumber costs to repair the grandstands.

"We only use the field three months of the year and now they want us to foot the bill to repair the city property," he said.

Egger, although citing his support of Little League, said he felt that the operation should be self-supporting for the most part.

The council voted 4-1, however, to increase city support from $250 to $370, with the extra $120 to be used to pay the cost of the portable toilets at the city ballpark. Councilman Robert R. Souza cast the lone dissenting vote.

The council also rejected a plea for $2,500 from Park and Recreation Commission Chairman Dolores Dollahite, who said the money was needed to implement the city's park plans. Councilmen turned down the request, they said, because plans and specifications were not yet completed for the park and that it didn't make sense to begin implementation of a park still in the planning stage.

For the second straight budget session, councilmen were unable to reach agreement on the city administrator-city clerk budget and again tabled the matter until next Tuesday night.

Mrs. Lestanguet is asking for $600 in the budget to pay a deputy city clerk to take minutes at council sessions. Mrs. Lestanguet currently serves as both city clerk and city administrator and says that it is impossible to do both jobs during council meetings.

A motion was made by Souza to approve the budget — which includes a $11,796 a year salary for Mrs. Lestanguet — but it was defeated 3-2 because of the extra $600 sought for the part-time help.

Mayor Francis J. O'Connell, Adelaide P. Wilson and Egger voted against the motion.

SANTA BARBARA — Two Marin County residents were reported aboard a 40-foot sailboat which was escorted to port by the Coast Guard yesterday after its skipper radioed that the vessel was sinking.

Reportedly in the Valkyrie II, owned and skippered by Reed Christensen of Sacramento, were Steven Harris, 18, of San Rafael and Mark Anderson, 21 of Sausalito.

Christensen radioed to the Coast Guard late yesterday that the yacht was sinking because it was taking on water in heavy seas. A helicopter was dispatched, but when it arrived, Christensen said it wasn't needed. A Coast Guard cutter then escorted the sailboat to the harbor here.

The yacht was about 50 miles southwest of Point Conception when it radioed for help.

The Valkyrie II left San Francisco last Wednesday for Santa Barbara to enter the 1969 Transpacific Yacht Race, which begins July 4.

A second 40-footer, The Escape, was also towed into the harbor here by a Norwegian freighter. The Escape, owned by W. V. Fleming of Los Angeles, was on its way to Berkeley. Harbor officials said that The Escape sustained rudder damage in heavy seas and that the wind was too strong for sails.

People's Pad Lease Status In Confusion

BERKELEY (UPI) — The foundations of a plan to turn a two-story housing unit into a so-called People's Pad to handle the expected summer influx of youths have received a jolt.

President of the Berkeley School Board Carol Sibley yesterday said the district had not yet leased the unit to the Telegraph Avenue Summer Program (TASP). The Telegraph Avenue group is comprised of street people and merchants sympathetic to the People's Park movement.

Mrs. Sibley statement was in contradiction of another board member who announced Thursday that a three-month lease had been signed with TASP. Mrs. Sibley stated that negotiations are still underway between the school district and representatives of TASP.

The board also called "premature" a march by 1000 young people from the University of California to the seven ramshackled buildings. The youths began cleaning and renovating the property Thursday.

"The facilities must be used for a youth hostel and not a pad in the Haight-Ashbury tradition," Mrs. Sibley said. "The program must assume responsibility and obtain personal liability insurance."

"In short," she said, "there must be separate facilities for men and women and a paid married couple must take full-time responsibility for hostel operations. All public laws and standards of health, safety and order must be established."

Elsewhere in Berkeley yesterday, Police Chief Bruce Baker said there was a time during the student "People's Park crisis when serious consideration was being given to employing federal forces.

"We are closer to it at this time than you might think," Chief Baker told the weekly meeting of the Berkeley City Commons, an organization of businessmen and professional people.

mania and beyond.

Nixon will be accompanied to the Philippines and Indonesia by Secretary of State William P. Rogers. Rogers will then go on to Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Australia and New Zealand.

Mrs. Nixon will accompany the President to the Asian nations and Romania, but she will not be along for the splashdown.

The visit to Romania is at the invitation of Nikolai Ceausescu, president of the Romanian State Council. It was extended through the Romanian ambassador in Washington either at the end of February or in early March.

One high White House official, asked if the subject of the recognition of Communist China would be taken up, said the United States does not intend to make any specific proposals but added that Romania is free to discuss the subject if she wishes. He did not pursue the point.

The Soviet Union, the official said, was not consulted in advance on the Romanian visit. "We feel under no obligation," he said, "to check with the Soviet Union before making visits to sovereign countries."

"We are not visiting Romania as an anti-Soviet gesture," he continued.

Motorcycle Crash Victim Recovers

Carl A. Hultman III, 22, of the Presidio of San Francisco, was released from Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco today after treatment from injuries suffered Thursday when his motorcycle plunged into Bolinas Lagoon tidelands.

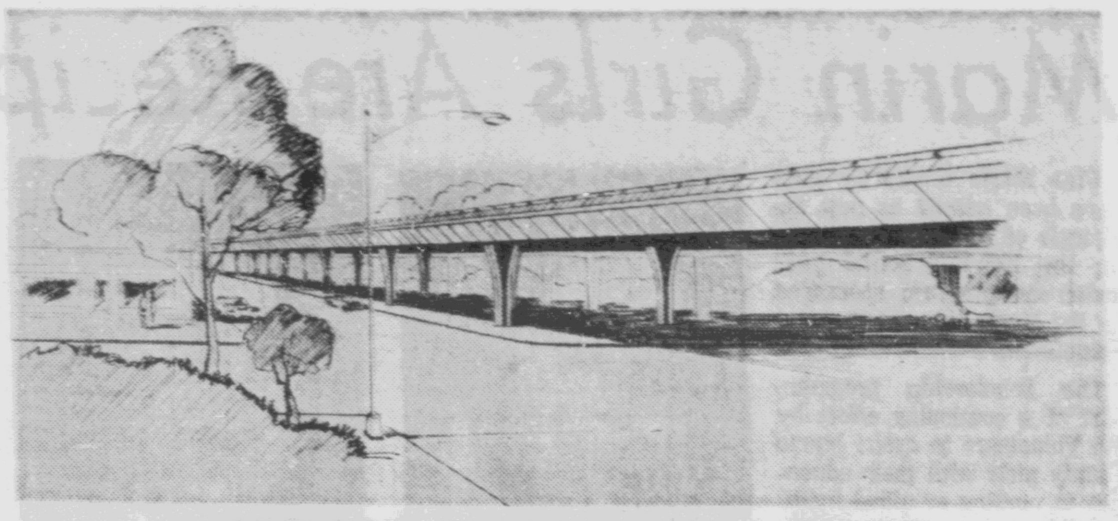
The California Highway Patrol said Hultman went off a sharp curve five miles north of Stinson Beach at 10:15 a.m. He suffered a concussion and multiple cuts and scrapes of the face and scalp when the machine landed on rocks below the road.

Youth On Mend After Cycle Spill

A 17-year-old San Rafael youth was reported in satisfactory condition in Marin General Hospital today after he fell from his motorcycle yesterday evening at the intersection of Fourth and Irwin Streets in San Rafael.

Police said that William Tobener, 26 Beach Drive, fell to the pavement about 9:30 p.m.

Tobener was treated for multiple scrapes and bruises.



ARTIST'S SKETCH OF VIADUCT

Groundbreaking for the eight-tenths of a mile viaduct will be at 2 p.m. Monday. The viaduct will widen Highway 101 from four to six lanes. reference to Egeberg taking the position.

The appointment of the 65-year old former Army doctor who served under Gen. Douglas MacArthur, however, does require Senate confirmation. In announcing his appointment, Ziegler made a special point of pointing out the eminent medical educator a Democrat.

In Boston, Dr. John H. Knowles says he lost out on appointment to the nation's No. 1 health post because of political debts owed by President Nixon to conservatives.

"If he has had to make good some promises or debts made in his campaign, I think that's only fair," said Knowles yesterday of the President's refusal to name him assistant secretary.

But at the same time the 43-year-old director of Massachusetts General Hospital was sharply critical of the 15 trustees of the American Medical Association and its political arm, the American Medical Political Action Committee (AMPAC).

He called for an investigation of AMPAC and "the incredible power it seems to hold. It must be determined whether this power is in the public interest."

"I think the trustees of the AMA are fearful of any moderate political position. They felt an individual activist—who spots problems and tries to solve them—would not necessarily protect the interests of a certain segment of organized medicine."

Midspan Change Of Drivers Brings Arrest

To update an old proverb, never change drivers in the middle of a bridge.

A 15-year-old Fort Bragg boy did today and was booked into Marin County Juvenile Hall a little later on suspicion of car theft, the California Highway Patrol said. The patrol gave this account:

A patrol car came upon a car stopped at midspan on Golden Gate Bridge at 4:45 a.m. with Daniel M. Coats, 15, driving and a 22-year-old passenger aboard.

A check showed the car was stolen earlier today from Dan W. Rudolph of Cloverdale.

Coats, it was reported, took the car, headed south, and picked up his hitchhiking passenger near Petaluma.

Once on the bridge, he realized he had neither bridge toll nor a drivers license and asked the passenger to drive. The highway patrol came on the scene as Coats stopped to make the transfer.

The hitchhiker was released and Coats taken to juvenile hall, the patrol said.

Petaluma Factory Bomb Hoax Target

The Kresky Manufacturing Co., Petaluma, received a telephoned bomb threat Thursday at 4:21 p.m., police reported.

Company officials said their telephone operator received a call from a man with a deep voice who said, "There's a bomb in your plant. This is no joke." A search by police and fire officials turned up no bomb at the building at Second and H streets.

Window Stolen

A Venetian stained glass window, valued at $200, was stolen early Tuesday from the home of Adrian Pitts of 8 Locust Avenue, Kentfield, Marin sheriff's deputies said today.

Olompali Chief Enters Hospital For Treatment

Donald C. McCoy Jr., 37-year-old hippie commune leader and ex-real estate tycoon, admitted himself to the psychiatric unit at Marin General Hospital a week ago and has been undergoing psychiatric treatment since.

McCoy is the founder and financier of a commune of some 55 persons at Rancho Olompali outside Novato which calls itself the Chosen Family.

He and 11 members of the commune face charges in Marin courts resulting from two drug raids at the rancho in January.

Before dropping out of business, McCoy made an estimated $500,000 in real estate. Last year his father-in-law, Arthur E. Lang, of Mill Valley, petitioned the courts to have McCoy named incompetent to handle his money.

Lang was later named conservator of the estate, which had reportedly dwindled to $200,000 in eight months. McCoy was given a $200 a week allowance.

Hospital authorities declined comment on McCoy's admission.

Hare was a leader in last winter's strike at the college and Hayakawa accused him of sabotaging the black studies program he was supposed to head by failing to draw up concrete plans. White and Major both had demanded that Hare be rehired.

Only one Negro administrator is left in the college, Ronald Boyd in the financial aid office.

Students who led the strike last winter demanded a full professorship for Hare and an autonomous program of minority studies.

Church Classroom Burglary Discovered

About $33 in cash and a tape recorder, value undetermined, were stolen from a flimsy safe in a classroom building at Christ Presbyterian Church sometime between June 16 and Wednesday, Marin sheriff's deputies reported today.

The safe at the Terra Linda church was inside a metal filing cabinet. Church officials said the theft might have taken place last Sunday when doors to the building were unlocked most of the day.

Truck Overturns, Injures Teener

Jeffery D. Smith, 13, of 513 Idylberry Drive, Marinwood, was treated for a bruised forehead Thursday at Marin General Hospital after a pickup truck overturned on Las Gallinas Avenue, the California Highway Patrol said.

The patrol said Smith was one of six boys in the truck driven by Matthew W. Fenn, 15, of 823 Greenberry Drive, Marinwood, which overturned at 11:45 a.m. near Minestone Court.

Contractor Found Dead Inside Car

Raymond Eugene Sarraille, 49, Inverness contractor, was found dead in his car yesterday behind the Bolinas fire station.

Sarraille took his life, the coroner's office said, by running a hose from the car exhaust into the car.

Sarraille was first assistant chief of the Bolinas Volunteer Fire Department until the family moved to Inverness in 1968.

Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan said Sarraille was believed depressed over his health.

A native of California, Sarraille had lived in Marin 15 years. He was a member of the Bolinas Rod and Boat Club. His wife, Edith, was elected to the Bolinas-Stinson School District Board in 1967 but resigned four months later after a school bond issue was defeated twice at the polls.

He is also survived by five children. Funeral is pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

dards of the Bay Area Regional Water Quality Control Board," he added.

"We're concerned about being good neighbors," he said. "We believe we'll be an asset to the community in all respects."

Walsh said the housing would be constructed in character with West Marin's pastoral atmosphere.

A preliminary development plan has been submitted to the Marin County Planning Department, which said yesterday it has begun density studies. However, Walsh said that the federal government is not subject to local planning department regulations.

The Coast Guard announced in April plans to build large transmitting and receiving stations on property to be bought from the Radio Corporation of America in Point Reyes Station. Walsh said the stations are scheduled to begin operating in July 1971.

Coast Guard officials will meet again with Inverness homeowners July 12 at the annual meeting of the Improvement Association.

asked the man to retrieve the money sack from the disabled 1966 Cadillac before continuing the trip home.

The cioule told investigatiors the stranger, who sported a mustache and goatee and was garbed in western boots, stayed for coffee upon arriving in Mill Valley.

He left shortly before a tow truck arrived to take the Nolts across the bridge to retrieve their auto, Nolt said.

They returned to the darkened home and entered through a sliding door at about 3:15 a.m. Nolt said he noticed nothing amiss.

The money was found missing when the Nolts awakened at about 11:15 a.m. Also gone was $210 left on a dresser, Nolt said.

Nolt said he did not usually make a practice of carrying such large amounts of money to his Marin home.

FAIRFAX

for the city's senior citizen director from $800 to $900 per year and increased the city's subsidy to Little League from $250 to $370 per year.

That accounted for an increase of $320 in the budget but councilman Frank J. Eggers discovered a $400 error in the office supplies budget, which read $500 instead of $100.

The council spent nearly 45 minutes of the meeting arguing the city's contribution to Little League. Since 1963, the council has budgeted $250, but last night Leo T. Cronin presented a request for $2,500.

Cronin told the council that the $2,500 figure was "merely a bargaining figure" and that he actually wanted $600.

"We pay $400 for cleanup of the ball park every year and we pay $120 for portable toilets," Cronin said. "Every day we clean up we find cigars and wine bottles and they don't belong to the Little Leaguers. We think the city should contribute a little more."

Cronin, his voice dripping with sarcasm, told the council that the crowning blow came recently when he received a bill for $154 for lumber costs to repair the grandstands.

"We only use the field three months of the year and now they want us to foot the bill to repair the city property," he said.

Egger, although citing his support of Little League, said he felt that the operation should be self-supporting for the most part.

The council voted 4-1, however, to increase city support from $250 to $370, with the extra $120 to be used to pay the cost of the portable toilets at the city ballpark. Councilman Robert R. Souza cast the lone dissenting vote.

The council also rejected a plea for $2,500 from Park and Recreation Commission Chairman Dolores Dollahite, who said the money was needed to implement the city's park plans. Councilmen turned down the request, they said, because plans and specifications were not yet completed for the park and that it didn't make sense to begin implementation of a park still in the planning stage.

For the second straight budget session, councilmen were unable to reach agreement on the city administrator-city clerk budget and again tabled the matter until next Tuesday night.

Mrs. Lestanguet is asking for $600 in the budget to pay a deputy city clerk to take minutes at council sessions. Mrs. Lestanguet currently serves as both city clerk and city administrator and says that it is impossible to do both jobs during council meetings.

A motion was made by Souza to approve the budget — which includes a $11,796 a year salary for Mrs. Lestanguet — but it was defeated 3-2 because of the extra $600 sought for the part-time help.

Mayor Francis J. O'Connell, Adelaide P. Wilson and Egger voted against the motion.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

There Is Wisdom To Be Gained By Listening To Each Other

DEAR HELEN:

It was sad — that column written by your adult readers who wondered archly how such "stupid parents" could have produced a generation of such "wise" young people.

I'm 16 and what could be classified as a student rebel. I've been in my share of peace marches, co-editor of an underground newspaper, and I happen to believe that peace, love and non-violence accomplish a lot more than hate and war.

Sure, I believe all this and more, but I don't think we have all the answers, or that the over-30 group are all mindless idiots. We need adults behind us, helping not condemning. The generation gap is on both sides.

Weird as it may seem, there is a gap only when youth says that the people over 30 have never accomplished anything and have nothing to offer; and the older group retaliates with fear and loathing. There is a gap when adults refuse to learn from us and we refuse to learn from them.

Eventually, we teens will be the world leaders and we'll get some of our reforms through, but we would like the present leaders to recognize that many of our ideas make good sense. Perhaps if they understood that we would rather work with them than against them, that we're ready to be treated as young adults, not "silly kids," — if we'd all try to listen to each other—there'd be wisdom and enthusiasm gained on both sides. — STUDENT REBEL

DEAR HELEN:

The stupidest people are those who generalize about any generation, or any condition. Wise adults know there are good and bad teens, and wise young people know there are good and bad "over-30" persons. And they all know the good outweighs the bad in almost any situation. — TED

DEAR HELEN:

At my home there is no generation gap, and this holds true in almost all of my friends' homes. Naturally, we have our petty arguments, but we can talk together as friends. As you say, we like as well as love each other.

Most young people give the older generation credit for many advances and reforms. Those who don't, yell loudest and therefore sound bigger than they are. — ARDIE

DEAR HELEN:

Since I am one of the "young rebels," I have taken it upon myself to answer "El. B." Once in a while a mutation occurs which changes the biological structure of the offspring. In this case, however, the mutation only affected the brains and hair of this younger generation. And so, although the parental figures are stupid, the mutation has caused the brains of the offspring to sharpen and the hair to lengthen. — YOUNG REBEL

Perfect Figure Brings Problems To Petite Middle-Age Woman

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I have finally (after 40 years) worked on my figure until it is just the way I have always wanted, but now my problems are worse. I can't find patterns small enough and when I do, there are so few of them that the selection is very poor. Surely, there are lots of women who wear size 3 or 5 ready-made dresses who have the same problem. The top high fashion pattern company is the worst offender in this small size range.

Mrs. P.S.C.

DEAR MRS. P.S.C.:

The pattern companies are in business to sell patterns and if there is a special need that has been overlooked, they would certainly be more than willing to correct this.

I will act as your go-between and any mail I receive from you will reach the right people. Please drop me a postcard or note immediately and tell me in what size patterns there is the greatest shortage.

DEAR EUNICE:

I am working with a designer pattern for a formal gown and the pattern calls for a 3-inch hair braid for the hem. The only hair braid I have been able to find comes in a package and is only 1 inch wide.

MRS. N.W.

DEAR MRS. N.W.:

The pattern you are referring to must have been designed in Europe. When the pattern company buys the designer's original, they must reproduce the directions exactly as the original was constructed or they cannot use the designer's name on the pattern. These patterns are constructed with custom details that are usually not familiar to anyone other than a custom dressmaker.

Hair braid is a mesh type braid that keeps its shape and helps retain the shape of the hem of a gown by giving it the extra body necessary. Often a shop that carries better fabrics will carry this item. But, if you can't find it, you can take the narrow braid and lap the edges of two strips, hand sew a loose running stitch to hold them together and actually make this braid as wide as you desire.

DEAR EUNICE:

Will you please tell me how to take the wrinkles and creases out of a piece of corduroy? Also, could I put a zipper in the side seam instead of the back of a dress?

MISS M.R.

DEAR MISS M.R.:

As to the creases in corduroy, if they don't come out with steam, you might have to wet the corduroy and let it dry in your dryer to retain the soft nap. If you buy napped fabric of any type and aren't going to use it right away, it is best to fold it in approximately 12-inch folds, place large safety pins through the selvage of each fold and hang on a clothes hanger.

As to the placing of the zipper, this is a matter of choice. The back zipper application became so popular because of elaborate hairdos. If the dress has an adequate opening for the head, there is no reason why you can't use a side closing if you desire. Usually a 12 or 14-inch zipper is recommended.

DEAR EUNICE:

I have a request from my daughter in Germany for a tape measure marked in American inches as well as German liters on the other side.

MRS. K.S.

DEAR MRS. K.S.:

Lately, I have had a flood of mail concerning this kind of tape measure, not only with German on one side, but other foreign units of measure. Does anyone know where such tape measures can be purchased? If they aren't already available, perhaps some manufacturer will come up with one.

There Is Wisdom To Be Gained By Listening To Each Other

DEAR HELEN:

It was sad — that column written by your adult readers who wondered archly how such "stupid parents" could have produced a generation of such "wise" young people.

I'm 16 and what could be classified as a student rebel. I've been in my share of peace marches, co-editor of an underground newspaper, and I happen to believe that peace, love and non-violence accomplish a lot more than hate and war.

Sure, I believe all this and more, but I don't think we have all the answers, or that the over-30 group are all mindless idiots. We need adults behind us, helping not condemning. The generation gap is on both sides.

Weird as it may seem, there is a gap only when youth says that the people over 30 have never accomplished anything and have nothing to offer; and the older group retaliates with fear and loathing. There is a gap when adults refuse to learn from us and we refuse to learn from them.

Eventually, we teens will be the world leaders and we'll get some of our reforms through, but we would like the present leaders to recognize that many of our ideas make good sense. Katherine Solovieff, who made her debut earlier this month at the San Francisco Debutante Ball, left Wednesday for a nine week's stay in Europe.

The first six weeks of her trip, arranged through the Experiment in International Living, will be spent with a French family. For the last three weeks she will travel with other students and do some camping in the French countryside. Her parents are Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Solovieff of Mill Valley. She was just graduated from San Domenico School for Girls.

John Lasater, who was Katherine's escort at the Deb Ball, will leave July 18 for a month's tour of Europe with the International Cultural Exchange Schools. They are hoping to meet in France.

EDEN VANING of San Rafael honored Setsu Shimazo and Toshihiko Hayashi at a luncheon at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito. She will be maid of honor when the couple marry tomorrow afternoon at the Stanford Memorial Chapel.

Other guests were music students at the University of the Pacific who will be members of the bridal party.

WHILE MR. AND Mrs. Martin Mueller of Novato spent three weeks in Europe, Mrs. Martin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R A. Faulk of Santa Paula stayed with their three boys, Mark 13, Eric, 10, and Teddy, 8 years old.

The Muellers combined business and pleasure and as Mr. Mueller is in the import-export business in San Francisco they attended the International Trade Fair in Barcelona, Spain. They visited relatives of Mr. Mueller's in Switzerland as he is the only one of his family to have moved to the United States.

They also visited in the Netherlands, Paris and spent a week in London during Queen Elizabeth's birthday celebration.

Psychiatric Wing Cheers With Art On Walls, Pie Baking

By BARBARA HOSMER

It's quite different from the stereotyped public idea of a psychiatric ward, Beatric Rossman remarked, leading the way upstairs to 2 East, the psychiatric wing of Ross Hospital. Wildly bright abstract paintings done by patients lined the walls of the spacious, carpeted hallways, and the fragrance of baking pie wafted through the open door.

"There are no bars on windows here," remarked the psychiatric social worker, indicating the tastefully furnished wing where patients were cooking the once-a-week dinner they plan and prepare themselves. "I wish everyone could just see it."

Indeed, Marinites will have their chance to tour the modern wing and become acquainted with the new concepts of psychiatric treatment when the 2 East Wing holds open house tomorrow from 1 to 5 p.m. for the public.

"PSYCHIATRY CAN be a scary thing to people, and an open house can help. We look upon the patients as people who come to us with problems that need some help. It's an open ward and some of the people here go back to work during the day and spend the night here, or go home at night to be with children and come here for the day program."

Mrs. Rossman said that new concepts are based on the premise that people under treatment do better in their home environment and the program at Ross is set up so that they don't lose contact with their home or community.

"Treating people in their community is important," she emphasizes.

Often couples come together to attend the group therapy sessions, which she and other staff conduct. There are weekly family therapy meetings for the patients and their immediate family members.

"The husband or wife or parent of a patient may be left with the problems of the home," she points out, and the program attempts to give them some help too.

Those on 2E range in age from the late teen on up to grandparents, and the interaction among them is a part of the therapy as well. Each morning staff and patients meet for talk sessions to air feeings about the others, make complaints, or express anger. And during the week there are smaller patient meetings.

"People really start talking about why they are there and what their fears and concerns are. It's actually group therapy," Mrs. Rossman explains.

AND THE IDEA is to keep everyone active. There is a bright, comfortable music room with a record collection for the patients. Game tables are available and used, the kitchen is built in as a part of the main room, a shuffleboard court is available on the terrace just outside the main room, and a crafts room at the far end of the hall offers potters wheels and a kiln as well as looms and paints.

"We encourage them to be out with the group and not to stay in their rooms," the psychiatric social worker said, indicating open doors from the private rooms off the hall. "The emphasis is on the whole-ward milieu therapy."

BUT THERE is also a one-to-one relationship of the patient with his doctor, the nurses and aides. The whole approach is to help people develop new ways of looking at things and to try new things.

The Friday evening dinner prepared and served by th patients is a voluntary thing, and sometimes it looks doubtful that any meal will be forthcoming, "but they do come through and they like to try exotic specialties," Mrs. Rossman said. Some of the patients were sampling the pies they had just baked.

Such accomplishments allow depressed people to get out of themselves and feel that they can do something, she explained.

AN UNUSUAL PART of the program takes place outside of the hospital itself. A part of the group had just returned from swimming, accompanied by the occupational therapist and a nurse. Staff also accompany those who go shopping.

And the summer camping program has been considered quite successful by staff and patients over the past three years. Groups have gone overnight camping at Santa Cruz, the Russian River and on Mt. Tamalpais, preparing the meals and organizing the camp.

PUBLIC education to methods of treatment is vitally needed, believes Beatrice Rossman, psychiatric social worker at Ross Hospital.

On the ward itself dance therapy is another time to release energy and feeling.

"It's really wild fun once it gets going," says Mrs. Rossman. "The staff and dance instructor start and finally get the patients into the thing."

Mrs. Rossman emphasizes the need for nurses and staff involved with psychiatric patients to be caring people beyond the mere discharge of their duties.

SHE HERSELF began to realize the need that people have for a sympathetic ear when, some years ago, she did household survey work for Life magazine. People would talk and talk — they seemed to need an outlet for their feelings, she said. Her years in psychiatric social work later have borne out her feeling that people today especially need to relate to others.

Mrs. Rossman, who leads therapy groups, believes that there is something very effective in the group therapy idea.

"It's like opening up to a stranger on a bus. People can accept their own feelings and those of others, and a supportive thing from the group comes out.

"It teaches people to talk about what they're feeling. We ask, 'What's going on in you? — do you feel anger — or what? It helps people to talk about their feelings and then to take a look at the feelings. The group then helps people to see other ways of doing things."

BACK IN HER office on the first floor, decorated with a huge, bright yarn God's eye made by a patient, she stressed the need for continuing help for ward patients when they leave — perhaps a job, continued group meetings — generally a supportive situation, perhaps through Marin agencies. She also pleaded the case for a "half-way house" in Marin for such persons who need some structure in their lives but there would not be looked upon as patients.

"We really need public education," she concluded. And that is why 2E will have open house tomorrow for all who care to see for themselves.

Psychiatric Wing Cheers With Art On Walls, Pie Baking

By BARBARA HOSMER

It's quite different from the stereotyped public idea of a psychiatric ward, Beatric Rossman remarked, leading the way upstairs to 2 East, the psychiatric wing of Ross Hospital. Wildly bright abstract paintings done by patients lined the walls of the spacious, carpeted hallways, and the fragrance of baking pie wafted through the open door.

"There are no bars on windows here," remarked the psychiatric social worker, indicating the tastefully furnished wing where patients were cooking the once-a-week dinner they plan and prepare themselves. "I wish everyone could just see it."

Indeed, Marinites will have their chance to tour the modern wing and become acquainted with the new concepts of psychiatric treatment when the 2 East Wing holds open house tomorrow from 1 to 5 p.m. for the public.

"PSYCHIATRY CAN be a scary thing to people, and an open house can help. We look upon the patients as people who come to us with problems that need some help. It's an open ward and some of the people here go back to work during the day and spend the night here, or go home at night to be with children and come here for the day program."

Mrs. Rossman said that new concepts are based on the premise that people under treatment do better in their home environment and the program at Ross is set up so that they don't lose contact with their home or community.

"Treating people in their community is important," she emphasizes.

Often couples come together to attend the group therapy sessions, which she and other staff conduct. There are weekly family therapy meetings for the patients and their immediate family members.

"The husband or wife or parent of a patient may be left with the problems of the home," she points out, and the program attempts to give them some help too.

Those on 2E range in age from the late teen on up to grandparents, and the interaction among them is a part of the therapy as well. Each morning staff and patients meet for talk sessions to air feeings about the others, make complaints, or express anger. And during the week there are smaller patient meetings.

"People really start talking about why they are there and what their fears and concerns are. It's actually group therapy," Mrs. Rossman explains.

AND THE IDEA is to keep everyone active. There is a bright, comfortable music room with a record collection for the patients. Game tables are available and used, the kitchen is built in as a part of the main room, a shuffleboard court is available on the terrace just outside the main room, and a crafts room at the far end of the hall offers potters wheels and a kiln as well as looms and paints.

"We encourage them to be out with the group and not to stay in their rooms," the psychiatric social worker said, indicating open doors from the private rooms off the hall. "The emphasis is on the whole-ward milieu therapy."

BUT THERE is also a one-to-one relationship of the patient with his doctor, the nurses and aides. The whole approach is to help people develop new ways of looking at things and to try new things.

The Friday evening dinner prepared and served by th patients is a voluntary thing, and sometimes it looks doubtful that any meal will be forthcoming, "but they do come through and they like to try exotic specialties," Mrs. Rossman said. Some of the patients were sampling the pies they had just baked.

Such accomplishments allow depressed people to get out of themselves and feel that they can do something, she explained.

AN UNUSUAL PART of the program takes place outside of the hospital itself. A part of the group had just returned from swimming, accompanied by the occupational therapist and a nurse. Staff also accompany those who go shopping.

And the summer camping program has been considered quite successful by staff and patients over the past three years. Groups have gone overnight camping at Santa Cruz, the Russian River and on Mt. Tamalpais, preparing the meals and organizing the camp.

PUBLIC education to methods of treatment is vitally needed, believes Beatrice Rossman, psychiatric social worker at Ross Hospital.

On the ward itself dance therapy is another time to release energy and feeling.

"It's really wild fun once it gets going," says Mrs. Rossman. "The staff and dance instructor start and finally get the patients into the thing."

Mrs. Rossman emphasizes the need for nurses and staff involved with psychiatric patients to be caring people beyond the mere discharge of their duties.

SHE HERSELF began to realize the need that people have for a sympathetic ear when, some years ago, she did household survey work for Life magazine. People would talk and talk — they seemed to need an outlet for their feelings, she said. Her years in psychiatric social work later have borne out her feeling that people today especially need to relate to others.

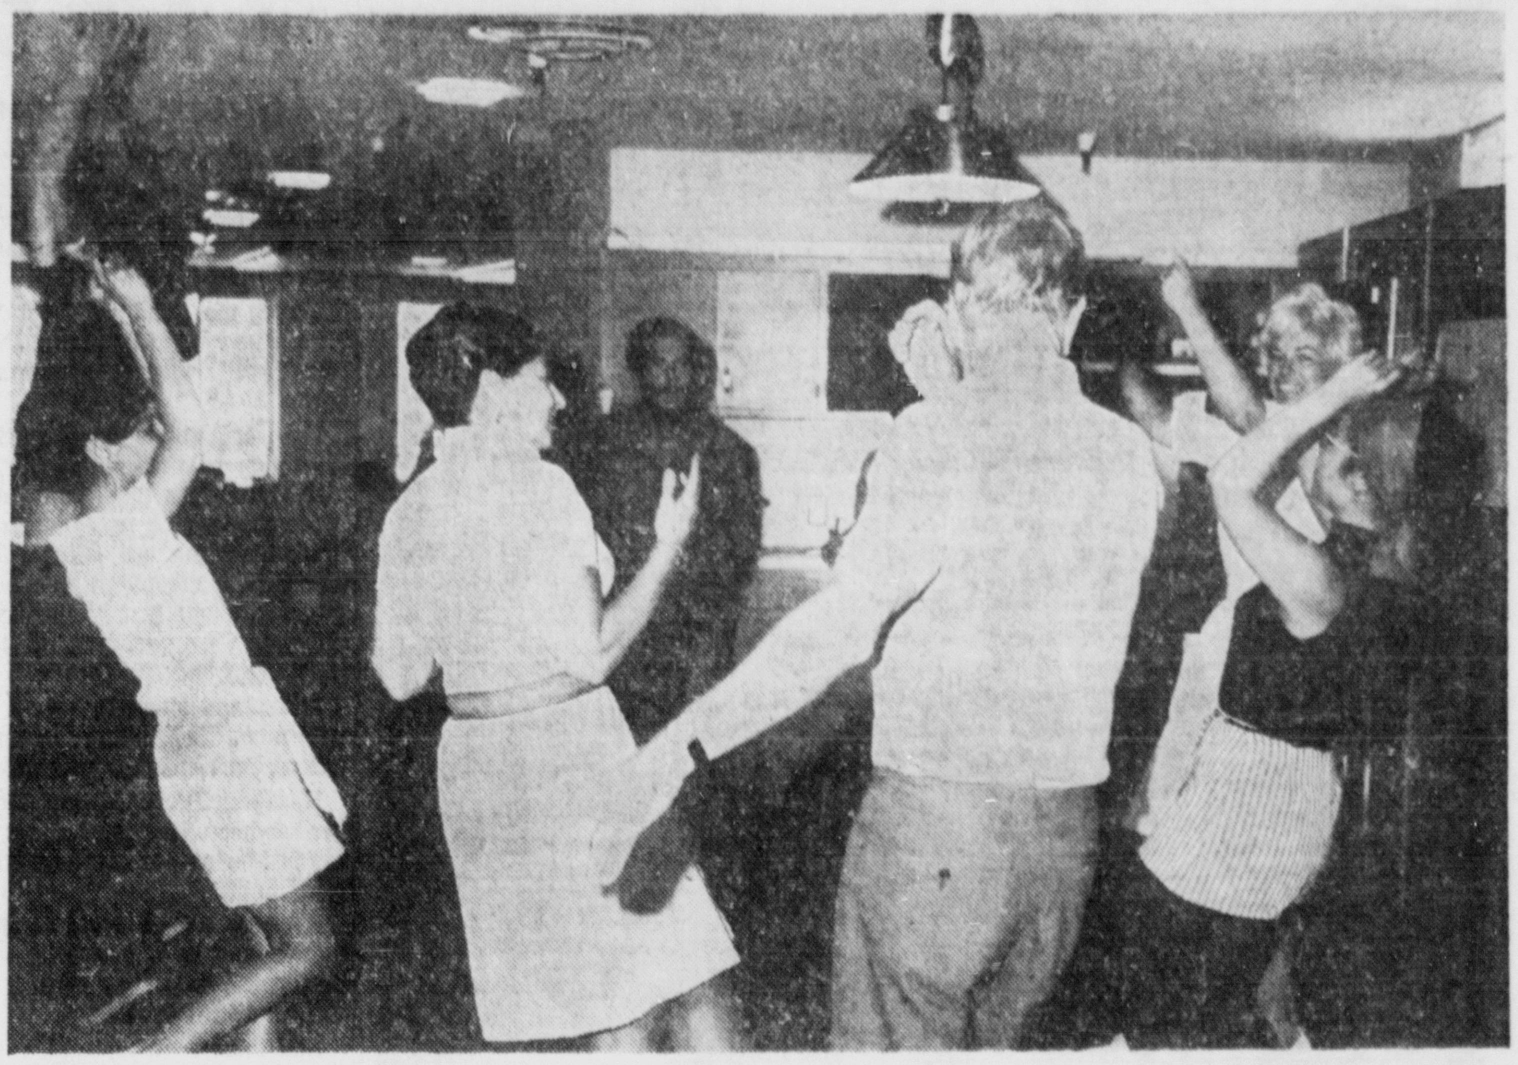
Mrs. Rossman, who leads therapy groups, believes that there is something very effective in the group therapy idea.

"It's like opening up to a stranger on a bus. People can accept their own feelings and those of others, and a supportive thing from the group comes out.

"It teaches people to talk about what they're feeling. We ask, 'What's going on in you? — do you feel anger — or what? It helps people to talk about their feelings and then to take a look at the feelings. The group then helps people to see other ways of doing things."

BACK IN HER office on the first floor, decorated with a huge, bright yarn God's eye made by a patient, she stressed the need for continuing help for ward patients when they leave — perhaps a job, continued group meetings — generally a supportive situation, perhaps through Marin agencies. She also pleaded the case for a "half-way house" in Marin for such persons who need some structure in their lives but there would not be looked upon as patients.

"We really need public education," she concluded. And that is why 2E will have open house tomorrow for all who care to see for themselves.



THE PSYCHIATRIC WING at Ross Hospital swings when the dance therapy instructor gets the staff and patients going, says psychiatric social worker Beatrice Rossman, second from left. It's a part of the whole "keep active" program at the private psychiatric treatment wing. Marinites will have a chance to see it for themselves at an open house from 1 to 5 p.m. there tomorrow.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Trumpet' Sadly Has A Few Sour Notes

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS and LARRY D. HATFIELD

It is very sad that the biggest compliment we can pay Festival Theater's "I Wish I Were a Trumpet" is that it occasionally sounded like a tin whistle.

We're too fond of Festival Theater to say flatly that "Trumpet" was a screaming bore.

The original mixed media dissection of modern man's — at least modern theater's — dependence on computerized thinking came off almost as bland as a computer print-out. And occasionally as insulting, although one wonders if the playwright had such grace.

The play, allegedly, deals with man, his hangups and computers, and hangups therefrom.

Elizabeth Berryhill (and bless her for her vast contributions to art in Marin) has come up with a bummer.

We will refrain from saying, as the play said, that what was performed was "an affront to the American theater."

And before anyone gets his free speech haunches up, let us make perfectly clear that the use — even though supercilious — of thoroughly publicized Anglo-Saxonisms and actors in underwear doesn't shock us a bit. The only line in Miss Berryhill's pretentious play that really shocked us is: "Oh, for shuck's sake."

One of the players said something about yesterday's profundities being tomorrow's cliches, and we think "Trumpet" is the perfect proof of the inanity.

The music, scored by Mark Bucci, incidentally, is marvelous as Festival returns to a theater vacant for nearly a year. (The play was previewed in May for 12 performances.)

It's too bad, at least for the time being, that the "Trumpet" company is not a choral group. They sing very well.

We salute Festival for experimenting in multi-media art — and some of the effects were astonishingly apt, even profound. We hope this first try serves neither as a model or as a roadblock.

Also, one should salute first-rate performances of all the cast except the two leads, Ron Arrants and Frances Maitoza.

Arrants has two excuses — the weakness of the Berryhill script and the fact that his wife is imminently expectant of child.

He is a handsome blond with a beautiful voice and we shall wait anxiously for him to prove himself as an actor as well as a singer and a father.

Miss Maitoza is comely and of beautiful voice. She also needs a part that requires something more than perfunctory acting.

The veterans, thank goodness, contributed the needed sparkle. They were Douglas Saxby, Carol Brumm and Marjorie Casebier. Newcomers Kirk Torney, Annett Pirrone, Phyllis Murphy were expert and fun.

We wish that the script had matched up to the technical production, which was dazzling. This is a forte that has long been a Festival standard. We have grown accustomed to its professionally staged productions.

While the use of portraying characters within a production on screen is not new in Marin (i.e. College of Marin), it does at times make some of the characters in the production a little more human.

However, it is most annoying to hear laughter from the audience in these moments of flashbacks. It's like saying: "Look, there is my friend" on screen.

It is not the intention of this review to criticize the audience from this standpoint, but one should let the actors play the scene, whether on screen or stage. Last night's audience did not.

It may be multi-media at Festival, but that far "multi" we're not prepared to go.

While these remarks will probably seem a little rough to the distinguished Festival Theater, which has given Marin such excellent theater as "Man For All Seasons," and the popular "Oh, What a Lovely War," we are confident when Miss Berryhill and Bucci and their superb technical staff trim the frills out of this production, it will be worthy of the hoped-for national telecast and or even production in the East.

The play will continue at Festival's home, the Barn of the San Francisco Theological Seminary campus, San Anselmo, at 8:30 p.m. today and for the following two weekends.

Mill Valley Suspect Hears Loot Count

A Mill Valley man, arraigned Thursday on a charge of allegedly receiving stolen property, has been ordered to appear in Marin Municipal Court July 3 to enter a plea.

Larry English Hamilton, 25, of 300 Tennessee Avenue, was arrested Thursday by Marin County sheriff's deputies.

City Retires Firefighter

Herman M. Barber of Mill Valley, who lost his leg in an accident two years ago while employed by the San Francisco Fire Department, has been granted a disability retirement.

Barber, injured when a fire truck on which he was riding grazed a pole, was given a desk job.

But Barber, a fireman for 20 years, recently passed the qualifying examination for lieutenant, consequently raising some question in the department about his capability to hold the rank.

Barber, who resides at 134 Magee Avenue, is the father of two children and teaches skiing to other amputees. He defended his ability to stay in the department, but the seven-man board voted to grant him disability retirement.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Trumpet' Sadly Has A Few Sour Notes

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS and LARRY D. HATFIELD

It is very sad that the biggest compliment we can pay Festival Theater's "I Wish I Were a Trumpet" is that it occasionally sounded like a tin whistle.

We're too fond of Festival Theater to say flatly that "Trumpet" was a screaming bore.

The original mixed media dissection of modern man's — at least modern theater's — dependence on computerized thinking came off almost as bland as a computer print-out. And occasionally as insulting, although one wonders if the playwright had such grace.

The play, allegedly, deals with man, his hangups and computers, and hangups therefrom.

Elizabeth Berryhill (and bless her for her vast contributions to art in Marin) has come up with a bummer.

We will refrain from saying, as the play said, that what was performed was "an affront to the American theater."

And before anyone gets his free speech haunches up, let us make perfectly clear that the use — even though supercilious — of thoroughly publicized Anglo-Saxonisms and actors in underwear doesn't shock us a bit. The only line in Miss Berryhill's pretentious play that really shocked us is: "Oh, for shuck's sake."

One of the players said something about yesterday's profundities being tomorrow's cliches, and we think "Trumpet" is the perfect proof of the inanity.

The music, scored by Mark Bucci, incidentally, is marvelous as Festival returns to a theater vacant for nearly a year. (The play was previewed in May for 12 performances.)

It's too bad, at least for the time being, that the "Trumpet" company is not a choral group. They sing very well.

We salute Festival for experimenting in multi-media art — and some of the effects were astonishingly apt, even profound. We hope this first try serves neither as a model or as a roadblock.

Also, one should salute first-rate performances of all the cast except the two leads, Ron Arrants and Frances Maitoza.

Arrants has two excuses — the weakness of the Berryhill script and the fact that his wife is imminently expectant of child.

He is a handsome blond with a beautiful voice and we shall wait anxiously for him to prove himself as an actor as well as a singer and a father.

Miss Maitoza is comely and of beautiful voice. She also needs a part that requires something more than perfunctory acting.

The veterans, thank goodness, contributed the needed sparkle. They were Douglas Saxby, Carol Brumm and Marjorie Casebier. Newcomers Kirk Torney, Annett Pirrone, Phyllis Murphy were expert and fun.

We wish that the script had matched up to the technical production, which was dazzling. This is a forte that has long been a Festival standard. We have grown accustomed to its professionally staged productions.

While the use of portraying characters within a production on screen is not new in Marin (i.e. College of Marin), it does at times make some of the characters in the production a little more human.

However, it is most annoying to hear laughter from the audience in these moments of flashbacks. It's like saying: "Look, there is my friend" on screen.

It is not the intention of this review to criticize the audience from this standpoint, but one should let the actors play the scene, whether on screen or stage. Last night's audience did not.

It may be multi-media at Festival, but that far "multi" we're not prepared to go.

While these remarks will probably seem a little rough to the distinguished Festival Theater, which has given Marin such excellent theater as "Man For All Seasons," and the popular "Oh, What a Lovely War," we are confident when Miss Berryhill and Bucci and their superb technical staff trim the frills out of this production, it will be worthy of the hoped-for national telecast and or even production in the East.

The play will continue at Festival's home, the Barn of the San Francisco Theological Seminary campus, San Anselmo, at 8:30 p.m. today and for the following two weekends.

Mill Valley Suspect Hears Loot Count

A Mill Valley man, arraigned Thursday on a charge of allegedly receiving stolen property, has been ordered to appear in Marin Municipal Court July 3 to enter a plea.

Larry English Hamilton, 25, of 300 Tennessee Avenue, was arrested Thursday by Marin County sheriff's deputies.

City Retires Firefighter

Herman M. Barber of Mill Valley, who lost his leg in an accident two years ago while employed by the San Francisco Fire Department, has been granted a disability retirement.

Barber, injured when a fire truck on which he was riding grazed a pole, was given a desk job.

But Barber, a fireman for 20 years, recently passed the qualifying examination for lieutenant, consequently raising some question in the department about his capability to hold the rank.

Barber, who resides at 134 Magee Avenue, is the father of two children and teaches skiing to other amputees. He defended his ability to stay in the department, but the seven-man board voted to grant him disability retirement.

It was blast-off day at Laurel Dell Primary School yesterday as youngsters sent helium-filled balloons aloft with postcards attached. Each postcard carried a child's name and address plus instructions to send the card back to the San Rafael Recreation Department. The youngster whose balloon is found the farthest distance away will win a $5 prize. Last year the winner's balloon was found in Merced. More than 800 youngsters at 12 schools participated in the event which kicked off San Rafael's recreation program. (Independent-Journal photo by Jackie Hartman)

Four Bids Opened On Novato 101 Project

Low bidder on a highway safety project in Marin is Steiny and Mitchel Inc. of San Francisco, at $24,938, the state Division of Highways has reported. Four bids were received.

The work, on Highway 101 in Novato, includes lengthening the left turn storage land for northbound traffic at Grant Avenue and modifying the traffic signal system at that intersection.

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The state Parks and Recreation Department has been granted permission to use 15.31 acres of Ayala Cove to expand marina facilities.

Approval was given by the state Lands Commission at a meeting in Sacramento Thursday.

New facilities will include 40 boat moorings, a 36-foot extension of the pier and two floats. The parks and recreation department formerly had permission to use 2.51 acres and asked the increase in connection with expansion of Angel Island State Park.

Miss Margery S. Mecabe of Larkspur has been installed as president of Chapter 21 of the California State Employees Association.

Other new officers, installed recently at a dinner meeting at La Petite Auberge, San Rafael, are Norman F. Moreau, vice president; Betty A. Hodson, secretary, and Allen B. Goldsmith, treasurer.

Injures Minor In Highway 101 Hit-Run Crash

A 20-year-old San Anselmo man escaped with a minor injury Thursday when his car rolled in a three-car Highway 101 accident from which the responsible driver fled without stopping, the California Highway Patrol said today.

Thomas Patrick McNaboe of 55 Alder Avenue received a small cut on the left elbow after his car spun out and rolled onto the shoulder of the highway near the San Pedro Road overpass.

The patrol said the hit-and-run car cut into McNaboe's lane, clipping the San Anselman's auto and forcing him into another lane where his car stuck the rear of one driven by Frances Goldman Dinel, 72, of 420 Via Casitas, Greenbrae. The brakes on McNaboe's car then locked, the patrol said, and he spun out and rolled.

The accident occurred at 3:15 p.m.

Pet Owners' Class Slated

Signup for a new class in Marin City on "becoming a better neighbor through love for man and beast" will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., not Monday as reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

The new class, under sponsorship of College of Marin, will be a five-weeks course teaching pet owners how to care for and train their dogs, with both actual owner-and-dog training sessions and talks by veterinarians and experts in various fields of dog care, according to the class's organizer, Gabe Jackson.

Enrollees should leave their dogs home for the first session Tuesday night, he said; the evening will feature demonstrations and discussions of the equipment needed for dog training and care.

The course will be taught in the Manzanita Center.

Fine, Probation In Family Fight

James Paul Leiting, 25, of Fairfax Thursday was given a 30-day suspended sentence and placed on one year probation following his conviction on misdemeanor charges of battery against his wife.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court also levied a $25 fine and ordered Leiting to submit to psychotherapy and not to possess a handgun or rifle.

Leiting was originally accused of felony wife beating on Feb. 5 and April 5.

Teen Club Seeking Permit To Use Ark

A use permit to establish a teen club at the ark at the Tiburon Peninsula Club will be studied by the Tiburon Board of Adjustments at its 7:30 p.m. meeting Monday at city hall.

A public hearing on the permit, which has the backing of city officials, is scheduled as the only item on the board's agenda.

Marina Approved On Ayala Cove

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The state Parks and Recreation Department has been granted permission to use 15.31 acres of Ayala Cove to expand marina facilities.

Approval was given by the state Lands Commission at a meeting in Sacramento Thursday.

New facilities will include 40 boat moorings, a 36-foot extension of the pier and two floats. The parks and recreation department formerly had permission to use 2.51 acres and asked the increase in connection with expansion of Angel Island State Park.

State Employees Unit Seats Marin Woman

Miss Margery S. Mecabe of Larkspur has been installed as president of Chapter 21 of the California State Employees Association.

Other new officers, installed recently at a dinner meeting at La Petite Auberge, San Rafael, are Norman F. Moreau, vice president; Betty A. Hodson, secretary, and Allen B. Goldsmith, treasurer.

New Interest

CORDOVA, Alaska (AP) — Cordova, the gateway to Alaska's Copper River Valley, was once the deep water port for numerous mineral activities. Word of coal deposits and renewed interest in copper have again stimulated activity in the area.

Injures Minor In Highway 101 Hit-Run Crash

A 20-year-old San Anselmo man escaped with a minor injury Thursday when his car rolled in a three-car Highway 101 accident from which the responsible driver fled without stopping, the California Highway Patrol said today.

Thomas Patrick McNaboe of 55 Alder Avenue received a small cut on the left elbow after his car spun out and rolled onto the shoulder of the highway near the San Pedro Road overpass.

The patrol said the hit-and-run car cut into McNaboe's lane, clipping the San Anselman's auto and forcing him into another lane where his car stuck the rear of one driven by Frances Goldman Dinel, 72, of 420 Via Casitas, Greenbrae. The brakes on McNaboe's car then locked, the patrol said, and he spun out and rolled.

The accident occurred at 3:15 p.m.

Pet Owners' Class Slated

Signup for a new class in Marin City on "becoming a better neighbor through love for man and beast" will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., not Monday as reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

The new class, under sponsorship of College of Marin, will be a five-weeks course teaching pet owners how to care for and train their dogs, with both actual owner-and-dog training sessions and talks by veterinarians and experts in various fields of dog care, according to the class's organizer, Gabe Jackson.

Enrollees should leave their dogs home for the first session Tuesday night, he said; the evening will feature demonstrations and discussions of the equipment needed for dog training and care.

The course will be taught in the Manzanita Center.

Fine, Probation In Family Fight

James Paul Leiting, 25, of Fairfax Thursday was given a 30-day suspended sentence and placed on one year probation following his conviction on misdemeanor charges of battery against his wife.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court also levied a $25 fine and ordered Leiting to submit to psychotherapy and not to possess a handgun or rifle.

Leiting was originally accused of felony wife beating on Feb. 5 and April 5.

Teen Club Seeking Permit To Use Ark

A use permit to establish a teen club at the ark at the Tiburon Peninsula Club will be studied by the Tiburon Board of Adjustments at its 7:30 p.m. meeting Monday at city hall.

A public hearing on the permit, which has the backing of city officials, is scheduled as the only item on the board's agenda.

Marina Approved On Ayala Cove

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The state Parks and Recreation Department has been granted permission to use 15.31 acres of Ayala Cove to expand marina facilities.

Approval was given by the state Lands Commission at a meeting in Sacramento Thursday.

New facilities will include 40 boat moorings, a 36-foot extension of the pier and two floats. The parks and recreation department formerly had permission to use 2.51 acres and asked the increase in connection with expansion of Angel Island State Park.

State Employees Unit Seats Marin Woman

Miss Margery S. Mecabe of Larkspur has been installed as president of Chapter 21 of the California State Employees Association.

Other new officers, installed recently at a dinner meeting at La Petite Auberge, San Rafael, are Norman F. Moreau, vice president; Betty A. Hodson, secretary, and Allen B. Goldsmith, treasurer.

New Interest

CORDOVA, Alaska (AP) — Cordova, the gateway to Alaska's Copper River Valley, was once the deep water port for numerous mineral activities. Word of coal deposits and renewed interest in copper have again stimulated activity in the area.

Injures Minor In Highway 101 Hit-Run Crash

A 20-year-old San Anselmo man escaped with a minor injury Thursday when his car rolled in a three-car Highway 101 accident from which the responsible driver fled without stopping, the California Highway Patrol said today.

Thomas Patrick McNaboe of 55 Alder Avenue received a small cut on the left elbow after his car spun out and rolled onto the shoulder of the highway near the San Pedro Road overpass.

The patrol said the hit-and-run car cut into McNaboe's lane, clipping the San Anselman's auto and forcing him into another lane where his car stuck the rear of one driven by Frances Goldman Dinel, 72, of 420 Via Casitas, Greenbrae. The brakes on McNaboe's car then locked, the patrol said, and he spun out and rolled.

The accident occurred at 3:15 p.m.

Pet Owners' Class Slated

Signup for a new class in Marin City on "becoming a better neighbor through love for man and beast" will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., not Monday as reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

The new class, under sponsorship of College of Marin, will be a five-weeks course teaching pet owners how to care for and train their dogs, with both actual owner-and-dog training sessions and talks by veterinarians and experts in various fields of dog care, according to the class's organizer, Gabe Jackson.

Enrollees should leave their dogs home for the first session Tuesday night, he said; the evening will feature demonstrations and discussions of the equipment needed for dog training and care.

The course will be taught in the Manzanita Center.

Fine, Probation In Family Fight

James Paul Leiting, 25, of Fairfax Thursday was given a 30-day suspended sentence and placed on one year probation following his conviction on misdemeanor charges of battery against his wife.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court also levied a $25 fine and ordered Leiting to submit to psychotherapy and not to possess a handgun or rifle.

Leiting was originally accused of felony wife beating on Feb. 5 and April 5.

Teen Club Seeking Permit To Use Ark

A use permit to establish a teen club at the ark at the Tiburon Peninsula Club will be studied by the Tiburon Board of Adjustments at its 7:30 p.m. meeting Monday at city hall.

A public hearing on the permit, which has the backing of city officials, is scheduled as the only item on the board's agenda.

Guardsmen To Get Break On Release

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the 20,000 National Guardsmen and Army reservists on active duty, including all who have served in Vietnam, will be excused from drills after they return to civilian life, the Pentagon said yesterday.

All the guardsmen and reservists mobilized last year are due to be out of uniform by mid-December.

Those being given a break, as Pentagon officials describe it, are men who have reserve obligations remaining.

Those enlisted men who have completed a total of 24 months of active duty will, upon request, be assigned to the Ready Reserve manpower pool for the remainder of a six-year statutory obligation.

This means they will not be required to serve in units, attend drills, or go to summer camp.

Credited toward the 24 months of active duty will be all periods in which the serviceman was in uniform, including training.

Any enlisted Army Reservist or Guardsman who served in a hostile fire zone in Vietnam will, if he wishes, be shifted to the manpower pool.

Men who have served less than 24 months of active duty, but did not spend time in the hostile fire zone, will be reassigned to their original units and will be required to attend regular drills and summer training camp.

Panther Chief Denounces Cuba Complainer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Black Panther party's chairman says a man who complained in Havana that there is a revolutionary lag in the Cuban government is not a Black Panther as he claimed.

In a news conference on the Alameda County Courthouse steps Thursday, Panther chairman Bobby Seale asserted that Raymond Johnson is "nothing but an agent for the fascist CIA and FBI."

Johnson, who was once a Southern University student in Louisiana, hijacked an airplane to Havana in 1968 and told the Associated Press on Wednesday that Panthers have been "isolated and imprisoned" in Cuba.

Seale said: "We found out yesterday that he went to Cuba by hijack, which is a good way for the fascist FBI pigs of America to cover up and try to make Cubans think that anyone who hijacks an airplane is not a destructive agent to the Cuban People's Socialist Government."

Pentagon Hit On Warheads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William S. Moorhead says the Pentagon quietly let contracts for work on a multiple warhead missile system while Congress debated whether work on the project should be halted.

Moorhead, D-Pa., and other congressmen have urged that testing of the multiple independently targeted reentry vehicles (MIRVs) be held up pending attempts to start disarmament talks with Moscow.

Moorhead said Thursday the Pentagon let the $88 million production contract last week to General Electric.

"The critical issue here is the fact that the Soviet Union, when it hears of the production conract, will naturally feel that our testing has been successful and we are sufficiently confident of the accuracy and reliability of the MIRV to enter into a contract to produce it," said Moorhead.

Home Burglarized At Marin Terrace

Stereo components valued at $496 were stolen sometime Monday from a home shared by two women at 240 Cleveland Avenue, Marin Terrace, Marin sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

ICE CREAM DREAM — Kelly Drake, 10, of 785 Skillman Lane, Petaluma, realized a dream come true when she won her weight in ice cream yesterday at the Sonoma-Marin Fair in Petaluma. A chubby youngster, Kelly went home with 44 half-gallons of assorted ice cream flavors. Helping Kelly balance the ice cream was Arthur Cerini, plant manager of the Petaluma Cooperative Creamery. Girl Hitchhiker Reports Trouble

An 18-year-old Sausalito girl, who hitchhiked a ride in Sausalito Wednesday, reported to sheriff's investigators the driver of the auto attempted to attack her after parking the car behind a bait shop.

The girl told investigators she was picked up about noon on Bridgeway by a man driving a purple sports car. She said he stopped the auto nearby and began mauling her. She was able to leap from the car and the attacker sped away.

The girl described the man as about 35, dressed in a greenish-brown suit, white shirt and yellow tie.

Nothing Of Value

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—One store owner here apparently has given up in a fight against crime. After the last break-in at his establishment, he placed a card in a broken window and addressed: "Thieves — don't bother to break in again. There's nothing of value left in the store anymore."

Chief Stresses Fireworks Ban

No fireworks are allowed in Marin County, either in cities or in unincorporated areas.

This reminder came today from Frank J. Buscher, president of the Marin County Fire Chiefs Association.

Buscher said that an advertisement in yesterday's Independent-Journal publicized a sale of fireworks at a Petaluma store.

While fireworks are permitted in Sonoma County, they are banned in Marin County, Buscher pointed out. The only fireworks displays allowed in Marin are public displays which have fire department permits.

A Marin County ordinance prohibits manufacturer, sale, or discharge of fireworks in unincorporated areas. Similar ordinances are in effect in each of the cities, said Buscher.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Excessive Thirst, Hunger And Fatigue Are Diabetes Warnings

VAN DELLEN

In diabetes, sugars and starches are not properly utilized due to an insulin deficiency. In some, the pancreas fails to manufacture enough; in others, the tissues tend to resist insulin. Most diabetics are over 40, fat, or have a family history of the disease.

The condition is suspected whenever there is excessive thirst, frequent urination, extreme hunger, and loss of weight. Unaccountable changes in vision, pain in the fingers and toes, or drowsiness and fatigue are other signals. Skin problems such as intense itching, slow healing of cuts, boils, and carbuncles may also indicate diabetes in an otherwise healthy person. There are many other warning signs that may or may not be signs of diabetes. When these are noted by the physician or dentist, additional tests usually are suggested.

BUT MANY diabetics are detected long before symptoms develop. One-third are found during routine insurance examinations. Others show up during an annual physical or screening program.

Why do we stress early detection and treatment with diet and insulin or oral anti-diabetic pills? Because uncontroled diabetes is associated with serious complications, such as hardening of the arteries, blindness, heart disease, and kidney disorders. Seven out of 10 die of blood vessel disease. Heart attacks are more common and high blood pressure not unusual. Poor cirulation often leads to gangrene.

Diabetes also affects the nervous system leading to numbness, tingling, and pain in the extremities with muscle tenderness. But there is more. Uncontroled diabetes not only provokes the symptoms mentioned previously, but leads to a severe acidosis followed by coma and death.

TYPES OF EPILEPSY

L. R. writes: Is there more than one kind of epilepsy?

REPLY

Yes. Epilspsy is the name given to a numberof disorders that involve the nervous system. The signs and symptoms vary from convulsions with loss of consciousness to nonconvulsive seizures in which only slight changes in conscious awareness are noted. The main types are grand mal (major convulsions), petit mal (blackouts), focal seizures, and temporal lobe (psychomotor) epilepsy. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet describing the various forms of epilepsy.

CHILDREN AND TEA

Mrs. A. writes: Why is tea not recommended for children? My 4-year-old sipped some from my cup once when he was alone in the kitchen. Now he begs for it and it is hard to resist his pleading.

REPLY

Tea is a stimulant which children do not need. In addition, it might become a substitute for a more nourishing food, such as milk. I assumbe he begs for tea only when he sees you drinking a cupful. Why not flavor his milk with a little tea and let him drink it out of a cup.

WHY FLU MISSES SOME

A reader writes: Why are some people immune to flu and others get it so often? Even with the Hong Kong variety, some got it, but many escaped.

REPLY

Some people have more natural immunity against infection. Or perhaps they are not exposed so frequently as are those who seem to be highly susceptible. More than 100 organisms are capable of causing fluiike symptoms. Early this winter, many had Hong Kong flu, but unless certain tests were done, the exact cause is questionable.

FIBROIDS EXPLAINED

P. C. writes: Would you please discuss fibroids of the uterus? My doctor recently told me I had a fibroid but he did not explain the nature of such growths. Can they become malignant? I am told that many women have these and the information should be helpful to all of us.

REPLY

A fibroid is a tumor that involves the wall of the uterus. They never become cancerous but may cause symptoms such as bleeding. Large fibroids are best treated via surgery.

CYCLING AWAY CRAMPS

A reader writes: Recently my husband has been troubled with leg cramps at night. Do you think bicycle riding might help him?

REPLY

Cycling is worth a trial. Have him ride for two weeks, but suggest that he limit the activity to an hour each day. Is he taking diuretic medication? Quinine tablets may help if exercise fails to relieve the cramping.

Guardsmen To Get Break On Release

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the 20,000 National Guardsmen and Army reservists on active duty, including all who have served in Vietnam, will be excused from drills after they return to civilian life, the Pentagon said yesterday.

All the guardsmen and reservists mobilized last year are due to be out of uniform by mid-December.

Those being given a break, as Pentagon officials describe it, are men who have reserve obligations remaining.

Those enlisted men who have completed a total of 24 months of active duty will, upon request, be assigned to the Ready Reserve manpower pool for the remainder of a six-year statutory obligation.

This means they will not be required to serve in units, attend drills, or go to summer camp.

Credited toward the 24 months of active duty will be all periods in which the serviceman was in uniform, including training.

Any enlisted Army Reservist or Guardsman who served in a hostile fire zone in Vietnam will, if he wishes, be shifted to the manpower pool.

Men who have served less than 24 months of active duty, but did not spend time in the hostile fire zone, will be reassigned to their original units and will be required to attend regular drills and summer training camp.

Mill Valley School Budget Due Monday

The Mill Valley School District board will consider its tentative $2.9 million 1969-70 budget at 8 p.m. Monday at Park School, 360 East Blithedale Avenue.

The trustees Monday also will receive Supt. James A. Collins' recommendations for salaries for teachers and other school employees for next year.

Panther Chief Denounces Cuba Complainer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Black Panther party's chairman says a man who complained in Havana that there is a revolutionary lag in the Cuban government is not a Black Panther as he claimed.

In a news conference on the Alameda County Courthouse steps Thursday, Panther chairman Bobby Seale asserted that Raymond Johnson is "nothing but an agent for the fascist CIA and FBI."

Johnson, who was once a Southern University student in Louisiana, hijacked an airplane to Havana in 1968 and told the Associated Press on Wednesday that Panthers have been "isolated and imprisoned" in Cuba.

Seale said: "We found out yesterday that he went to Cuba by hijack, which is a good way for the fascist FBI pigs of America to cover up and try to make Cubans think that anyone who hijacks an airplane is not a destructive agent to the Cuban People's Socialist Government."

Pentagon Hit On Warheads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William S. Moorhead says the Pentagon quietly let contracts for work on a multiple warhead missile system while Congress debated whether work on the project should be halted.

Moorhead, D-Pa., and other congressmen have urged that testing of the multiple independently targeted reentry vehicles (MIRVs) be held up pending attempts to start disarmament talks with Moscow.

Moorhead said Thursday the Pentagon let the $88 million production contract last week to General Electric.

"The critical issue here is the fact that the Soviet Union, when it hears of the production contract, will naturally feel that our testing has been successful and we are sufficiently confident of the accuracy and reliability of the MIRV to enter into a contract to produce it," said Moorhead.

Home Burglarized At Marin Terrace

Stereo components valued at $496 were stolen sometime Monday from a home shared by two women at 240 Cleveland Avenue, Marin Terrace, Marin sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Sandy Lynn Tsegeletos and Glenda Ellen Vandergrift reported the burgler apparently entered the home through a kitchen window while they were at work.

ICE CREAM DREAM — Kelly Drake, 10, of 785 Skillman Lane, Petaluma, realized a dream come true when she won her weight in ice cream yesterday at the Sonoma-Marin Fair in Petaluma. A chubby youngster, Kelly went home with 44 half-gallons of assorted ice cream flavors. Helping Kelly balance the ice cream was Arthur Cerini, plant manager of the Petaluma Cooperative Creamery. Girl Hitchhiker Reports Trouble

An 18-year-old Sausalito girl, who hitchhiked a ride in Sausalito Wednesday, reported to sheriff's investigators the driver of the auto attempted to attack her after parking the car behind a bait shop.

The girl told investigators she was picked up about noon on Bridgeway by a man driving a purple sports car. She said he stopped the auto nearby and began mauling her. She was able to leap from the car and the attacker sped away.

The girl described the man as about 35, dressed in a greenish-brown suit, white shirt and yellow tie.

Nothing Of Value

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—One store owner here apparently has given up in a fight against crime. After the last break-in at his establishment, he placed a card in a broken window and addressed: "Thieves — don't bother to break in again. There's nothing of value left in the store anymore."

Chief Stresses Fireworks Ban

No fireworks are allowed in Marin County, either in cities or in unincorporated areas.

This reminder came today from Frank J. Buscher, president of the Marin County Fire Chiefs Association.

Buscher said that an advertisement in yesterday's Independent-Journal publicized a sale of fireworks at a Petaluma store.

While fireworks are permitted in Sonoma County, they are banned in Marin County, Buscher pointed out. The only fireworks displays allowed in Marin are public displays which have fire department permits.

A Marin County ordinance prohibits manufacturer, sale, or discharge of fireworks in unincorporated areas. Similar ordinances are in effect in each of the cities, said Buscher.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Excessive Thirst, Hunger And Fatigue Are Diabetes Warnings

VAN DELLEN

In diabetes, sugars and starches are not properly utilized due to an insulin deficiency. In some, the pancreas fails to manufacture enough; in others, the tissues tend to resist insulin. Most diabetics are over 40, fat, or have a family history of the disease.

The condition is suspected whenever there is excessive thirst, frequent urination, extreme hunger, and loss of weight. Unaccountable changes in vision, pain in the fingers and toes, or drowsiness and fatigue are other signals. Skin problems such as intense itching, slow healing of cuts, boils, and carbuncles may also indicate diabetes in an otherwise healthy person. There are many other warning signs that may or may not be signs of diabetes. When these are noted by the physician or dentist, additional tests usually are suggested.

BUT MANY diabetics are detected long before symptoms develop. One-third are found during routine insurance examinations. Others show up during an annual physical or screening program.

Why do we stress early detection and treatment with diet and insulin or oral anti-diabetic pills? Because uncontroled diabetes is associated with serious complications, such as hardening of the arteries, blindness, heart disease, and kidney disorders. Seven out of 10 die of blood vessel disease. Heart attacks are more common and high blood pressure not unusual. Poor cirulation often leads to gangrene.

Diabetes also affects the nervous system leading to numbness, tingling, and pain in the extremities with muscle tenderness. But there is more. Uncontroled diabetes not only provokes the symptoms mentioned previously, but leads to a severe acidosis followed by coma and death.

TYPES OF EPILEPSY

L. R. writes: Is there more than one kind of epilepsy?

REPLY

Yes. Epilspsy is the name given to a numberof disorders that involve the nervous system. The signs and symptoms vary from convulsions with loss of consciousness to nonconvulsive seizures in which only slight changes in conscious awareness are noted. The main types are grand mal (major convulsions), petit mal (blackouts), focal seizures, and temporal lobe (psychomotor) epilepsy. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet describing the various forms of epilepsy.

CHILDREN AND TEA

Mrs. A. writes: Why is tea not recommended for children? My 4-year-old sipped some from my cup once when he was alone in the kitchen. Now he begs for it and it is hard to resist his pleading.

REPLY

Tea is a stimulant which children do not need. In addition, it might become a substitute for a more nourishing food, such as milk. I assumbe he begs for tea only when he sees you drinking a cupful. Why not flavor his milk with a little tea and let him drink it out of a cup.

WHY FLU MISSES SOME

A reader writes: Why are some people immune to flu and others get it so often? Even with the Hong Kong variety, some got it, but many escaped.

REPLY

Some people have more natural immunity against infection. Or perhaps they are not exposed so frequently as are those who seem to be highly susceptible. More than 100 organisms are capable of causing fluiike symptoms. Early this winter, many had Hong Kong flu, but unless certain tests were done, the exact cause is questionable.

FIBROIDS EXPLAINED

P. C. writes: Would you please discuss fibroids of the uterus? My doctor recently told me I had a fibroid but he did not explain the nature of such growths. Can they become malignant? I am told that many women have these and the information should be helpful to all of us.

REPLY

A fibroid is a tumor that involves the wall of the uterus. They never become cancerous but may cause symptoms such as bleeding. Large fibroids are best treated via surgery.

CYCLING AWAY CRAMPS

A reader writes: Recently my husband has been troubled with leg cramps at night. Do you think bicycle riding might help him?

REPLY

Cycling is worth a trial. Have him ride for two weeks, but suggest that he limit the activity to an hour each day. Is he taking diuretic medication? Quinine tablets may help if exercise fails to relieve the cramping.

Guardsmen To Get Break On Release

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the 20,000 National Guardsmen and Army reservists on active duty, including all who have served in Vietnam, will be excused from drills after they return to civilian life, the Pentagon said yesterday.

All the guardsmen and reservists mobilized last year are due to be out of uniform by mid-December.

Those being given a break, as Pentagon officials describe it, are men who have reserve obligations remaining.

Those enlisted men who have completed a total of 24 months of active duty will, upon request, be assigned to the Ready Reserve manpower pool for the remainder of a six-year statutory obligation.

This means they will not be required to serve in units, attend drills, or go to summer camp.

Credited toward the 24 months of active duty will be all periods in which the serviceman was in uniform, including training.

Any enlisted Army Reservist or Guardsman who served in a hostile fire zone in Vietnam will, if he wishes, be shifted to the manpower pool.

Men who have served less than 24 months of active duty, but did not spend time in the hostile fire zone, will be reassigned to their original units and will be required to attend regular drills and summer training camp.

Mill Valley School Budget Due Monday

The Mill Valley School District board will consider its tentative $2.9 million 1969-70 budget at 8 p.m. Monday at Park School, 360 East Blithedale Avenue.

The trustees Monday also will receive Supt. James A. Collins' recommendations for salaries for teachers and other school employees for next year.

Panther Chief Denounces Cuba Complainer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Black Panther party's chairman says a man who complained in Havana that there is a revolutionary lag in the Cuban government is not a Black Panther as he claimed.

In a news conference on the Alameda County Courthouse steps Thursday, Panther chairman Bobby Seale asserted that Raymond Johnson is "nothing but an agent for the fascist CIA and FBI."

Johnson, who was once a Southern University student in Louisiana, hijacked an airplane to Havana in 1968 and told the Associated Press on Wednesday that Panthers have been "isolated and imprisoned" in Cuba.

Seale said: "We found out yesterday that he went to Cuba by hijack, which is a good way for the fascist FBI pigs of America to cover up and try to make Cubans think that anyone who hijacks an airplane is not a destructive agent to the Cuban People's Socialist Government."

Pentagon Hit On Warheads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William S. Moorhead says the Pentagon quietly let contracts for work on a multiple warhead missile system while Congress debated whether work on the project should be halted.

Moorhead, D-Pa., and other congressmen have urged that testing of the multiple independently targeted reentry vehicles (MIRVs) be held up pending attempts to start disarmament talks with Moscow.

Moorhead said Thursday the Pentagon let the $88 million production contract last week to General Electric.

"The critical issue here is the fact that the Soviet Union, when it hears of the production conract, will naturally feel that our testing has been successful and we are sufficiently confident of the accuracy and reliability of the MIRV to enter into a contract to produce it," said Moorhead.

Home Burglarized At Marin Terrace

Stereo components valued at $496 were stolen sometime Monday from a home shared by two women at 240 Cleveland Avenue, Marin Terrace, Marin sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Sandy Lynn Tsegeletos and Glenda Ellen Vandergrift reported the burgler apparently entered the home through a kitchen window while they were at work.

ICE CREAM DREAM — Kelly Drake, 10, of 785 Skillman Lane, Petaluma, realized a dream come true when she won her weight in ice cream yesterday at the Sonoma-Marin Fair in Petaluma. A chubby youngster, Kelly went home with 44 half-gallons of assorted ice cream flavors. Helping Kelly balance the ice cream was Arthur Cerini, plant manager of the Petaluma Cooperative Creamery. Girl Hitchhiker Reports Trouble

An 18-year-old Sausalito girl, who hitchhiked a ride in Sausalito Wednesday, reported to sheriff's investigators the driver of the auto attempted to attack her after parking the car behind a bait shop.

The girl told investigators she was picked up about noon on Bridgeway by a man driving a purple sports car. She said he stopped the auto nearby and began mauling her. She was able to leap from the car and the attacker sped away.

The girl described the man as about 35, dressed in a greenish-brown suit, white shirt and yellow tie.

Nothing Of Value

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—One store owner here apparently has given up in a fight against crime. After the last break-in at his establishment, he placed a card in a broken window and addressed: "Thieves — don't bother to break in again. There's nothing of value left in the store anymore."

Chief Stresses Fireworks Ban

No fireworks are allowed in Marin County, either in cities or in unincorporated areas.

This reminder came today from Frank J. Buscher, president of the Marin County Fire Chiefs Association.

Buscher said that an advertisement in yesterday's Independent-Journal publicized a sale of fireworks at a Petaluma store.

While fireworks are permitted in Sonoma County, they are banned in Marin County, Buscher pointed out. The only fireworks displays allowed in Marin are public displays which have fire department permits.

A Marin County ordinance prohibits manufacturer, sale, or discharge of fireworks in unincorporated areas. Similar ordinances are in effect in each of the cities, said Buscher.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Excessive Thirst, Hunger And Fatigue Are Diabetes Warnings

VAN DELLEN

In diabetes, sugars and starches are not properly utilized due to an insulin deficiency. In some, the pancreas fails to manufacture enough; in others, the tissues tend to resist insulin. Most diabetics are over 40, fat, or have a family history of the disease.

The condition is suspected whenever there is excessive thirst, frequent urination, extreme hunger, and loss of weight. Unaccountable changes in vision, pain in the fingers and toes, or drowsiness and fatigue are other signals. Skin problems such as intense itching, slow healing of cuts, boils, and carbuncles may also indicate diabetes in an otherwise healthy person. There are many other warning signs that may or may not be signs of diabetes. When these are noted by the physician or dentist, additional tests usually are suggested.

BUT MANY diabetics are detected long before symptoms develop. One-third are found during routine insurance examinations. Others show up during an annual physical or screening program.

Why do we stress early detection and treatment with diet and insulin or oral anti-diabetic pills? Because uncontroled diabetes is associated with serious complications, such as hardening of the arteries, blindness, heart disease, and kidney disorders. Seven out of 10 die of blood vessel disease. Heart attacks are more common and high blood pressure not unusual. Poor cirulation often leads to gangrene.

Diabetes also affects the nervous system leading to numbness, tingling, and pain in the extremities with muscle tenderness. But there is more. Uncontroled diabetes not only provokes the symptoms mentioned previously, but leads to a severe acidosis is followed by coma and death.

TYPES OF EPILEPSY

L. R. writes: Is there more than one kind of epilepsy?

REPLY

Yes. Epilspsy is the name given to a numberof disorders that involve the nervous system. The signs and symptoms vary from convulsions with loss of consciousness to nonconvulsive seizures in which only slight changes in conscious awareness are noted. The main types are grand mal (major convulsions), petit mal (blackouts), focal seizures, and temporal lobe (psychomotor) epilepsy. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet describing the various forms of epilepsy.

CHILDREN AND TEA

Mrs. A. writes: Why is tea not recommended for children? My 4-year-old sipped some from my cup once when he was alone in the kitchen. Now he begs for it and it is hard to resist his pleading.

REPLY

Tea is a stimulant which children do not need. In addition, it might become a substitute for a more nourishing food, such as milk. I assumbe he begs for tea only when he sees you drinking a cupful. Why not flavor his milk with a little tea and let him drink it out of a cup.

WHY FLU MISSES SOME

A reader writes: Why are some people immune to flu and others get it so often? Even with the Hong Kong variety, some got it, but many escaped.

REPLY

Some people have more natural immunity against infection. Or perhaps they are not exposed so frequently as are those who seem to be highly susceptible. More than 100 organisms are capable of causing fluiike symptoms. Early this winter, many had Hong Kong flu, but unless certain tests were done, the exact cause is questionable.

FIBROIDS EXPLAINED

P. C. writes: Would you please discuss fibroids of the uterus? My doctor recently told me I had a fibroid but he did not explain the nature of such growths. Can they become malignant? I am told that many women have these and the information should be helpful to all of us.

REPLY

A fibroid is a tumor that involves the wall of the uterus. They never become cancerous but may cause symptoms such as bleeding. Large fibroids are best treated via surgery.

CYCLING AWAY CRAMPS

A reader writes: Recently my husband has been troubled with leg cramps at night. Do you think bicycle riding might help him?

REPLY

Cycling is worth a trial. Have him ride for two weeks, but suggest that he limit the activity to an hour each day. Is he taking diuretic medication? Quinine tablets may help if exercise fails to relieve the cramping.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Throw-In Play Is Also Needed Even At A Part Score Contract

It would be wrong to assume that the throw-in play is useful only when you are in game or slam contracts. You sometimes need help from the enemy at a part score contract, as we see in today's hand, taken from the 1967 world championship.

LOW HEART

Genito Garozzo, of the world championship Italian team, opened the four of hearts, and Toronto expert Eric Murray played low fromthe dummy. Pietro Forquet won with the jack and returned the king of hearts to dummy's ace.

Wisely leaving the trumps alone, Murray cashed the top diamonds and ruffed a diamond. Then he exited with a heart, throwing the opponents into the lead.

Garozzo considered ruffing but finally discarded a club, and Forquet won with the queen of hearts. A club return was obviously unsound, and Forquet didn't have a diamond. It was obvious that South had a doubtful trump suit and that a trump return would help him. East therefore returned another heart.

RUFFS IN DUMMY

Murray gratefully discarded a club, ruffing in dummy, and ruffed another diamond in his hand. But this time he had amassed six tricks. He therefore cashed the ace of clubs and got out with a club, thus executing a second throw-in play in the same hand.

PLAY LOW

Forquet won and led the four of spades, but Murray has no problem. He had the K-9-8 of spades in his own hand, with the J-7 in the dummy. He was sure of a trump trick and his contract if he simply played low.

Anderson, a charter member of the commission which was formed in 1963, said he was stepping aside to let other persons participate. Ehrhart resigned for business reasons.

The commission discussed the proposal that the Atheneum Arts Foundation be permitted to take over the top floor of Robson-Harrington mansion as headquarters but took no action saying it would investigate the legality of such a move with the city attorney.

HEY, OLIVER! I JUST INVENTED AN EVAPORATOR FOR THE SUGAR REFINING INDUSTRY
YOU'RE TOO LATE, NIPPER—NORBERT RILLIEUX ALREADY INVENTED THAT BACK IN THE MID 1840'S
HE INVENTED A VACUUM EVAPORATING PAN WHICH NOT ONLY REDUCED THE SUGAR INDUSTRY'S DEPENDENCE ON GANG LABOR, BUT ALSO HELPED MANUFACTURE A SUPERIOR PRODUCT AT GREATLY REDUCED COST
1969, The Register and Tribune Syndicate

WELL, BACK TO THE DRAWING BOARD!
MORRIE—
NORBERT RILLIEUX 1806-1894
HE LEFT BEHIND A SYSTEM WHICH IS IN UNIVERSAL USE THROUGHOUT THE SUGAR INDUSTRY AND IN THE MANUFACTURE OF SOAP, GLUE, GELATIN AND MANY OTHER PRODUCTS

A Routine Day In Life Of Pope Paul

By RAY MOSELEY

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The spiritual leader of 600 million Roman Catholics shares a simple apartment with three other men in one of the world's most magnificent palaces.

He seldom sleeps more than seven hours at night, but has a nap of one to two hours in the afternoon.

He is a light eater and usually has a glass of red wine with his meals.

He relaxes by taking walks, watching television, listening to music.

He is sometimes moody, worried and withdrawn. But he enjoys light-hearted banter when he is in cheerful mood, and he shows occasional flashes of wit that are seldom evident in public.

He reads himself to sleep at night, usually with books of philosophy, theology or science.

United Press International has pieced together these facets of a day in the life of Pope Paul VI from sources in the Vatican.

The pope, who is 71, usually arises at 6:30 a.m. He shaves himself, has a shower and is dressed by 7 a.m.

Then he goes to his private chapel, adjoining his bedroom, and celebrates Mass. Afterwards the two secretaries who share the papal apartments, Rt. Rev. Msgrs. Pasquale Macchi and Msgr. Bruno Bossi, each says Mass with the Pope attending.

Sometimes they are joined at this service by the fourth resident of the apartment, Milan architect Dandolo Bellini. Bellini, a layman of about 45 who has taken religious vows, met the Pope when Paul was Cardinal Giovanni Battista Montini, archbishop of Milan.

When Paul was elected in 1963 he invited Bellini to join his "family" at the Vatican. Bellini, who lives in an attic room above the Pope's chambers when he is in Rome, counseled the Pope on a number of architectural renovations to the apostolic palace.

At about 8:30 a.m. the Pope, his secretaries and Bellini sit down to a hurried breakfast of milk, coffee, bread, butter and jam. They glance through the morning's Italian newspapers and discuss the day's news.

Then at 8:45 a.m., the Pope goes to his study and prepares for the day's audiences.

French Cardinal Jean Villot, the papal secretary of state, is his first visitor on four mornings of the week. On the other mornings, the honor goes to Rt. Rev. Msgr. Giovanni Benelli, the undersecretary of state, and then to Rt. Rev. Msgr. Agostino Casaroli, secretary of the council for public affairs of the church.

The Pope devotes most of his morning to audiences — with cardinals who head congregations or departments of the Roman curia, prelates visiting Catholic laymen and even many from abroad, world statesmen, non-Catholics.

If the audience schedule is light the Pope may spend part of the morning working on speeches, although this work usually comes later in the day.

Vatican sources estimated the Pope writes — in longhand — 70 per cent of his own speeches, and instructs the secreariat of state on what he wants to say in other speeches written by the secretariat.

At 1:30 p.m., the Pope and his secretaries have lunch. Uusually, the Pope starts with a broth, goes on to veal, chicken or fish and finishes with fresh fruit. His favorite wine is Folonari, a north Italian red wine produced by a distant relative. He also has mineral water with his meals.

Lunch is usually a light-hearted affair. Msgr. Bossi, who has a lively sense of humor, often regales the Pontiff with his anecdotes. But if the Pope is depressed, as he has been often in recent months because of the crisis of obedience in the church, Msgr. Bossi remains quiet.

On holidays the Pope always invites a friend, relative or cardinal to lunch. He also may have guests at other times. French philosopher Jean Guitton, who wrote a book on his conversations with the Pope, has lunched with the Pontiff several times.

After lunch the Pope goes to his chapel to recite prayers. Then he takes a nap.

If the nap is a long one, the Pope has coffee when he awakens and then sits back to read the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, which has just come off the presses.

The Pope is displeased when he spots mistakes in the newspaper, and he often marks corrections in the margins with a red pencil and sends them to the editors.

He also has tried to curb the high-flown langauge of the newspaper. In February 1964, seven months after his election, Paul saw a headline in L'Osservatore Roman which read: "Sublime Allocution of the Holy Father."

He penned a note to an aide: "Ask L'Osservatore Romano not to put eulogistic adjectives before references to speeches of the Pope." The world "sublime" hasn't been used in L'Osservatore since.

After reading the newspaper the Pope turns to a vast assortment of documents sent to him at 2 p.m.

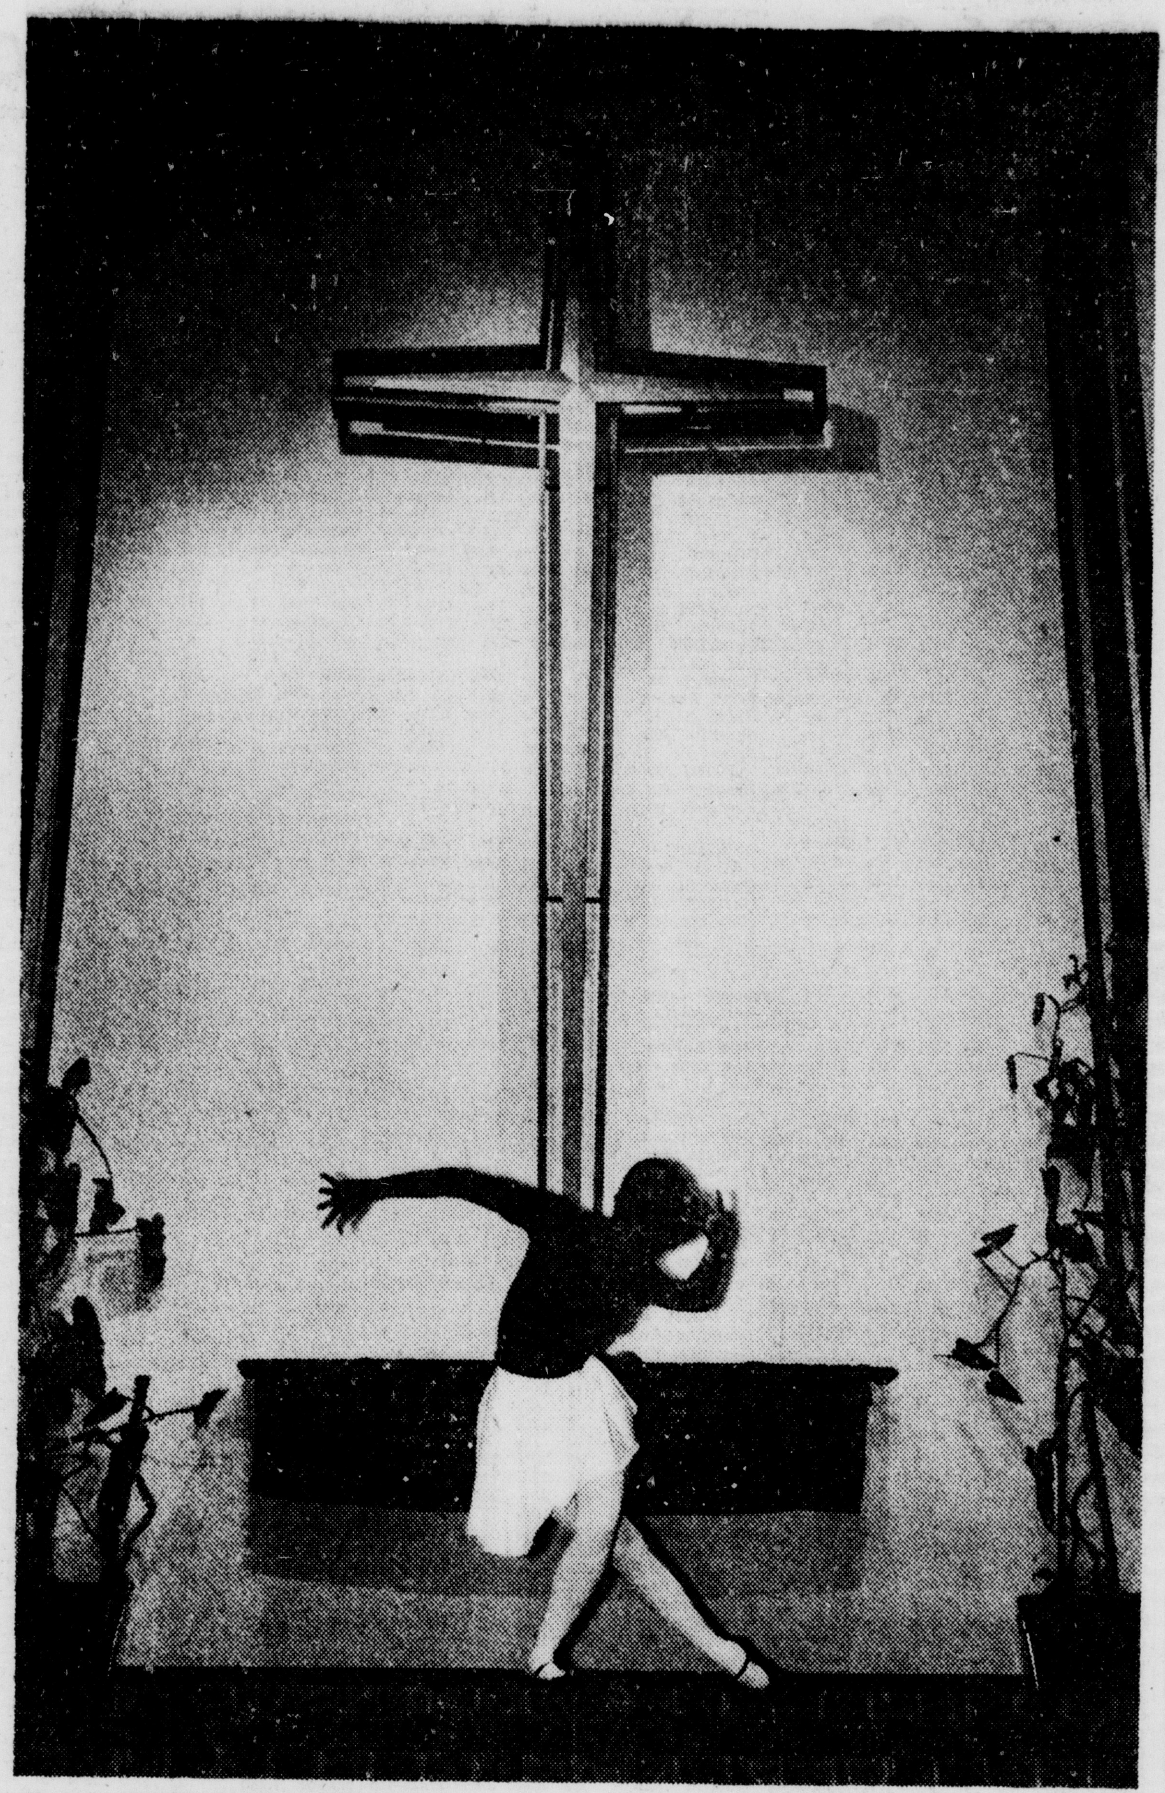
The Pope's afternoon also may include further audiences with Vatican officials.

He quits work and sits down to dinner promptly at 8:30 p.m. Telegiornale, the Italian television network's evening news program, comes on at this time and the Pope and his secretaries watch it as they eat. His dinner fare is usually only a variation of the things he has for lunch.

One of the Pope's few close friends sometimes drops by to chat during the dinner hour. He is a Rome physician, Dr. Ugo Piazza, who was a student at Rome University when Paul was an ecclesiastical assistant there in the late 1920s.

After the TV news program, the Pope sometimes watches a few minutes of a program of commercials called "Carousel."

Shortly after 9 p.m., the Pope goes to his chapel to recite the rosary. Then he retires to his study, and listens to classical, modern and sacred records on his hi-fi set while writing personal letters. Aides say the Pope is tone deaf but nonetheless enjoys music.



DANCERS TO PERFORM — A member of Margot Jones' Chico State College dance troupe performs in a church setting similar to ones she will perform in tomorrow at two Southern Marin churches.

New President For Concordia Seminary

NEW YORK (LC) — Dr. John H. Tietjen has accepted the presidency of Concordia Theological Seminary at St. Louis.

Dr. Tietjen, executive secretary of the public relations division of the Lutheran Council in the USA, said he expected to assume his new position early next fall.

He will succeed Dr. Alfred O. Fuerbringer, head of Concordia for 16 years, who has reached the mandatory retirement age of 65 for presidents of synodical institutions.

Dr. Fuerbringer will begin a sabbatical leave this summer and will return to the campus next year to serve the school in the area of public relations, recruitment and development.

Appreciation for Dr. Tietjen's service to the Lutheran Council was expressed by its general secretary, Dr. C. Thomas Spitz Jr., who said he had "demonstrated both sound churchmanship and superior leadership ability" in the discharge of his duties.

Dr. Tietjen,41, will become the sixth president of the 130-year-old seminary, affiliated with the 2.8 million - member Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. With 1,000 students, including some 600 undegraduates, it is the largest of a score of Lutheran seminaries and the largest demoninational seminary in America.

TRY MOBILE PULPIT TO 'BRIDGE GAP'

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD, England (AP) — A local churchman, Arthur Quincey, has built a mobile puplit and is offering the design to any clergymen who have difficulty in bridging the gap between themselves and small congregations in large churches where pulpits are a long way from the pews.

It costs less than $15 and can be made in under 10 hours, Quincey says.

The mobile pupit just hooks on toe the pews that are nearest to the congregation.

Cathedral Will Lose Old Pews

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The fixed walnut pews in use since Christ Church Episcopal Cathedral was opened in 1867 are coming out.

Repairs estimated to cost $300,000 have been started and the cathedral will be closed until late summer.

Movable wooden chairs will replace the pews. A spokesman said the alternations will make the nave as usable for presentation of concerts and plays as for formal worship.

Unorthodox

YORK, England (AP) — A plan to convert 11 churches that are no longer needed for worship into hotels, restaurants and other profit-making concerns to help the tourist trade has been rejected by the York Redundnat Churches Commission.

Bishop Bulldozes His Way For School Fund

PRINCE GEORGE, B. C. (UPI) — Bishop John Fergus O'Grady, prelate of British Columbia's largest diocese, is better known to his parishioners as the "Bulldozer Bishop."

As Roman Catholic Bishop of Prince George, O'Grady is charged with overseeing a sprawling bishopric covering 136,000 square miles of rugged northern terrain.

He earned his nickname shortly after coming here in 1956 when he decided the first thing the remote district needed was schools.

A determined Irishman, he set out to get the job done bulldozer style —riding over or through numerous obstacles.

NO RESOURCES

"When I arrived 13 years ago there were no resources because it was a frontier area," he explained in an interview.

"We had no assistance from the government and building costs were the highest in Canada."

Undaunted, the Bishop issued an appeal for — and got —donations of material for his schools.

There was also a lack of skilled labor, so Bishop O'Grady traveled across Canada luring volunteers into the B. C. interior with an offer of free room and board and $25 a month.

The prelate then went out and bought seven used bulldozers and, at times driving them himself, cleared tracts of bushland and forest for his school sites.

In less than three years he built badly needed schools at Prince Rupert, Kitimat, Terrace, New Hazelton, Smithers, Burns Lake, Vanderhoof, Fort St. James and three in Prince George.

TOURS NATION

Staffing the schools was another matter. So Bishop O'Grady formed the "Frontier Apostolate" and again toured the nation recruiting teachers. The offer remained the same — room, board, $25 monthly and a chance to help young Indians and frontier whites.

There were volunteer teachers galore for his version of the Peace Corps, Bishop O'Grady chuckled. Today the Frontier Apostolate continues to thrive with 180 lay people and 30 clergymen.

The Bishop now has moved on, to building inter-racial cooperation between whites and Indians. One-third of the Catholics in Northern B. C. are Indian.

His project is well under way at Prince George College here, the only integrated such school in Canada, with 77 Indian students and 93 whites.

In the other diocesan schools, about 500 Indian children mingle with some 2,500 white students.

"What is important about the Prince George College experiment is that whites and Indians are learning to live together as well as study together," Bishop O'Grady said.

ANOTHER PROJECT

Another integration project the Bishop is promoting is the Institute for Indian Research, Culture and Planning.

The idea grew out of a meeting last December between Bishop O'Grady and 22 chiefs and councillors from Indian bands in his diocese.

"The Indians want to integrate but they don't want to lose their identity," said the Bishop, who has been under considerable pressure from a "Red Power" movement to retain Indian rights in the process of integration.

"Through the institute, we hope to preserve their crafts and traditions," he said.

RESIGNS — Dr. Kyle M. Yates Jr., professor of Old Testament and Biblican Archaeology at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary since 1953, has resigned to accept a position as professor of religion at Oklahoma State University at Stillwater. Seminary President Harold K. Graves said archaeology courses formerly taught by Yates will be taught next year by Jack Finegan of the faculty of the Pacific School of Religion.

Service Will Mark Pipe Organ Signing

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 1123 Court, San Rafael, will hold a special service of prayer and thanksgiving at its 10 a.m. rites tomorrow in connection with placing order for a $20,000 pipe organ.

The service will consist of the ceremonial signing of the contract with Swain and Kates, Inc. of San Francisco for the 1,000-pipe organ.

MUSIC, ART, DANCE

Ecumenical Program Will Benefit OGAD

An ecumenical program of art, dance, poetry and folk music to benefit Operation Give A Damn (OGAD) in Marin City will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Community Congregational Church, 145 Rock Hill Drive, Tiburon.

The program is being co-sponsored by Community Congregational of Belvedere-Tiburon, St. Stephen's Episcopal Parish in Tiburon and the Westminister Presbyterian Church.

It will feature poetry readings by Bay Area actor Tom Leith, dances by Margot Jones' dance group from Chico State College and songs by Marin County folk singer Harriet Carter. Paintings by Masayo Huse will be exhibited at the church.

The appearance of Miss Jones' group will be the second for the group in Southern Marin tomorrow. The group will perform at the 10 a.m. worship service at St. Andrew Presbyterian Church in Marin City.

Miss Jones has been director of cultural development at St. Andrew for two years.

Laymen To Fill Novato Pulpit

Two members of the congregation will fill the pulpit at both the 8:30 and 10:55 a.m. services for the next two Sundays at the Novato United Methodist Church at 1473 South Novato Boulevard.

Dr. Arthur Ravicz, chemical engineer for Standard Oil Co., will be the speaker at both services tomorrow. Novato City Councilman Joseph D. Gargiulo, principal of the North Marin High School, will conduct services July 6.

Rev. Leo W. Hamilton, is on vacation.

Church Women

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — The Church is becoming a feminine movement with many more women joining than men according to a survey issued gy the (Presbyterian) Church of Scotland. The survey showed that 65 per cent of recruits under 21 and 53 per cent of those over 21 were women.

Prize Film Will Be Shown Tomorrow

"Beloved Enemy," winner of the National Evangelical Film Foundation film of the year award will be presented at a public showing at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the North Marin Assembly of God, 1370 South Novato Boulevard in Novato.

It is a story of a young couple. The young man is a space-age scientist who is rejected by the girl he loves because of his unbelief. He tries to disprove the diety of Christ, but becomes convinced of the truth of the Bible.

Elects Leader

STUTTGART, Germany (LWF) — The 2,700,000-member Lutheran Church of Wuerttemberg, Germany, has elected Dr. Helmeut Class, 59, as its bishop. Dr. Class, a senior official of the church, succeeds Bishop Erich Eichele, who will retire in July.

In less than three years he built badly needed schools at Prince Rupert, Kitimat, Terrace, New Hazelton, Smithers, Burns Lake, Vanderhoof, Fort St. James and three in Prince George.

TOURS NATION

Staffing the schools was another matter. So Bishop O'Grady formed the "Frontier Apostolate" and again toured the nation recruiting teachers. The offer remained the same — room, board, $25 monthly and a chance to help young Indians and frontier whites.

There were volunteer teachers galore for his version of the Peace Corps, Bishop O'Grady chuckled. Today the Frontier Apostolate continues to thrive with 180 lay people and 30 clergymen.

The Bishop now has moved on, to building inter-racial cooperation between whites and Indians. One-third of the Catholics in Northern B. C. are Indian.

His project is well under way at Prince George College here, the only integrated such school in Canada, with 77 Indian students and 93 whites.

In the other diocesan schools, about 500 Indian children mingle with some 2,500 white students.

"What is important about the Prince George College experiment is that whites and Indians are learning to live together as well as study together," Bishop O'Grady said.

ANOTHER PROJECT

Another integration project the Bishop is promoting is the Institute for Indian Research, Culture and Planning.

The idea grew out of a meeting last December between Bishop O'Grady and 22 chiefs and councillors from Indian bands in his diocese.

"The Indians want to integrate but they don't want to lose their identity," said the Bishop, who has been under considerable pressure from a "Red Power" movement to retain Indian rights in the process of integration.

"Through the institute, we hope to preserve their crafts and traditions," he said.

New President For Concordia Seminary

NEW YORK (LC) — Dr. John H. Tietjen has accepted the presidency of Concordia Theological Seminary at St. Louis.

Dr. Tietjen, executive secretary of the public relations division of the Lutheran Council in the USA, said he expected to assume his new position early next fall.

He will succeed Dr. Alfred O. Fuerbringer, head of Concordia for 16 years, who has reached the mandatory retirement age of 65 for presidents of synodical institutions.

Dr. Fuerbringer will begin a sabbatical leave this summer and will return to the campus next year to serve the school in the area of public relations, recruitment and development.

Appreciation for Dr. Tietjen's service to the Lutheran Council was expressed by its general secretary, Dr. C. Thomas Spitz Jr., who said he had "demonstrated both sound churchmanship and superior leadership ability" in the discharge of his duties.

Dr. Tietjen,41, will become the sixth president of the 130-year-old seminary, affiliated with the 2.8 million - member Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. With 1,000 students, including some 600 undegraduates, it is the largest of a score of Lutheran seminaries and the largest demoninational seminary in America.

TRY MOBILE PULPIT TO 'BRIDGE GAP'

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD, England (AP) — A local churchman, Arthur Quincey, has built a mobile puplit and is offering the design to any clergymen who have difficulty in bridging the gap between themselves and small congregations in large churches where pulpits are a long way from the pews.

It costs less than $15 and can be made in under 10 hours, Quincey says.

The mobile pupit just hooks on toe the pews that are nearest to the congregation.

Cathedral Will Lose Old Pews

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The fixed walnut pews in use since Christ Church Episcopal Cathedral was opened in 1867 are coming out.

Repairs estimated to cost $300,000 have been started and the cathedral will be closed until late summer.

Movable wooden chairs will replace the pews. A spokesman said the alternations will make the nave as usable for presentation of concerts and plays as for formal worship.

Prize Film Will Be Shown Tomorrow

"Beloved Enemy," winner of the National Evangelical Film Foundation film of the year award will be presented at a public showing at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the North Marin Assembly of God, 1370 South Novato Boulevard in Novato.

It is a story of a young couple. The young man is a space-age scientist who is rejected by the girl he loves because of his unbelief. He tries to disprove the diety of Christ, but becomes convinced of the truth of the Bible.

STUTTGART, Germany (LWF) — The 2,700,000-member Lutheran Church of Wuerttemberg, Germany, has elected Dr. Helmeut Class, 59, as its bishop. Dr. Class, a senior official of the church, succeeds Bishop Erich Eichele, who will retire in July.

LIKES TV, MUSIC

A Routine Day In Life Of Pope Paul

By RAY MOSELEY

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The spiritual leader of 600 million Roman Catholics shares a simple apartment with three other men in one of the world's most magnificent palaces.

He seldom sleeps more than seven hours at night, but has a nap of one to two hours in the afternoon.

He is a light eater and usually has a glass of red wine with his meals.

He relaxes by taking walks, watching television, listening to music.

He is sometimes moody, worried and withdrawn. But he enjoys light-hearted banter when he is in cheerful mood, and he shows occasional flashes of wit that are seldom evident in public.

He reads himself to sleep at night, usually with books of philosophy, theology or science.

United Press International has pieced together these facets of a day in the life of Pope Paul VI from sources in the Vatican.

The pope, who is 71, usually arises at 6:30 a.m. He shaves himself, has a shower and is dressed by 7 a.m.

Then he goes to his private chapel, adjoining his bedroom, and celebrates Mass. Afterwards the two secretaries who share the papal apartments, Rt. Rev. Msgrs. Pasquale Macchi and Msgr. Bruno Bossi, each says Mass with the Pope attending.

Sometimes they are joined at this service by the fourth resident of the apartment, Milan architect Dandolo Bellini. Bellini, a layman of about 45 who has taken religious vows, met the Pope when Paul was Cardinal Giovanni Battista Montini, archbishop of Milan.

When Paul was elected in 1963 he invited Bellini to join his "family" at the Vatican. Bellini, who lives in an attic room above the Pope's chambers when he is in Rome, counseled the Pope on a number of architectural renovations to the apostolic palace.

At about 8:30 a.m. the Pope, his secretaries and Bellini sit down to a hurried breakfast of milk, coffee, bread, butter and jam. They glance through the morning's Italian newspapers and discuss the day's news.

Then at 8:45 a.m., the Pope goes to his study and prepares for the day's audiences.

French Cardinal Jean Villot, the papal secretary of state, is his first visitor on four mornings of the week. On the other mornings, the honor goes to Rt. Rev. Msgr. Giovanni Benelli, the undersecretary of state, and then to Rt. Rev. Msgr. Agostino Casaroli, secretary of the council for public affairs of the church.

The Pope devotes most of his morning to audiences — with cardinals who head congregations or departments of the Roman curia, prelates visiting Catholic laymen and even many from abroad, world statesmen, non-Catholics.

If the audience schedule is light the Pope may spend part of the morning working on speeches, although this work usually comes later in the day.

Vatican sources estimated the Pope writes — in longhand — 70 per cent of his own speeches, and instructs the secreariat of state on what he wants to say in other speeches written by the secretariat.

At 1:30 p.m., the Pope and his secretaries have lunch. Uusually, the Pope starts with a broth, goes on to veal, chicken or fish and finishes with fresh fruit. His favorite wine is Folonari, a north Italian red wine produced by a distant relative. He also has mineral water with his meals.

Lunch is usually a light-hearted affair. Msgr. Bossi, who has a lively sense of humor, often regales the Pontiff with his anecdotes. But if the Pope is depressed, as he has been often in recent months because of the crisis of obedience in the church, Msgr. Bossi remains quiet.

On holidays the Pope always invites a friend, relative or cardinal to lunch. He also may have guests at other times. French philosopher Jean Guitton, who wrote a book on his conversations with the Pope, has lunched with the Pontiff several times.

After lunch the Pope goes to his chapel to recite prayers. Then he takes a nap.

If the nap is a long one, the Pope has coffee when he awakens and then sits back to read the Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, which has just come off the presses.

The Pope is displeased when he spots mistakes in the newspaper, and he often marks corrections in the margins with a red pencil and sends them to the editors.

He also has tried to curb the high-flown langauge of the newspaper. In February 1964, seven months after his election, Paul saw a headline in L'Osservatore Roman which read: "Sublime Allocution of the Holy Father."

He penned a note to an aide: "Ask L'Osservatore Romano not to put eulogistic adjectives before references to speeches of the Pope." The world "sublime" hasn't been used in L'Osservatore since.

After reading the newspaper the Pope turns to a vast assortment of documents sent to him at 2 p.m.

The Pope's afternoon also may include further audiences with Vatican officials.

He quits work and sits down to dinner promptly at 8:30 p.m. Telegiornale, the Italian television network's evening news program, comes on at this time and the Pope and his secretaries watch it as they eat. His dinner fare is usually only a variation of the things he has for lunch.

One of the Pope's few close friends sometimes drops by to chat during the dinner hour. He is a Rome physician, Dr. Ugo Piazza, who was a student at Rome University when Paul was an ecclesiastical assistant there in the late 1920s.

After the TV news program, the Pope sometimes watches a few minutes of a program of commercials called "Carousel."

Shortly after 9 p.m., the Pope goes to his chapel to recite the rosary. Then he retires to his study, and listens to classical, modern and sacred records on his hi-fi set while writing personal letters. Aides say the Pope is tone deaf but nonetheless enjoys music.

Bishop Bulldozes His Way For School Fund

PRINCE GEORGE, B. C. (UPI) — Bishop John Fergus O'Grady, prelate of British Columbia's largest diocese, is better known to his parishioners as the "Bulldozer Bishop."

As Roman Catholic Bishop of Prince George, O'Grady is charged with overseeing a sprawling bishopric covering 136,000 square miles of rugged northern terrain.

He earned his nickname shortly after coming here in 1956 when he decided the first thing the remote district needed was schools.

A determined Irishman, he set out to get the job done bulldozer style —riding over or through numerous obstacles.

NO RESOURCES

"When I arrived 13 years ago there were no resources because it was a frontier area," he explained in an interview.

"We had no assistance from the government and building costs were the highest in Canada."

Undaunted, the Bishop issued an appeal for — and got —donations of material for his schools.

There was also a lack of skilled labor, so Bishop O'Grady traveled across Canada luring volunteers into the B. C. interior with an offer of free room and board and $25 a month.

The prelate then went out and bought seven used bulldozers and, at times driving them himself, cleared tracts of bushland and forest for his school sites.

In less than three years he built badly needed schools at Prince Rupert, Kitimat, Terrace, New Hazelton, Smithers, Burns Lake, Vanderhoof, Fort St. James and three in Prince George.

Staffing the schools was another matter. So Bishop O'Grady formed the "Frontier Apostolate" and again toured the nation recruiting teachers. The offer remained the same — room, board, $25 monthly and a chance to help young Indians and frontier whites.

Ashe, Laver Win At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., playing his best tennis of the tournament, reached the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon Open tournament today by eliminating a tiring Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Gonzales' dream of winning Wimbledon at the age of 41 was thus shattered. He showed signs of strain after five straight days of strenuous singles play.

Stan Smith, the towering U.S. Davis Cupper from Los Angeles, gave Rod Laver, the reigning champion, the fright of his life by taking a couple of sets off him on an outside court.

But Laver pulled his game together just in time to scrape through into the quarter-final 6-4, 6-2, 7-9, 3-6, 6-3 in a seesaw match that looked in doubt almost until the last shot.

Ashe still served at three-quarters his old speed, but his backhand was deadly. It was the shot that contributed most to Gonzales' downfall.

Gonzales, still a hero after his epic victory over Charlie Pasarell in the 112-games thriller earlier this week, was the favorite with the sell-out crowd of 15,000 on the center court. The Duke and Duchess of Kent watched from the royal box.

Gonzales thrilled the crowd with some choice shots and a service break at the start of the second set. He closed the set, winning three straight service games to love, and the one break was enough to level the match.

But in the third set the first signs of fatigue began to show. Ashe hit two fine backhand service returns past him in the sixth game and Gonzales, to groans from the crowd, missed with a half-hearted volley and then double-faulted to drop service.

Gonzales was never seriously in the match again. Ashe's backhand raked in the points, while old Pancho became slower and slower.

Laver, the No 1 seed here, started in his most devastating form. Laver's pinpoint accuracy left Smith stranded time after time as the Australian got a seventh game break for the first set, then ran rings round Smith with a couple of early breaks in the second.

At that point, the third set looked like being nothing more than a formality.

Smith moved ahead 8-7, then broke Laver, sending two scorching backhands right down the sideline. He then caught Laver going the wrong way with another backhand to snatch the set at 9-7.

Smith took a 3-0 lead in the fourth set and with Laver unable to stop Smith's service with any confidence, won the set 6-3.

The first three games of the final set went to service, giving Laver a 2-1 advantage. Then the Australian forced Smith into a couple of errors and with a delicate cross court drive he made the break for a 3-1 lead.

And that was the end for Smith. He still fought hard but he just couldn't gain back that game on Laver's service to get back into the game.

Giants Skid, A's First

Juan Can't Stop Double Trouble

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Even ace Juan Marichal couldn't brake the skid of the San Francisco Giants to their lowest depths this season.

Under a barrage of home runs by Pete Rose, Bobby Tolan and Lee May, the Giants dropped a 4-3, 9-1 doubleheader to the Cincinnati Reds last night and dropped to fifth place in the National League West, half a game behind the surging Houston Astros who beat Atlanta.

The Giants managed only a double by Hal Lanier and singles by Ken Henderson and Marichal off three Reds pitchers in the opener and six hits in the nightcap off lefty Jim Merritt, now 8-3.

PERRY TO PITCH

Gaylord Perry (9-6) goes against Jack Fisher (2-1) in the fourth game of the series tonight. The teams wind up with a single game tomorrow afternoon.

Rose tagged a two-run homer off Marichal in the eighth inning, drove in the Reds' first run in the sixth with a single and collected three of the eight hits off Marichal who suffered his third loss against nine wins.

Lanier's double and Marichal's single had given the Giants a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning. San Francisco got its final two runs in the ninth on an error and Ron Hunt's sacrifice fly.

FIVE-RUN RALLY

Clay Carroll of Cincinnati improved his record to 11-3 by winning the first game with a 2 1-3 inning relief stint.

Rich Robertson (1-2) of the Giants was bombed out in the second inning of the nightcap when the Reds erupted for five runs. Tolan's three-run homer in the inning came off reliever Ray Sadecki. Tolan's single and May's 22nd homer of the season added two more runs in the fourth for Cincinnati.

A double by Bob Burda and Don Mason's single in the seventh ruined Merritt's bid for a shutout. Mason collected two singles to pace the Giants feeble attack.

Odom Gets Tenth With 1-0 Victory

OAKLAND (AP) — Manager Hank Bauer of the Oakland Athletics has his team back in first place today in the American League West Division but he didn't enjoy the game that got them there.

The A's regained first by defeating the Chicago White Sox 1-0 with an unearned run in the eighth inning last night.

John "Blue Moon" Odom won his 10th game of the season, which puts him a little ahead of his schedule for the season. Odom hoped to have 12 victories before the major league all-star game July 22.

"After that, I would like to win as many games as I did last year, 16, and then go for 20 after that," Odom said.

Odom struck out six and walked only two. Bauer said Odom's good control was the difference in the game.

Chicago had only one scoring chance against Odom. Gale Hopkins was credited with a triple in the seventh inning when centerfielder Rick Monday dropped his long fly after colliding with rightfielder Reggie Jackson.

Chicago Manager Don Gutteridge sent in speedy Ken Berry to run for Hopkins, but Berry was thrown out trying to score on a bouncer to second base.

"It took a perfect play to get him at the plate. It was the eighth inning and we had to try and score," Gutteridge said.

Oakland's run was the first off Chicago rookie Bill Wynne in 21 innings. Wynne suffered his first major league defeat after winning two.

South Marin DiMaggio Loop Leaders Battle

Annex Motors, all alone by a healthy mile in the North Marin division of the Joe DiMaggio League, gets a well-deserved bye in tomorrow's action but the leaders in South Marin will be at it again.

The Italian Club, in second place, meets San Anselmo at Drake High and the third-place Mill Valley Chiefs battle Herb's Pool Service at Marin Catholic. Ray Leach Skies In NCAA Golf

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — College boys scrambling for the crown at the 72nd NCAA Golf Championships today are going to have to beat one another. They can't seem to beat the golf course.

They don't have a prayer now of getting close to the par of 280 for 72 holes on the Broadmoor layout, 6,600 feet above sea level.

AVOIDED TROUBLE

The leader going into the final lap is Wayne McDonald, an Indiana University player from Toronto, Canada. He plugged away yesterday for a commendable 72 and a 54-hole showing of 223, 13 over par.

McDonald, 21-year-old junior playing in his first NCAA tournament, said "I hit the ball well and avoided trouble—I got the shots I wanted to hit."

Bracketed on McDonald's heels are the 36-hole leader, Novato's Ray Leach of Brigham Young University; Terry Diehl of Georgia, and Bob Clark of California State at Los Angeles, all at 224.

LEACH HAS 81

Leach blew to an 81 yesterday. Wake Forest, although its top scorer, Joe Inman, was six strokes behind McDonald, grabbed a five-shot edge in the battle for the team title with 923. Florida's defending champions posted 928 and Houston 929 in a bid for the Texan's 11th team championship since 1956.

As some idea of the frustrations that collegians have suffered this week, only two players have broken par. Leach and Marty Huguet of Louisiana State, both freshmen, shot one-under 69s Thursday.

Only one other has equalled par, John Jackson of Arizona State, with a 70 in the second round.

Varied Cast For State Golf Semis

PEBBLE BEACH (UPI)—Take a druggist, a teen-ager, an attorney and a quarterback and you have the cast of characters in today's semi-finals of the California Amateur Golf championship over 36 holes.

The teen-ager, 19-year-old Forrest Fezler of San Jose, met Los Angeles barrister Dick Runkle in one match and Concord druggist Steve Stimac, a 54-year-old veteran of many state golfing wars, took on John Brodie, quarterback for the San Francisco Forty Niners.

Today's winners engage in another 36-hole battle for the title tomorrow. They all gained their coveted berths in the bracket of four through different means.

Brodie beat back veteran Bill Colm of Pebble Beach, 4 and 3, and then tripped Los Angeles Bud Bradley, low amateur in the recent United States Open at Houston, 2 up, in a see-saw battle.

The correct address for reservations to the Marin 49er Goldrushers Luncheon at Dominic's Restaurant in San Rafael July 7 is Box 888, Tiburon, not Box 88, as incorrectly stated in yesterday's sports section of the Independent-Journal.

Coody Hottest Pro Going After 64 In Cleveland Golf

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Charles Coody, the hottest item on the pro golf tour, held a whopping, four-stroke lead going into today's third round of the Cleveland Open, but he's not about to spend the $22,000 first place prize yet.

"There's 36 holes to go," he said yesterday after matching the Aurora County Club course record with a six-under-par 64 that gave him a four-stroke lead at 131.

"There's a lot of players who still have a good shot at it.

"I learned about nine weeks ago that a tournament isn't over until the last putt drops.

"That was at Augusta, Ga., in the Masters. I had the lead in the final round standing on the 16th tee. And I finished with three straight bogeys."

Coody, a 6-foot-2 Texan whose only tour victory was the 1964 Dallas Open, tied the low 36 holes on the tour this year and now is a fantastic 17 under par for his last three rounds. He had a final round 65, seven-under-par in the Kemper Open last week, finishing second to Dale Douglass.

John Schlee and Bruce Crampton shared second place at 135, each with a second round 66. Jim Colbert, who played with Crampton and traded some words with the transplated Australian over slow play, was alone in fourth place at 136. He had a second-round 67.

Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael skied to a 75 after an opening day 69.

MAKE IT FIVE

Tommy Aaron, 67, and George Hixon, 70, followed at 138. Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, the games two greatest names, made minor rallies and each vowed they would once again get their games in shape.

Palmer birdied his last three holes, on putts of 15, 25 and 20 feet, for a 69 and 143.

"I haven't made three putts in a row like that in two years," he said, then reconsidered. "Three years, four years. Make it five years.

"I'll get it back. I thought I had it back early this week. I don't know where or when it will be, but I'll get it back."

LIKE AN IDIOT

Nicklaus had a 68 for 141, despite bogeys on his last two holes.

"I played the last two like an idiot," the Golden Bear said. "It was ridiculous. I was going along fine, could have been shooting a 66, then I lost my concentration. But things are improving. It may be a week, it may be a month, it may be two months, but it'll come around."

Coody had no such problems.

"These last three rounds I've had a real good feeling with the putter. I feel like I can make every putt," he said.

"It wasn't quite that good but it was close.

"The only putt I missed that I should have made was on No. 5," he said. He had caught a trap on that hole, blasted out and missed a 10 footer for his only bogey. Six of his seven birdies came on radar putts of 15, 12, 35, 10, 25 and 15 feet. He pitched to within three feet for the other.

It took a score of 145 to make the cut for the final two rounds, with U.S. Open champion Orville Moody and Lee Trevino just making it. Moody had a fat 78 and Trevino 74, each at 145.

Among the casualties were former Masters champions Gay Brewer and Bob Gaolby, Brewer at 146 and Goalby at 152. Tour winners Dale Douglass, 146, Larry Hinson, 148, and Deane Beman, 152, also missed.

ALL-AMERICA GAME

West Has Backfield Edge Without O. J.

ATLANTA (AP) — Eugene "Mercury" Morris, powerful Paul Gipson and Bill "Earthquake" Enyart—overshadowed as running backs by O. J. Simpson last fall—get their shot at glory tonight.

Simpson, Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California, is skipping the ninth annual Coaches All-America Game because he has not signed a pro contract, so the trio of hard-running football players will be spotlighted.

Morris, West Texas State standout who is the NCAA's all-time rushing leader with 3,388 yards, gained 1,598 yards running last season. Gipson picked up 1,550 yards for Houston, and Enyart rushed for 1,304 yards for Oregon State.

All three will be running for the West in the all-star battle in hot, muggy Atlanta Stadium.

Kickoff for the game, which will be nationally televised by ABC-TV, will be at 5:30 p.m. Pacific Coast Time.

THE DIFFERENCE

The West's running attack has been singled out as the probable difference in the teams, with both the East and West boasting sturdy defenses.

West Coach Pepper Rodgers of Kansas thinks his running attack is as strong as he has ever seen, with Morris, Gipson and Enyart all impressive in workouts.

Biggest drawback for the three runners, however, could be the heat. Temperatures are expected to be around 90 degrees at the kickoff.

Gipson is the man most Georgians will be watching because he riddled the University of Georgia's defenses the past two years, gaining more than 230 yards rushing each time against the Bulldogs.

PASSING

The 195-pound runner will play for the Atlanta Falcons. Morris, stubby native of Pittsburgh, has signed with the Miami Dolphins, and Enyart will play pro football with the Buffalo Bills, the team that still is trying to get Simpson to come to terms.

The East—coached by Joe Paterno of Penn State is counting on passers Marty Domres of Columbia and Buster O'Brien of Richmond to offset the West's running power. Bobby Douglass of Kansas and Ed Hargett of Texas A&M will direct the West.

Sayers Signs Multi-Year Pact With Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Halfback Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears has signed a multi-year contract, George Halas, owner of the National Football League club, revealed yesterday

Halas, who recently returned from England after undergoing hip surgery, said "the session was amicable, in fact, a real pleasure.

"We got the business out of the way in a hurry," said Halas. "Gale is pleased and so am I. It's a pleasure to once again sign this great football player."

Terms of the pact were not revealed, but it was learned that Sayers signed a three-year contract at $75,000 a year.

Ashe, Laver Win At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., playing his best tennis of the tournament, reached the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon Open tournament today by eliminating a tiring Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Gonzales' dream of winning Wimbledon at the age of 41 was thus shattered. He showed signs of strain after five straight days of strenuous singles play.

Stan Smith, the towering U.S. Davis Cupper from Los Angeles, gave Rod Laver, the reigning champion, the fright of his life by taking a couple of sets off him on an outside court.

But Laver pulled his game together just in time to scrape through into the quarter-final 6-4, 6-2, 7-9, 3-6, 6-3 in a seesaw match that looked in doubt almost until the last shot.

Ashe still served at three-quarters his old speed, but his backhand was deadly. It was the shot that contributed most to Gonzales' downfall.

Gonzales, still a hero after his epic victory over Charlie Pasarell in the 112-games thriller earlier this week, was the favorite with the sell-out crowd of 15,000 on the center court. The Duke and Duchess of Kent watched from the royal box.

Gonzales thrilled the crowd with some choice shots and a service break at the start of the second set. He closed the set, winning three straight service games to love, and the one break was enough to level the match.

But in the third set the first signs of fatigue began to show. Ashe hit two fine backhand service returns past him in the sixth game and Gonzales, to groans from the crowd, missed with a half-hearted volley and then double-faulted to drop service.

Gonzales was never seriously in the match again. Ashe's backhand raked in the points, while old Pancho became slower and slower.

Laver, the No 1 seed here, started in his most devastating form. Laver's pinpoint accuracy left Smith stranded time after time as the Australian got a seventh game break for the first set, then ran rings round Smith with a couple of early breaks in the second.

At that point, the third set looked like being nothing more than a formality.

Smith moved ahead 8-7, then broke Laver, sending two scorching backhands right down the sideline. He then caught Laver going the wrong way with another backhand to snatch the set at 9-7.

Smith took a 3-0 lead in the fourth set and with Laver unable to stop Smith's service with any confidence, won the set 6-3.

The first three games of the final set went to service, giving Laver a 2-1 advantage. Then the Australian forced Smith into a couple of errors and with a delicate cross court drive he made the break for a 3-1 lead.

And that was the end for Smith. He still fought hard but he just couldn't gain back that game on Laver's service to get back into the game.

Giants Skid, A's First

Juan Can't Stop Double Trouble

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Even ace Juan Marichal couldn't brake the skid of the San Francisco Giants to their lowest depths this season.

Under a barrage of home runs by Pete Rose, Bobby Tolan and Lee May, the Giants dropped a 4-3, 9-1 doubleheader to the Cincinnati Reds last night and dropped to fifth place in the National League West, half a game behind the surging Houston Astros who beat Atlanta.

The Giants managed only a double by Hal Lanier and singles by Ken Henderson and Marichal off three Reds pitchers in the opener and six hits in the nightcap off lefty Jim Merritt, now 8-3.

PERRY TO PITCH

Gaylord Perry (9-6) goes against Jack Fisher (2-1) in the fourth game of the series tonight. The teams wind up with a single game tomorrow afternoon.

Rose tagged a two-run homer off Marichal in the eighth inning, drove in the Reds' first run in the sixth with a single and collected three of the eight hits off Marichal who suffered his third loss against nine wins.

Lanier's double and Marichal's single had given the Giants a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning. San Francisco got its final two runs in the ninth on an error and Ron Hunt's sacrifice fly.

FIVE-RUN RALLY

Clay Carroll of Cincinnati improved his record to 11-3 by winning the first game with a 2 1-3 inning relief stint.

Rich Robertson (1-2) of the Giants was bombed out in the second inning of the nightcap when the Reds erupted for five runs. Tolan's three-run homer in the inning came off reliever Ray Sadecki. Tolan's single and May's 22nd homer of the season added two more runs in the fourth for Cincinnati.

A double by Bob Burda and Don Mason's single in the seventh ruined Merritt's bid for a shutout. Mason collected two singles to pace the Giants feeble attack.

Odom Gets Tenth With 1-0 Victory

OAKLAND (AP) — Manager Hank Bauer of the Oakland Athletics has his team back in first place today in the American League West Division but he didn't enjoy the game that got them there.

The A's regained first by defeating the Chicago White Sox 1-0 with an unearned run in the eighth inning last night.

John "Blue Moon" Odom won his 10th game of the season, which puts him a little ahead of his schedule for the season. Odom hoped to have 12 victories before the major league all-star game July 22.

"After that, I would like to win as many games as I did last year, 16, and then go for 20 after that," Odom said.

Odom struck out six and walked only two. Bauer said Odom's good control was the difference in the game.

Chicago had only one scoring chance against Odom. Gale Hopkins was credited with a triple in the seventh inning when centerfielder Rick Monday dropped his long fly after colliding with rightfielder Reggie Jackson.

Chicago Manager Don Gutteridge sent in speedy Ken Berry to run for Hopkins, but Berry was thrown out trying to score on a bouncer to second base.

"It took a perfect play to get him at the plate. It was the eighth inning and we had to try and score," Gutteridge said.

Oakland's run was the first off Chicago rookie Bill Wynne in 21 innings. Wynne suffered his first major league defeat after winning two.

Ray Leach Skies In NCAA Golf

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — College boys scrambling for the crown at the 72nd NCAA Golf Championships today are going to have to beat one another. They can't seem to beat the golf course.

They don't have a prayer now of getting close to the par of 280 for 72 holes on the Broadmoor layout, 6,600 feet above sea level.

AVOIDED TROUBLE

The leader going into the final lap is Wayne McDonald, an Indiana University player from Toronto, Canada. He plugged away yesterday for a commendable 72 and a 54-hole showing of 223, 13 over par.

McDonald, 21-year-old junior playing in his first NCAA tournament, said "I hit the ball well and avoided trouble—I got the shots I wanted to hit."

Bracketed on McDonald's heels are the 36-hole leader, Novato's Ray Leach of Brigham Young University; Terry Diehl of Georgia, and Bob Clark of California State at Los Angeles, all at 224.

LEACH HAS 81

Leach blew to an 81 yesterday. Wake Forest, although its top scorer, Joe Inman, was six strokes behind McDonald, grabbed a five-shot edge in the battle for the team title with 923. Florida's defending champions posted 928 and Houston 929 in a bid for the Texan's 11th team championship since 1956.

As some idea of the frustrations that collegians have suffered this week, only two players have broken par. Leach and Marty Huguet of Louisiana State, both freshmen, shot one-under 69s Thursday.

Only one other has equalled par, John Jackson of Arizona State, with a 70 in the second round.

PEBBLE BEACH (UPI)—Take a druggist, a teen-ager, an attorney and a quarterback and you have the cast of characters in today's semifinals of the California Amateur Golf championship over 36 holes.

Today's winners engage in another 36-hole battle for the title tomorrow. They all gained their coveted berths in the bracket of four through different means.

Brodie beat back veteran Bill Colm of Pebble Beach, 4 and 3, and then tripped Los Angeles Bud Bradley, low amateur in the recent United States Open at Houston, 2 up, in a see-saw battle.

Coody Hottest Pro Going After 64 In Cleveland Golf

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Charles Coody, the hottest item on the pro golf tour, held a whopping, four-stroke lead going into today's third round of the Cleveland Open, but he's not about to spend the $22,000 first place prize yet.

"There's 36 holes to go," he said yesterday after matching the Aurora County Club course record with a six-under-par 64 that gave him a four-stroke lead at 131.

"There's a lot of players who still have a good shot at it.

"I learned about nine weeks ago that a tournament isn't over until the last putt drops.

"That was at Augusta, Ga., in the Masters. I had the lead in the final round standing on the 16th tee. And I finished with three straight bogeys."

Coody, a 6-foot-2 Texan whose only tour victory was the 1964 Dallas Open, tied the low 36 holes on the tour this year and now is a fantastic 17 under par for his last three rounds. He had a final round 65, seven-under-par in the Kemper Open last week, finishing second to Dale Douglass.

John Schlee and Bruce Crampton shared second place at 135, each with a second round 66. Jim Colbert, who played with Crampton and traded some words with the transplated Australian over slow play, was alone in fourth place at 136. He had a second-round 67.

Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael skied to a 75 after an opening day 69.

MAKE IT FIVE

Tommy Aaron, 67, and George Hixon, 70, followed at 138. Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, the games two greatest names, made minor rallies and each vowed they would once again get their games in shape.

Palmer birdied his last three holes, on putts of 15, 25 and 20 feet, for a 69 and 143.

"I haven't made three putts in a row like that in two years," he said, then reconsidered. "Three years, four years. Make it five years.

"I'll get it back. I thought I had it back early this week. I don't know where or when it will be, but I'll get it back."

LIKE AN IDIOT

Nicklaus had a 68 for 141, despite bogeys on his last two holes.

"I played the last two like an idiot," the Golden Bear said. "It was ridiculous. I was going along fine, could have been shooting a 66, then I lost my concentration. But things are improving. It may be a week, it may be a month, it may be two months, but it'll come around."

Coody had no such problems.

"These last three rounds I've had a real good feeling with the putter. I feel like I can make every putt," he said.

"It wasn't quite that good but it was close.

"The only putt I missed that I should have made was on No. 5," he said. He had caught a trap on that hole, blasted out and missed a 10 footer for his only bogey. Six of his seven birdies came on radar putts of 15, 12, 35, 10, 25 and 15 feet. He pitched to within three feet for the other.

It took a score of 145 to make the cut for the final two rounds, with U.S. Open champion Orville Moody and Lee Trevino just making it. Moody had a fat 78 and Trevino 74, each at 145.

Among the casualties were former Masters champions Gay Brewer and Bob Gaolby, Brewer at 146 and Goalby at 152. Tour winners Dale Douglass, 146, Larry Hinson, 148, and Deane Beman, 152, also missed.

ALL-AMERICA GAME

West Has Backfield Edge Without O. J.

ATLANTA (AP) — Eugene "Mercury" Morris, powerful Paul Gipson and Bill "Earthquake" Enyart—overshadowed as running backs by O. J. Simpson last fall—get their shot at glory tonight.

Simpson, Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California, is skipping the ninth annual Coaches All-America Game because he has not signed a pro contract, so the trio of hard-running football players will be spotlighted.

Morris, West Texas State standout who is the NCAA's all-time rushing leader with 3,388 yards, gained 1,598 yards running last season, Gipson picked up 1,550 yards for Houston, and Enyart rushed for 1,304 yards for Oregon State.

All three will be running for the West in the all-star battle in hot, muggy Atlanta Stadium.

Kickoff for the game, which will be nationally televised by ABC-TV, will be at 5:30 p.m. Pacific Coast Time.

THE DIFFERENCE

The West's running attack has been singled out as the probable difference in the teams, with both the East and West boasting sturdy defenses.

West Coach Pepper Rodgers of Kansas thinks his running attack is as strong as he has ever seen, with Morris, Gipson and Enyart all impressive in workouts.

Biggest drawback for the three runners, however, could be the heat. Temperatures are expected to be around 90 degrees at the kickoff.

Gipson is the man most Georgians will be watching because he riddled the University of Georgia's defenses the past two years, gaining more than 230 yards rushing each time against the Bulldogs.

PASSING

The 195-pound runner will play for the Atlanta Falcons. Morris, stubby native of Pittsburgh, has signed with the Miami Dolphins, and Enyart will play pro football with the Buffalo Bills, the team that still is trying to get Simpson to come to terms.

The East—coached by Joe Paterno of Penn State is counting on passers Marty Domres of Columbia and Buster O'Brien of Richmond to offset the West's running power. Bobby Douglass of Kansas and Ed Hargett of Texas A&M will direct the West.

Sayers Signs Multi-Year Pact With Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Halfback Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears has signed a multi-year contract, George Halas, owner of the National Football League club, revealed yesterday

Halas, who recently returned from England after undergoing hip surgery, said "the session was amicable, in fact, a real pleasure.

"We got the business out of the way in a hurry," said Halas. "Gale is pleased and so am I. It's a pleasure to once again sign this great football player."

Terms of the pact were not revealed, but it was learned that Sayers signed a three-year contract at $75,000 a year.

Ashe, Laver Win At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., playing his best tennis of the tournament, reached the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon Open tournament today by eliminating a tiring Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Gonzales' dream of winning Wimbledon at the age of 41 was thus shattered. He showed signs of strain after five straight days of strenuous singles play.

Stan Smith, the towering U.S. Davis Cupper from Los Angeles, gave Rod Laver, the reigning champion, the fright of his life by taking a couple of sets off him on an outside court.

But Laver pulled his game together just in time to scrape through into the quarter-final 6-4, 6-2, 7-9, 3-6, 6-3 in a seesaw match that looked in doubt almost until the last shot.

Ashe still served at three-quarters his old speed, but his backhand was deadly. It was the shot that contributed most to Gonzales' downfall.

Gonzales, still a hero after his epic victory over Charlie Pasarell in the 112-games thriller earlier this week, was the favorite with the sell-out crowd of 15,000 on the center court. The Duke and Duchess of Kent watched from the royal box.

Gonzales thrilled the crowd with some choice shots and a service break at the start of the second set. He closed the set, winning three straight service games to love, and the one break was enough to level the match.

But in the third set the first signs of fatigue began to show. Ashe hit two fine backhand service returns past him in the sixth game and Gonzales, to groans from the crowd, missed with a half-hearted volley and then double-faulted to drop service.

Gonzales was never seriously in the match again. Ashe's backhand raked in the points, while old Pancho became slower and slower.

Laver, the No 1 seed here, started in his most devastating form. Laver's pinpoint accuracy left Smith stranded time after time as the Australian got a seventh game break for the first set, then ran rings round Smith with a couple of early breaks in the second.

At that point, the third set looked like being nothing more than a formality.

Smith moved ahead 8-7, then broke Laver, sending two scorching backhands right down the sideline. He then caught Laver going the wrong way with another backhand to snatch the set at 9-7.

Smith took a 3-0 lead in the fourth set and with Laver unable to stop Smith's service with any confidence, won the set 6-3.

The first three games of the final set went to service, giving Laver a 2-1 advantage. Then the Australian forced Smith into a couple of errors and with a delicate cross court drive he made the break for a 3-1 lead.

And that was the end for Smith. He still fought hard but he just couldn't gain back that game on Laver's service to get back into the game.

Giants Skid, A's First

Juan Can't Stop Double Trouble

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Even ace Juan Marichal couldn't brake the skid of the San Francisco Giants to their lowest depths this season.

Under a barrage of home runs by Pete Rose, Bobby Tolan and Lee May, the Giants dropped a 4-3, 9-1 doubleheader to the Cincinnati Reds last night and dropped to fifth place in the National League West, half a game behind the surging Houston Astros who beat Atlanta.

The Giants managed only a double by Hal Lanier and singles by Ken Henderson and Marichal off three Reds pitchers in the opener and six hits in the nightcap off lefty Jim Merritt, now 8-3.

PERRY TO PITCH

Gaylord Perry (9-6) goes against Jack Fisher (2-1) in the fourth game of the series tonight. The teams wind up with a single game tomorrow afternoon.

Rose tagged a two-run homer off Marichal in the eighth inning, drove in the Reds' first run in the sixth with a single and collected three of the eight hits off Marichal who suffered his third loss against nine wins.

Lanier's double and Marichal's single had given the Giants a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning. San Francisco got its final two runs in the ninth on an error and Ron Hunt's sacrifice fly.

FIVE-RUN RALLY

Clay Carroll of Cincinnati improved his record to 11-3 by winning the first game with a 2 1-3 inning relief stint.

Rich Robertson (1-2) of the Giants was bombed out in the second inning of the nightcap when the Reds erupted for five runs. Tolan's three-run homer in the inning came off reliever Ray Sadecki. Tolan's single and May's 22nd homer of the season added two more runs in the fourth for Cincinnati.

A double by Bob Burda and Don Mason's single in the seventh ruined Merritt's bid for a shutout. Mason collected two singles to pace the Giants feeble attack.

Odom Gets Tenth With 1-0 Victory

OAKLAND (AP) — Manager Hank Bauer of the Oakland Athletics has his team back in first place today in the American League West Division but he didn't enjoy the game that got them there.

The A's regained first by defeating the Chicago White Sox 1-0 with an unearned run in the eighth inning last night.

John "Blue Moon" Odom won his 10th game of the season, which puts him a little ahead of his schedule for the season. Odom hoped to have 12 victories before the major league all-star game July 22.

"After that, I would like to win as many games as I did last year, 16, and then go for 20 after that," Odom said.

Odom struck out six and walked only two. Bauer said Odom's good control was the difference in the game.

Chicago had only one scoring chance against Odom. Gale Hopkins was credited with a triple in the seventh inning when centerfielder Rick Monday dropped his long fly after colliding with rightfielder Reggie Jackson.

Chicago Manager Don Gutteridge sent in speedy Ken Berry to run for Hopkins, but Berry was thrown out trying to score on a bouncer to second base.

"It took a perfect play to get him at the plate. It was the eighth inning and we had to try and score," Gutteridge said.

Oakland's run was the first off Chicago rookie Bill Wynne in 21 innings. Wynne suffered his first major league defeat after winning two.

South Marin DiMaggio Loop Leaders Battle

Annex Motors, all alone by a healthy mile in the North Marin division of the Joe DiMaggio League, gets a well-deserved bye in tomorrow's action but the leaders in South Marin will be at it again.

Ray Leach Skies In NCAA Golf

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — College boys scrambling for the crown at the 72nd NCAA Golf Championships today are going to have to beat one another. They can't seem to beat the golf course.

They don't have a prayer now of getting close to the par of 280 for 72 holes on the Broadmoor layout, 6,600 feet above sea level.

AVOIDED TROUBLE

The leader going into the final lap is Wayne McDonald, an Indiana University player from Toronto, Canada. He plugged away yesterday for a commendable 72 and a 54-hole showing of 223, 13 over par.

McDonald, 21-year-old junior playing in his first NCAA tournament, said "I hit the ball well and avoided trouble—I got the shots I wanted to hit."

Bracketed on McDonald's heels are the 36-hole leader, Novato's Ray Leach of Brigham Young University; Terry Diehl of Georgia, and Bob Clark of California State at Los Angeles, all at 224.

LEACH HAS 81

Leach blew to an 81 yesterday. Wake Forest, although its top scorer, Joe Inman, was six strokes behind McDonald, grabbed a five-shot edge in the battle for the team title with 923. Florida's defending champions posted 928 and Houston 929 in a bid for the Texan's 11th team championship since 1956.

As some idea of the frustrations that collegians have suffered this week, only two players have broken par. Leach and Marty Huguet of Louisiana State, both freshmen, shot one-under 69s Thursday.

Only one other has equalled par, John Jackson of Arizona State, with a 70 in the second round.

Varied Cast For State Golf Semis

PEBBLE BEACH (UPI)— Take a druggist, a teen-ager, an attorney and a quarterback and you have the cast of characters in today's semifinals of the California Amateur Golf championship over 36 holes.

The teen-ager, 19-year-old Forrest Fezler of San Jose, met Los Angeles barrister Dick Runkle in one match and Concord druggist Steve Stimac, a 54-year-old veteran of many state golfing wars, took on John Brodie, quarterback for the San Francisco Forty Niners.

Today's winners engage in another 36-hole battle for the title tomorrow. They all gained their coveted berths in the bracket of four through different means.

Brodie beat back veteran Bill Colm of Pebble Beach, 4 and 3, and then tripped Los Angeles Bud Bradley, low amateur in the recent United States Open at Houston, 2 up, in a see-saw battle.

Reservation Address For 49er Luncheon

The correct address for reservations to the Marin 49er Goldrushers Luncheon at Dominic's Restaurant in San Rafael July 7 is Box 888, Tiburon, not Box 88, as incorrectly stated in yesterday's sports section of the Independent-Journal.

The luncheon will be a stag affair.

Coody Hottest Pro Going After 64 In Cleveland Golf

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Charles Coody, the hottest item on the pro golf tour, held a whopping, four-stroke lead going into today's third round of the Cleveland Open, but he's not about to spend the $22,000 first place prize yet.

"There's 36 holes to go," he said yesterday after matching the Aurora County Club course record with a six-under-par 64 that gave him a four-stroke lead at 131.

"There's a lot of players who still have a good shot at it.

"I learned about nine weeks ago that a tournament isn't over until the last putt drops.

"That was at Augusta, Ga., in the Masters. I had the lead in the final round standing on the 16th tee. And I finished with three straight bogeys."

Coody, a 6-foot-2 Texan whose only tour victory was the 1964 Dallas Open, tied the low 36 holes on the tour this year and now is a fantastic 17 under par for his last three rounds. He had a final round 65, seven-under-par in the Kemper Open last week, finishing second to Dale Douglass.

John Schlee and Bruce Crampton shared second place at 135, each with a second round 66. Jim Colbert, who played with Crampton and traded some words with the transplated Australian over slow play, was alone in fourth place at 136. He had a second-round 67.

Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael skied to a 75 after an opening day 69.

MAKE IT FIVE

Tommy Aaron, 67, and George Hixon, 70, followed at 138. Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, the games two greatest names, made minor rallies and each vowed they would once again get their games in shape.

Palmer birdied his last three holes, on putts of 15, 25 and 20 feet, for a 69 and 143.

"I haven't made three putts in a row like that in two years," he said, then reconsidered. "Three years, four years. Make it five years.

"I'll get it back. I thought I had it back early this week. I don't know where or when it will be, but I'll get it back."

LIKE AN IDIOT

Nicklaus had a 68 for 141, despite bogeys on his last two holes.

"I played the last two like an idiot," the Golden Bear said. "It was ridiculous. I was going along fine, could have been shooting a 66, then I lost my concentration. But things are improving. It may be a week, it may be a month, it may be two months, but it'll come around."

Coody had no such problems.

"These last three rounds I've had a real good feeling with the putter. I feel like I can make every putt," he said.

"It wasn't quite that good but it was close.

"The only putt I missed that I should have made was on No. 5," he said. He had caught a trap on that hole, blasted out and missed a 10 footer for his only bogey. Six of his seven birdies came on radar putts of 15, 12, 35, 10, 25 and 15 feet. He pitched to within three feet for the other.

It took a score of 145 to make the cut for the final two rounds, with U.S. Open champion Orville Moody and Lee Trevino just making it. Moody had a fat 78 and Trevino 74, each at 145.

Among the casualties were former Masters champions Gay Brewer and Bob Gaolby, Brewer at 146 and Goalby at 152. Tour winners Dale Douglass, 146, Larry Hinson, 148, and Deane Beman, 152, also missed.

ALL-AMERICA GAME

West Has Backfield Edge Without O. J.

ATLANTA (AP) — Eugene "Mercury" Morris, powerful Paul Gipson and Bill "Earthquake" Enyart—overshadowed as running backs by O. J. Simpson last fall—get their shot at glory tonight.

Simpson, Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California, is skipping the ninth annual Coaches All-America Game because he has not signed a pro contract, so the trio of hard-running football players will be spotlighted.

Morris, West Texas State standout who is the NCAA's all-time rushing leader with 3,388 yards, gained 1,598 yards running last season. Gipson picked up 1,550 yards for Houston, and Enyart rushed for 1,304 yards for Oregon State.

All three will be running for the West in the all-star battle in hot, muggy Atlanta Stadium.

Kickoff for the game, which will be nationally televised by ABC-TV, will be at 5:30 p.m. Pacific Coast Time.

THE DIFFERENCE

The West's running attack has been singled out as the probable difference in the teams, with both the East and West boasting sturdy defenses.

West Coach Pepper Rodgers of Kansas thinks his running attack is as strong as he has ever seen, with Morris, Gipson and Enyart all impressive in workouts.

Biggest drawback for the three runners, however, could be the heat. Temperatures are expected to be around 90 degrees at the kickoff.

Gipson is the man most Georgians will be watching because he riddled the University of Georgia's defenses the past two years, gaining more than 230 yards rushing each time against the Bulldogs.

PASSING

The 195-pound runner will play for the Atlanta Falcons. Morris, stubby native of Pittsburgh, has signed with the Miami Dolphins, and Enyart will play pro football with the Buffalo Bills, the team that still is trying to get Simpson to come to terms.

The East—coached by Joe Paterno of Penn State is counting on passers Marty Domres of Columbia and Buster O'Brien of Richmond to offset the West's running power. Bobby Douglass of Kansas and Ed Hargett of Texas A&M will direct the West.

Sayers Signs Multi-Year Pact With Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Halfback Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears has signed a multi-year contract, George Halas, owner of the National Football League club, revealed yesterday

Halas, who recently returned from England after undergoing hip surgery, said "the session was amicable, in fact, a real pleasure.

"We got the business out of the way in a hurry," said Halas. "Gale is pleased and so am I. It's a pleasure to once again sign this great football player."

Terms of the pact were not revealed, but it was learned that Sayers signed a three-year contract at $75,000 a year.

Sharon Walsh: Rising Net Star

By GARY TISCHLER

There are probably only two kinds of tennis players.

Those who play at it and those who live it.

The former pant a lot, have over-the-hill bellies, buy steel rackets for Saturday afternoons, and develop weekly blisters. The girls play tennis because their boyfriend or husband does.

Sharon Walsh, a peppery San Rafael teenager with a healthy, quick laugh lives it.

Green-eyed, tanned, loosely short-haired and decked out in typical white tennis fashion, she almost looks harmless enough. But she covers the court like a streamlined jeep. Her serves whistle in, booming, not at all dainty. She sweats and grits her teeth, determined even in a weekday practice match.

There are knowledgeable people in the local tennis world, including her coach Paul Wilkens, who have pointed out that Sharon is a natural, one of the best in Northern California.

Until recently, the main problem had been getting the 17-year-old Sharon to believe what people were saying about her. Lately, she has played like a believer.

Until recently, Sharon had been the what's-her-name who was knocking off you-know-who.

Unseeded in most of her tournaments, she kept knocking off names, getting to the fourth round in last year's national junior girls tournament in Philadelphia. That activity reached a high-point in Lodi this spring when she knocked off, in succession, Ceci Martinez, at that time ranked No. 11 in the U.S. among women, and fourth-seeded Gail Hansen before losing to second-seeded Diane Carter in the finals.

More recently, she reached something of a personal pinnacle, taking the Pacific Coast girls 18 title by overcoming her own faults and three seeded opponents at Berkeley last weekend.

She first dusted off top-seeded Patty Ann Reese of Florida, then overcame Eliza Pande, and second-seeded Marcie Louie in the finals.

The Louie affair was indecisive with Sharon winning on a default after taking the first set. Marcie developed a nosebleed and dropped out.

"I think I would have won," Sharon said.

Sharon put it all together by refusing to blow over own mistakes, a fault that has dampened the careers of many natural-born tennis stars.

"It was sort of mind over matter," she said. "I just made up my mind I wasn't going to blow up any more. I was just going to play one point at a time."

The victories at Lodi and Berkeley will undoubtedly open the doors to some of the big tournaments, including adult meets. She'll be going to Forrest Hills, N.Y., this summer for the U.S. national tournament.

All of which is not bad for a girl who got this far starting out late and coming on strong.

Unlike many of today's net stars, who are practically born on center court and start playing tournament ball around age nine, Sharon did not even pick up a racket until she was approaching 13.

"She got interested in playing in an I-J tournament," Sharon's father, Lew Walsh, a veteran photographer and something of an athlete himself, said. "I got out some old rackets that I hadn't used for years and gave them to her. She won two matches and lost in the finals."

From such small beginnings, are careers made.

"I used to pick up her up from Davidson Junior High School," Walsh recalled. "We'd go home, she'd change her clothes and go straight to the courts. Sometimes, we'd be out there in the rain on a wet court just so she could get in some practice."

Until two years ago, Walsh taught and helped his daughter. The turning point came when Paul Willkens, former teaching pro at Belevdere Tennis Club who runs a school at Sun Valley, got a look at her.

"Mr. Willkens asked me if I wanted to be really good," Sharon said. "I said I did and that's when I really made up my mind about tennis."

Willkens, a sort of tennis Svengali with a crewcut, is not one of the gentlest of teachers, but he is one of the best. And his work with Sharon, and with young Mike Machette of Belvedere has shown results.

"He's really too much," Sharon said. "One teaching session would consist of him getting a basket of tennis balls, and throwing them at me, right, left, backhand, forehand. I was running until I was ready to drop. But he was working too."

Sharon isn't one of those grim enthusiasts who are up until midnight whipping the ball against the backboards.

"It's not work," she said. "I really like it. It's fun. And it's not dull."

Her world is tennis. Most of her friends come from the tennis environment. And there is very little else left nor does she want it any other way.

"It's not dull," she said. "I know the kids are all supposed to be nice and clean-cut. But they're just like everybody else. There's all kinds. And you don't sit up day and night talking tennis. The social life is great, lots of dinners and parties."

She plays at least an hour a day, most of them the time more. Unlike some of her contemporaries, who get highly agitated over the state of the world, Berkeley, marijuana and such, she doesn't have time to think of too much else but tennis.

NO BAD HABITS

"I know what's going on," she said. "But, really, I just don't think about it a lot. A lot of the kids from back East who play here all say 'I want to go to Sausalito. Hey, let's go to the Haight-Ashbury or Telegraph Avenue.' It doesn't bother me."

"She's a wonderful daughter," her father said. "She doesn't smoke or drink. She doesn't have any bad habits."

"Except serving aces," one observer remarked.

What she does have is a career in tennis. She is toying with the idea of going to college after graduating from San Rafael High School in 1970 but tennis is still uppermost in her mind.

"I want to go as far as I can," she said. "I want to be as good as I can be."

Far, without too much translation, is the top and good would be the best.

She has already gone far and become very good in a very short time.

Zooming Houston Jets Into Fourth

By ASSOCOATED PRESS

Harry Walker won't admit it, but he's trying to hatch a homemade moon-shot in the Houston Astrodome.

Walker's astounding Astros nipped Atlanta 5-4 in the ninth inning last night for their 10th consecutive victory and a space walk in fourth place in the National League's tight West Division race.

The Astros' second 10-game orbit of the season shot them within 4½ lengths of pace-setting Los Angeles and brought on the first symptoms of that dizzying high-altitude phenomenon —pennant fever.

"This club is great, isn't it?" Jim Wynn beamed after ex-Brave Marty Martinez poked the game-winning single in the ninth, lifting Houston to its 26th triumph in 31 home games. "Ten in a row and fourth place. Who says we can't win this thing?"

"With the pitching we have, it's always possible," added Joe Morgan. "Yeah, we can win our division—why not? Look where we're at right now."

"I don't even think about things like that," insisted Manager Walker, proclaiming he still takes his tomorrows one at a time. "But they just keep bouncing back."

While the Astros, mired in the division cellar two months ago after losing 20 of their first 24 starts, vaulted into contention, San Diego ended an 11-game tailspin by blanking Los Angeles 5-0 behind right-hander Joe Niekro.

Despite the loss, the Dodgers remained one-half game in front of the Braves. Third place Cincinnati moved 2½ games off the pace with a 4-3, 9-1 doubleheader sweep over San Francisco that dropped the Giants to fifth —five games out.

Elsewhere, Pittsburgh trimmed the New York Mets 3-1, St. Louis beat the Chicago Cubs 3-1 and Philadelphia shaded Montreal 8-7.

The Astros broke a 4-4 deadlock in the ninth when Curt Blefary singled, took second on a sacrifice, third on an infield out and then scored on Martinez' two-out single off reliever Cecil Upshaw.

Wynn drove in three Houston runs with a double and single. Hank Aaron slammed his 20th homer for the Braves.

FERRARA DOES IT

Al Ferrara, a former Dodger, launched the Padres toward their skid-braking victory with a three-run first inning homer off Don Sutton. Niekro scattered six Los Angeles hits for his first victory since May 31 and rookie John Sipin also homered for San Diego.

Little Fred Patek smacked a decisive fifth inning homer as the Pirates broke a five-game losing string and extended the Mets' slide to three games. Steve Blass, 8-4, blanked New York on two hits until the ninth, when he got relief help from Joe Gibbon.

The Cardinals ruined Ken Holtzman's perfect game bid and beat the Chicago southpaw ace in the seventh inning on Vada Pinson's single, a wild pitch, a run-scoring single by Joe Torre and a triple by Mike Shannon.

Musical Chairs At Marin

Coaching musical chairs is the name of the game at College of Marin and Terra Linda High School.

The College of Marin Board of Trustees approved some major reshuffling in the College of Marin coaching staff Thursday.

The net result is that (1) Pete Limm has resigned as head baseball coach after a two-year tenure but will remain as assistant football coach and director of intramurals (2) health and physical education teacher Vic Petreshene, a sometime informal baseball aide, will move up to head baseball coach and (3) John Panagakis, who took over Cal Riemcke's head basketball position, will have a full-time aide.

TWO RUNNERSUP

The new basketball assistant will be Jim Webster, plucked from Los Lomas High School where he was head basketball coach and science teacher.

Limm resigned "under no pressure" according to College of Marin athletic director Harry Pieper.

"We were very pleased with Pete's work," Piper said. "He's done an outstanding job."

Limm led the Tars to runner-up seasons in the Golden Valley Conference and in the Camino Norte Conference in his two seasons as head coach.

FOUR YEARS

Petreshene has been at College of Marin for the past four years, joining the Tar athletic department from Clayton Valley High School where he had been head baseball coach.

At Terra Linda, athletic director Don Lucas has announced the hiring of Don Rodrigo as assistant football coach, replacing Jess Payan, who took a job as freshman grid coach and interim track coach at Redwood High School.

Rodrigo was head swimming coach at San Rafael High School, where he also taught driver training.

AL ROUNDUP

Detroit Drops First Key Round

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Detroit Tigers may be the first third-place team in baseball history with a magic number.

"I said we had to win six of eight games from Baltimore this weekend and next to gain significant ground," said Mayo Smith, manager of the beleaguered world champions, after the Orioles made off with a 4-1 victory last night. "Now it's six out of seven."

Unbeaten Dave McNally and Paul Blair were too much for the Tigers. McNally notched his 11th victory of the season with a five-hitter, setting a club record of 13 consecutive triumphs, counting two at the tag end of last season. And Blair cracked his 17th homer, a two-run shot in the second inning.

The victory gave the Orioles a 53-20 record and left them nine games ahead of Boston in the American League East, while the Tigers dropped 12½ games back.

Elsewhere in the AL, Boston trimmed Washington 4-2, Oakland vaulted back into first place in the West by one-half game by nipping the Chicago White Sox 1-0 while Minnesota was losing to Kansas City 9-8, Cleveland drubbed the New York Yankees 5-1 and California and Seattle split a twi-nighter, the Angels winning 5-3, then losing 5-2.

The Orioles unloaded quickly on Detroit starter Earl Wilson. Blair walked in the first inning, Frank Robinson was hit by a pitch, Boog Powell singled in one run and Dave Johnson doubled home another. In the second, Don Buford doubled and Blair homered.

KEEP PLAYING

What will the Tigers do if they can't chip away at Baltimore's lead?

"We'll just keep playing," said Smith. "What the hell, strange things happen in this game. If you don't think you can come back, you may as well take off your uniform and never put it on again. But we've got to get good pitching."

Smith said Johnson's run-scoring double should have been fielded by Ike Brown and noted that Willie Horton lost Buford's double in the lights.

"When you're going good, that's how things happen," he said. "That's the way they went for us last season."

13TH HOMER

Reggie Smith batted in two runs with a single and his 13th home run and Bill Landis and Sparky Lyle combined for a six-hitter as the Red Sox beat Washington. Landis, making his first start in just over one year, hurled six innings and gave up three hits and one run, Brant Alyea's ninth homer.

Sam McDowell scattered five hits and struck out 12, pushing his career total past the 1,500 mark, in hurling Cleveland past the Yankees. It was the left-hander's seventh straight triumph.

Rick Reichardt slammed a 426-foot two-run homer for the Angels in their opener but it took a two-run pinch single by Jay Johnstone to beat the Pilots.

Toomey Builds Decathlon Lead

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Olympic champion Bill Toomey built up a sizeable lead at the halfway mark of the 51st National AAU Decathlon Championships at Bakersfield Memorial Stadium last night.

The 30-year-old school teacher from Santa Barbara, Calif., amassed 4,217 points in the first five events, giving him a near insurmountable lead over runnerup Rick Sloan, another U.S. Olympian who had 3,749.

Toomey is trying for his fifth consecutive AAU title, a string which he started in Bakersfield in 1965. His point total also gives him a good chance to go over the 8,000 mark for the eighth time this year.

Sharon Walsh: Rising Net Star

By GARY TISCHLER

There are probably only two kinds of tennis players.

Those who play at it and those who live it.

The former pant a lot, have over-the-hill bellies, buy steel rackets for Saturday afternoons, and develop weekly blisters. The girls play tennis because their boyfriend or husband does.

Sharon Walsh, a peppery San Rafael teenager with a healthy, quick laugh lives it.

Green-eyed, tanned, loosely short-haired and decked out in typical white tennis fashion, she almost looks harmless enough. But she covers the court like a streamlined jeep. Her serves whistle in, booming, not at all dainty. She sweats and grits her teeth, determined even in a weekday practice match.

There are knowledgeable people in the local tennis world, including her coach Paul Wilkens, who have pointed out that Sharon is a natural, one of the best in Northern California.

Until recently, the main problem had been getting the 17-year-old Sharon to believe what people were saying about her. Lately, she has played like a believer.

Until recently, Sharon had been the what's-her-name who was knocking off you-know-who.

Unseeded in most of her tournaments, she kept knocking off names, getting to the fourth round in last year's national junior girls tournament in Philadelphia. That activity reached a high-point in Lodi this spring when she knocked off, in succession, Ceci Martinez, at that time ranked No. 11 in the U.S. among women, and fourth-seeded Gail Hansen before losing to second-seeded Diane Carter in the finals.

More recently, she reached something of a personal pinnacle, taking the Pacific Coast girls 18 title by overcoming her own faults and three seeded opponents at Berkeley last weekend.

She first dusted off top-seeded Patty Ann Reese of Florida, then overcame Eliza Pande, and second-seeded Marcie Louie in the finals.

The Louie affair was indecisive with Sharon winning on a default after taking the first set. Marcie developed a nosebleed and dropped out.

"I think I would have won," Sharon said.

Sharon put it all together by refusing to blow over own mistakes, a fault that has dampened the careers of many natural-born tennis stars.

"It was sort of mind over matter," she said. "I just made up my mind I wasn't going to blow up any more. I was just going to play one point at a time."

The victories at Lodi and Berkeley will undoubtedly open the doors to some of the big tournaments, including adult meets. She'll be going to Forrest Hills, N.Y., this summer for the U.S. national tournament.

All of which is not bad for a girl who got this far starting out late and coming on strong.

Unlike many of today's net stars, who are practically born on center court and start playing tournament ball around age nine, Sharon did not even pick up a racket until she was approaching 13.

"She got interested in playing in an I-J tournament," Sharon's father, Lew Walsh, a veteran photographer and something of an athlete himself, said. "I got out some old rackets that I hadn't used for years and gave them to her. She won two matches and lost in the finals."

From such small beginnings, are careers made.

"I used to pick up her up from Davidson Junior High School," Walsh recalled. "We'd go home, she'd change her clothes and go straight to the courts. Sometimes, we'd be out there in the rain on a wet court just so she could get in some practice."

Until two years ago, Walsh taught and helped his daughter. The turning point came when Paul Willkens, former teaching pro at Belevdere Tennis Club who runs a school at Sun Valley, got a look at her.

"Mr. Willkens asked me if I wanted to be really good," Sharon said. "I said I did and that's when I really made up my mind about tennis."

Willkens, a sort of tennis Svengali with a crewcut, is not one of the gentlest of teachers, but he is one of the best. And his work with Sharon, and with young Mike Machette of Belvedere has shown results.

"He's really too much," Sharon said. "One teaching session would consist of him getting a basket of tennis balls, and throwing them at me, right, left, backhand, forehand. I was running until I was ready to drop. But he was working too."

Sharon isn't one of those grim enthusiasts who are up until midnight whipping the ball against the backboards.

"It's not work," she said. "I really like it. It's fun. And it's not dull."

Her world is tennis. Most of her friends come from the tennis environment. And there is very little else left nor does she want it any other way.

"It's not dull," she said. "I know the kids are all supposed to be nice and clean-cut. But they're just like everybody else. There's all kinds. And you don't sit up day and night talking tennis. The social life is great, lots of dinners and parties."

She plays at least an hour a day, most of them the time more. Unlike some of her contemporaries, who get highly agitated over the state of the world, Berkeley, marijuana and such, she doesn't have time to think of too much else but tennis.

NO BAD HABITS

"I know what's going on," she said. "But, really, I just don't think about it a lot. A lot of the kids from back East who play here all say 'I want to go to Sausalito. Hey, let's go to the Haight-Ashbury or Telegraph Avenue.' It doesn't bother me."

"She's a wonderful daughter," her father said. "She doesn't smoke or drink. She doesn't have any bad habits."

"Except serving aces," one observer remarked.

What she does have is a career in tennis. She is toying with the idea of going to college after graduating from San Rafael High School in 1970 but tennis is still uppermost in her mind.

"I want to go as far as I can," she said. "I want to be as good as I can be."

Far, without too much translation, is the top and good would be the best.

She has already gone far and become very good in a very short time.

Zooming Houston Jets Into Fourth

By ASSOCOATED PRESS

Harry Walker won't admit it, but he's trying to hatch a homemade moon-shot in the Houston Astrodome.

Walker's astounding Astros nipped Atlanta 5-4 in the ninth inning last night for their 10th consecutive victory and a space walk in fourth place in the National League's tight West Division race.

The Astros' second 10-game orbit of the season shot them within 4½ lengths of pace-setting Los Angeles and brought on the first symptoms of that dizzying high-altitude phenomenon —pennant fever.

"This club is great, isn't it?" Jim Wynn beamed after ex-Brave Marty Martinez poked the game-winning single in the ninth, lifting Houston to its 26th triumph in 31 home games. "Ten in a row and fourth place. Who says we can't win this thing?"

"With the pitching we have, it's always possible," added Joe Morgan. "Yeah, we can win our division—why not? Look where we're at right now."

"I don't even think about things like that," insisted Manager Walker, proclaiming he still takes his tomorrows one at a time. "But they just keep bouncing back."

While the Astros, mired in the division cellar two months ago after losing 20 of their first 24 starts, vaulted into contention, San Diego ended an 11-game tailspin by blanking Los Angeles 5-0 behind right-hander Joe Niekro.

Despite the loss, the Dodgers remained one-half game in front of the Braves. Third place Cincinnati moved 2½ games off the pace with a 4-3, 9-1 doubleheader sweep over San Francisco that dropped the Giants to fifth —five games out.

Elsewhere, Pittsburgh trimmed the New York Mets 3-1, St. Louis beat the Chicago Cubs 3-1 and Philadelphia shaded Montreal 8-7.

The Astros broke a 4-4 deadlock in the ninth when Curt Blefary singled, took second on a sacrifice, third on an infield out and then scored on Martinez' two-out single off reliever Cecil Upshaw.

Wynn drove in three Houston runs with a double and single. Hank Aaron slammed his 20th homer for the Braves.

FERRARA DOES IT

Al Ferrara, a former Dodger, launched the Padres toward their skid-braking victory with a three-run first inning homer off Don Sutton. Niekro scattered six Los Angeles hits for his first victory since May 31 and rookie John Sipin also homered for San Diego.

Little Fred Patek smacked a decisive fifth inning homer as the Pirates broke a five-game losing string and extended the Mets' slide to three games. Steve Blass, 8-4, blanked New York on two hits until the ninth, when he got relief help from Joe Gibbon.

The Cardinals ruined Ken Holtzman's perfect game bid and beat the Chicago southpaw ace in the seventh inning on Vada Pinson's single, a wild pitch, a run-scoring single by Joe Torre and a triple by Mike Shannon.

Unveiling Of Laker Coach Set Monday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers' new basketball coach plays golf. And that was the only clue to his identity as disclosed by Fred Schaus, general manager of the National Basketball Association team.

The coach will be unveiled, Schaus said, at a press gathering at the Forum Monday morning.

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Louis, former heavyweight boxing champion, was released from Beekman Downtown Hospital last night, 31 hours after he collapsed on a lower Manhattan street.

A hospital spokesman said Louis signed himself out at 7 p.m. and was placed in the care of his own physician, who had flown in from Detroit.

Louis collapsed after taping a television program shortly before noon Thursday.

GOLF

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Joann Prentice took the second round lead in the U. S. Women's Open Championship with a two-under-par 71 for a 36-hole total of 144.

BASEBALL

SAN DIEGO — The comeback attempt of veteran southpaw pitcher Johnny Podres ended when the San Diego Padres placed him on the voluntary retired list.

FOOTBALL

ST. LOUIS — St. Louis of the NFL traded Bobby Joe Conrad, a veteran flanker, to Dallas for an undisclosed draft choice.

MILTON, Mass. — Joe Namath, Super Bowl star of the New York Jets of the AFL, declared he would stay retired if he had to sell his interest in the New York night spot of which he is a co-owner.

Musical Chairs At Marin

Coaching musical chairs is the name of the game at College of Marin and Terra Linda High School.

The College of Marin Board of Trustees approved some major reshuffling in the College of Marin coaching staff Thursday.

The net result is that (1) Pete Limm has resigned as head baseball coach after a two-year tenure but will remain as assistant football coach and director of intramurals (2) health and physical education teacher Vic Petreshene, a sometime informal baseball aide, will move up to head baseball coach and (3) John Panagakis, who took over Cal Riemcke's head basketball position, will have a full-time aide.

TWO RUNNERSUP

The new basketball assistant will be Jim Webster, plucked from Los Lomas High School where he was head basketball coach and science teacher.

Limm resigned "under no pressure" according to College of Marin athletic director Harry Pieper.

"We were very pleased with Pete's work," Piper said. "He's done an outstanding job."

Limm led the Tars to runner-up seasons in the Golden Valley Conference and in the Camino Norte Conference in his two seasons as head coach.

FOUR YEARS

Petreshene has been at College of Marin for the past four years, joining the Tar athletic department from Clayton Valley High School where he had been head baseball coach.

At Terra Linda, athletic director Don Lucas has announced the hiring of Don Rodrigo as assistant football coach, replacing Jess Payan, who took a job as freshman grid coach and interim track coach at Redwood High School.

Rodrigo was head swimming coach at San Rafael High School, where he also taught driver training.

Toomey Builds Decathlon Lead

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Olympic champion Bill Toomey built up a sizeable lead at the halfway mark of the 51st National AAU Decathlon Championships at Bakersfield Memorial Stadium last night.

The 30-year-old school teacher from Santa Barbara, Calif., amassed 4,217 points in the first five events, giving him a near insurmountable lead over runnerup Rick Sloan, another U.S. Olympian who had 3,749.

Toomey is trying for his fifth consecutive AAU title, a string which he started in Bakersfield in 1965. His point total also gives him a good chance to go over the 8,000 mark for the eighth time this year.

AL ROUNDUP

Detroit Drops First Key Round

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Detroit Tigers may be the first third-place team in baseball history with a magic number.

"I said we had to win six of eight games from Baltimore this weekend and next to gain significant ground," said Mayo Smith, manager of the beleaguered world champions, after the Orioles made off with a 4-1 victory last night. "Now it's six out of seven."

Unbeaten Dave McNally and Paul Blair were too much for the Tigers. McNally notched his 11th victory of the season with a five-hitter, setting a club record of 13 consecutive triumphs, counting two at the tag end of last season. And Blair cracked his 17th homer, a two-run shot in the second inning.

The victory gave the Orioles a 53-20 record and left them nine games ahead of Boston in the American League East, while the Tigers dropped 12½ games back.

Elsewhere in the AL, Boston trimmed Washington 4-2, Oakland vaulted back into first place in the West by one-half game by nipping the Chicago White Sox 1-0 while Minnesota was losing to Kansas City 9-8, Cleveland drubbed the New York Yankees 5-1 and California and Seattle split a twi-nighter, the Angels winning 5-3, then losing 5-2.

The Orioles unloaded quickly on Detroit starter Earl Wilson. Blair walked in the first inning, Frank Robinson was hit by a pitch, Boog Powell singled in one run and Dave Johnson doubled home another. In the second, Don Buford doubled and Blair homered.

KEEP PLAYING

What will the Tigers do if they can't chip away at Baltimore's lead?

"We'll just keep playing," said Smith. "What the hell, strange things happen in this game. If you don't think you can come back, you may as well take off your uniform and never put it on again. But we've got to get good pitching."

Smith said Johnson's run-scoring double should have been fielded by Ike Brown and noted that Willie Horton lost Buford's double in the lights.

"When you're going good, that's how things happen," he said. "That's the way they went for us last season."

13TH HOMER

Reggie Smith batted in two runs with a single and his 13th home run and Bill Landis and Sparky Lyle combined for a six-hitter as the Red Sox beat Washington. Landis, making his first start in just over one year, hurled six innings and gave up three hits and one run, Brant Alyea's ninth homer.

Sam McDowell scattered five hits and struck out 12, pushing his career total past the 1,500 mark, in hurling Cleveland past the Yankees. It was the left-hander's seventh straight triumph.

Rick Reichardt slammed a 426-foot two-run homer for the Angels in their opener but it took a two-run pinch single by Jay Johnstone to beat the Pilots.

Trios League Trio Really Whacks Pins

Bowlers in the 555 Trios League at Country Club Bowl really whacked the pins, especially a trio of men.

Bill Rhodes led the way with games of 227, 228, 222 and 209 for an 886 four-game series, followed by Larry Jones, 233-862 and Jim Lassle, 257-855.

Lee Stetson was high man in the Peterson Point League, a high game of 229 and high series 845. Dennis Reagan, 161 average kegler, wowed them in the Early Birds League with games of 233, 223 and 190 for a 646 three-gamer.

High scores from Nave Lanes this week came from John Hobbs, 267 game and 817 series in the 500 Trios, and Joan McGainnes, 526 in the Thursday Morning Trios.

THIS AND THAT — Bert Tynes bowled a 523 scratch series to win the first Marin County 500 Club Tournament Sunday at Greenbrae Lanes. . . . Meg Hallroon bowled a 146 triplicate in the Summerettes League at Country Club Bowl. . . . Classes for youngsters, on Tuesdays and Thursdays, start next Tuesday at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., and adult class starts July 11 at 8:30 p.m. . . . Pat Weddell had high score for the distaff bowlers at Country Club Bowl, rolling a 562 set in the Sleepers League, while Jean Baker picked up a 4-7-10 split and Anne Baccei the 6-7-10 . . . It was Annaray Blabon's turn for a split pickup in the Twilite Twirlers at Country Club, a 4-10 conversion.

Trio To Represent Rohnert Park Club

Earl Hunter of Corte Madera, Bob Dreyfus of Ross, Jack Duffy of Millbrae and Jim Dingman of Santa Rosa will be representing Rohnert Park Golf Club in the Northern California Golf Association's team tournament.

Sharon Walsh: Rising Net Star

By GARY TISCHLER

There are probably only two kinds of tennis players.

Those who play at it and those who live it.

The former pant a lot, have over-the-hill bellies, buy steel rackets for Saturday afternoons, and develop weekly blisters. The girls play tennis because their boyfriend or husband does.

Sharon Walsh, a peppery San Rafael teenager with a healthy, quick laugh lives it.

Green-eyed, tanned, loosely short-haired and decked out in typical white tennis fashion, she almost looks harmless enough. But she covers the court like a streamlined jeep. Her serves whistle in, booming, not at all dainty. She sweats and grits her teeth, determined even in a weekday practice match.

There are knowledgeable people in the local tennis world, including her coach Paul Wilkens, who have pointed out that Sharon is a natural, one of the best in Northern California.

Until recently, the main problem had been getting the 17-year-old Sharon to believe what people were saying about her. Lately, she has played like a believer.

Until recently, Sharon had been the what's-her-name who was knocking off you-know-who.

Unseeded in most of her tournaments, she kept knocking off names, getting to the fourth round in last year's national junior girls tournament in Philadelphia. That activity reached a high-point in Lodi this spring when she knocked off, in succession, Ceci Martinez, at that time ranked No. 11 in the U.S. among women, and fourth-seeded Gail Hansen before losing to second-seeded Diane Carter in the finals.

More recently, she reached something of a personal pinnacle, taking the Pacific Coast girls 18 title by overcoming her own faults and three seeded opponents at Berkeley last weekend.

She first dusted off top-seeded Patty Ann Reese of Florida, then overcame Eliza Pande, and second-seeded Marcie Louie in the finals.

The Louie affair was indecisive with Sharon winning on a default after taking the first set. Marcie developed a nosebleed and dropped out.

"I think I would have won," Sharon said.

Sharon put it all together by refusing to blow over own mistakes, a fault that has dampened the careers of many natural-born tennis stars.

"It was sort of mind over matter," she said. "I just made up my mind I wasn't going to blow up any more. I was just going to play one point at a time."

The victories at Lodi and Berkeley will undoubtedly open the doors to some of the big tournaments, including adult meets. She'll be going to Forrest Hills, N.Y., this summer for the U.S. national tournament.

All of which is not bad for a girl who got this far starting out late and coming on strong.

Unlike many of today's net stars, who are practically born on center court and start playing tournament ball around age nine, Sharon did not even pick up a racket until she was approaching 13.

"She got interested in playing in an I-J tournament," Sharon's father, Lew Walsh, a veteran photographer and something of an athlete himself, said. "I got out some old rackets that I hadn't used for years and gave them to her. She won two matches and lost in the finals."

From such small beginnings, are careers made.

"I used to pick up her up from Davidson Junior High School," Walsh recalled. "We'd go home, she'd change her clothes and go straight to the courts. Sometimes, we'd be out there in the rain on a wet court just so she could get in some practice."

Until two years ago, Walsh taught and helped his daughter. The turning point came when Paul Willkens, former teaching pro at Belevdere Tennis Club who runs a school at Sun Valley, got a look at her.

"Mr. Willkens asked me if I wanted to be really good," Sharon said. "I said I did and that's when I really made up my mind about tennis."

Willkens, a sort of tennis Svengali with a crewcut, is not one of the gentlest of teachers, but he is one of the best. And his work with Sharon, and with young Mike Machette of Belvedere has shown results.

"He's really too much," Sharon said. "One teaching session would consist of him getting a basket of tennis balls, and throwing them at me, right, left, backhand, forehand. I was running until I was ready to drop. But he was working too."

Sharon isn't one of those grim enthusiasts who are up until midnight whipping the ball against the backboards.

"It's not work," she said. "I really like it. It's fun. And it's not dull."

Her world is tennis. Most of her friends come from the tennis environment. And there is very little else left nor does she want it any other way.

"It's not dull," she said. "I know the kids are all supposed to be nice and clean-cut. But they're just like everybody else. There's all kinds. And you don't sit up day and night talking tennis. The social life is great, lots of dinners and parties."

She plays at least an hour a day, most of them the time more. Unlike some of her contemporaries, who get highly agitated over the state of the world, Berkeley, marijuana and such, she doesn't have time to think of too much else but tennis.

NO BAD HABITS

"I know what's going on," she said. "But, really, I just don't think about it a lot. A lot of the kids from back East who play here all say 'I want to go to Sausalito. Hey, let's go to the Haight-Ashbury or Telegraph Avenue.' It doesn't bother me."

"She's a wonderful daughter," her father said. "She doesn't smoke or drink. She doesn't have any bad habits."

"Except serving aces," one observer remarked.

What she does have is a career in tennis. She is toying with the idea of going to college after graduating from San Rafael High School in 1970 but tennis is still uppermost in her mind.

"I want to go as far as I can," she said. "I want to be as good as I can be."

Far, without too much translation, is the top and good would be the best.

She has already gone far and become very good in a very short time.

Zooming Houston Jets Into Fourth

By ASSOCOATED PRESS

Harry Walker won't admit it, but he's trying to hatch a home-made moon-shot in the Houston Astrodome.

Walker's astounding Astros nipped Atlanta 5-4 in the ninth inning last night for their 10th consecutive victory and a space walk in fourth place in the National League's tight West Division race.

The Astros' second 10-game orbit of the season shot them within 4½ lengths of pace-setting Los Angeles and brought on the first symptoms of that dizzying high-altitude phenomenon —pennant fever.

"This club is great, isn't it?" Jim Wynn beamed after ex-Brave Marty Martinez poked the game-winning single in the ninth, lifting Houston to its 26th triumph in 31 home games. "Ten in a row and fourth place. Who says we can't win this thing?"

"With the pitching we have, it's always possible," added Joe Morgan. "Yeah, we can win our division—why not? Look where we're at right now."

"I don't even think about things like that," insisted Manager Walker, proclaiming he still takes his tomorrows one at a time. "But they just keep bouncing back."

While the Astros, mired in the division cellar two months ago after losing 20 of their first 24 starts, vaulted into contention, San Diego ended an 11-game tailspin by blanking Los Angeles 5-0 behind right-hander Joe Niekro.

Despite the loss, the Dodgers remained one-half game in front of the Braves. Third place Cincinnati moved 2½ games off the pace with a 4-3, 9-1 doubleheader sweep over San Francisco that dropped the Giants to fifth —five games out.

Elsewhere, Pittsburgh trimmed the New York Mets 3-1, St. Louis beat the Chicago Cubs 3-1 and Philadelphia shaded Montreal 8-7.

The Astros broke a 4-4 deadlock in the ninth when Curt Blefary singled, took second on a sacrifice, third on an infield out and then scored on Martinez' two-out single off reliever Cecil Upshaw.

Wynn drove in three Houston runs with a double and single. Hank Aaron slammed his 20th homer for the Braves.

FERRARA DOES IT

Al Ferrara, a former Dodger, launched the Padres toward their skid-braking victory with a three-run first inning homer off Don Sutton. Niekro scattered six Los Angeles hits for his first victory since May 31 and rookie John Sipin also homered for San Diego.

Little Fred Patek smacked a decisive fifth inning homer as the Pirates broke a five-game losing string and extended the Mets' slide to three games. Steve Blass, 8-4, blanked New York on two hits until the ninth, when he got relief help from Joe Gibbon.

The Cardinals ruined Ken Holtzman's perfect game bid and beat the Chicago southpaw ace in the seventh inning on Vada Pinson's single, a wild pitch, a run-scoring single by Joe Torre and a triple by Mike Shannon.

Musical Chairs At Marin

Coaching musical chairs is the name of the game at College of Marin and Terra Linda High School.

The College of Marin Board of Trustees approved some major reshuffling in the College of Marin coaching staff Thursday.

The net result is that (1) Pete Limm has resigned as head baseball coach after a two-year tenure but will remain as assistant football coach and director of intramurals (2) health and physical education teacher Vic Petreshene, a sometime informal baseball aide, will move up to head baseball coach and (3) John Panagakis, who took over Cal Riemcke's head basketball position, will have a full-time aide.

TWO RUNNERSUP

The new basketball assistant will be Jim Webster, plucked from Los Lomas High School where he was head basketball coach and science teacher.

Limm resigned "under no pressure" according to College of Marin athletic director Harry Pieper.

"We were very pleased with Pete's work," Piper said. "He's done an outstanding job."

Limm led the Tars to runner-up seasons in the Golden Valley Conference and in the Camino Norte Conference in his two seasons as head coach.

FOUR YEARS

Petreshene has been at College of Marin for the past four years, joining the Tar athletic department from Clayton Valley High School where he had been head baseball coach.

At Terra Linda, athletic director Don Lucas has announced the hiring of Don Rodrigo as assistant football coach, replacing Jess Payan, who took a job as freshman grid coach and interim track coach at Redwood High School.

Rodrigo was head swimming coach at San Rafael High School, where he also taught driver training.

Unveiling Of Laker Coach Set Monday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers' new basketball coach plays golf. And that was the only clue to his identity as disclosed by Fred Schaus, general manager of the National Basketball Association team.

The coach will be unveiled, Schaus said, at a press gathering at the Forum Monday morning.

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Louis, former heavyweight boxing champion, was released from Beekman Downtown Hospital last night, 31 hours after he collapsed on a lower Manhattan street.

A hospital spokesman said Louis signed himself out at 7 p.m. and was placed in the care of his own physician, who had flown in from Detroit.

Louis collapsed after taping a television program shortly before noon Thursday.

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Joann Prentice took the second round lead in the U. S. Women's Open Championship with a two-under-par 71 for a 36-hole total of 144.

MILTON, Mass. — Joe Namath, Super Bowl star of the New York Jets of the AFL, declared he would stay retired if he had to sell his interest in the New York night spot of which he is a co-owner.

Toomey Builds Decathlon Lead

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Olympic champion Bill Toomey built up a sizeable lead at the halfway mark of the 51st National AAU Decathlon Championships at Bakersfield Memorial Stadium last night.

The 30-year-old school teacher from Santa Barbara, Calif., amassed 4,217 points in the first five events, giving him a near insurmountable lead over runnerup Rick Sloan, another U.S. Olympian who had 3,749.

Toomey is trying for his fifth consecutive AAU title, a string which he started in Bakersfield in 1965. His point total also gives him a good chance to go over the 8,000 mark for the eighth time this year.

AL ROUNDUP

Detroit Drops First Key Round

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Detroit Tigers may be the first third-place team in baseball history with a magic number.

"I said we had to win six of eight games from Baltimore this weekend and next to gain significant ground," said Mayo Smith, manager of the beleaguered world champions, after the Orioles made off with a 4-1 victory last night. "Now it's six out of seven."

Unbeaten Dave McNally and Paul Blair were too much for the Tigers. McNally notched his 11th victory of the season with a five-hitter, setting a club record of 13 consecutive triumphs, counting two at the tag end of last season. And Blair cracked his 17th homer, a two-run shot in the second inning.

The victory gave the Orioles a 53-20 record and left them nine games ahead of Boston in the American League East, while the Tigers dropped 12½ games back.

Elsewhere in the AL, Boston trimmed Washington 4-2, Oakland vaulted back into first place in the West by one-half game by nipping the Chicago White Sox 1-0 while Minnesota was losing to Kansas City 9-8, Cleveland drubbed the New York Yankees 5-1 and California and Seattle split a twi-nighter, the Angels winning 5-3, then losing 5-2.

The Orioles unloaded quickly on Detroit starter Earl Wilson. Blair walked in the first inning, Frank Robinson was hit by a pitch, Boog Powell singled in one run and Dave Johnson doubled home another. In the second, Don Buford doubled and Blair homered.

KEEP PLAYING

What will the Tigers do if they can't chip away at Baltimore's lead?

"We'll just keep playing," said Smith. "What the hell, strange things happen in this game. If you don't think you can come back, you may as well take off your uniform and never put it on again. But we've got to get good pitching."

Smith said Johnson's run-scoring double should have been fielded by Ike Brown and noted that Willie Horton lost Buford's double in the lights.

"When you're going good, that's how things happen," he said. "That's the way they went for us last season."

13TH HOMER

Reggie Smith batted in two runs with a single and his 13th home run and Bill Landis and Sparky Lyle combined for a six-hitter as the Red Sox beat Washington. Landis, making his first start in just over one year, hurled six innings and gave up three hits and one run, Brant Alyea's ninth homer.

Sam McDowell scattered five hits and struck out 12, pushing his career total past the 1,500 mark, in hurling Cleveland past the Yankees. It was the left-hander's seventh straight triumph.

Rick Reichardt slammed a 426-foot two-run homer for the Angels in their opener but it took a two-run pinch single by Jay Johnstone to beat the Pilots.

Double-Parking Jams San Francisco Streets

SEVERAL YEARS HAVE passed since many of us first thought the Golden Gate Bridge was nearing maximum traffic capacity and that, any day, there would be a monumental traffic jam stretching from the toll gate all the way to San Rafael and beyond, each morning.

And in the afternoons, we were sure, we would soon see San Francisco streets jammed solid by cars backed up from the toll gate, northbound.

The reason this has not yet happened is, reduced to its most simple terms, is that the Golden Gate Bridge management has found and is still finding ways to increase utilization.

You might say the capacity of the bridge has been increased by the ever more efficient handling of traffic.

SAN FRANCISCO SHOULD take a long, close look at its increasingly intolerable downtown congestion and then reflect on how intelligent management has helped to ease a similar problem out at the bridge.

What's wrong in downtown San Francisco?

It is easy to say there are just too many automobiles for the street system.

But that is NOT necessarily true.

Look at an example.

O'Farrell Street, even with cars parked at both curbs, has three traffic lanes left to move vehicles.

Most of the time, however, the three lanes of traffic are required to squeeze into one lane because of double-parked delivery vehicles.

IN THE DAYS OF DIAGONAL parking on Fourth Street in San Rafael, double-parked delivery vehicles could effectively block traffic — if the police and city council permitted it.

Fortunately, San Rafael police and the city council limited delivery hours for double-parkers on Fourth Street. The limitation has been rigidly enforced. In the days of diagonal parking, delivery vehicles had to make their stops either before or after shopping hours.

One remedy, then, which is woefully overdue in San Francisco is elimination of double-parking for delivery vehicles during business hours.

This would have the effect of at least doubling the number of lanes available for the movement of cars in the downtown area.

THE ENFORCEMENT OF parking restrictions in San Francisco's downtown area has long been a farce.

Even in tow-away areas, as often as not the curb lane is blocked by a vehicle stopped for pick-up or delivery of passenger or freight.

In short, an awful lot of space which should be utilized for moving cars is actually unnecessarily blocked.

PERHAPS WE SHOULD NOT be too harsh in our criticism of "the city."

The downtown congestion discourages shoppers; we of the suburbs benefit.

More shoppers do their shopping in our suburbs. The increased volume of business enables our suburban stores to handle expanded lines, making it ever less necessary to go to "the city" to buy anything.

On second thought, San Francisco, just forget what we have said about how you could relieve your intolerable traffic congestion.

Let it jam up solid every day.

Marin merchants will love you for it.

Albeit, Marin commuters will be spending an increasing portion of their lives waiting in traffic.

—Jack Craemer

No-Nonsense Approach

The newly constituted Marin County Board of Supervisors has not proved capable of holding down the tax rate. Neither has it done much to indicate a change in direction at the Civic Center. But it deserves credit for at least one thing: What it has done has been without theatrics and grandstanding.

The atmosphere of the board is quite different these days than it had been for several years.

The three supervisors retired this year — Peter H. Behr, Ernest N. Kettenhofen, and Thomas T. Storer — were all limelight-lovers. Behr with his witticisms, Kettenhofen with his bulldog never-give-up insistence, Storer with his penchant for the television cameras and the admiring throng, all played for the accolade as much as for accomplishment.

The present board has a down-to-earth, no-nonsense attitude. Michael Wornum, Louis H. Baar and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. are as much individualists as were their predecessors, but they don't make a big noise about it.

Their accomplishments therefore may be more real than apparent, whereas the accomplishments of their predecessors were more apparent than real.

Bouquets And A Brickbat

BOUQUETS to Dr. William F. Upton, who stepped down this week from the Marin County Planning Commission after 16 years of faithful service. Good fishing in Canada, Dr. Upton! He will be succeeded on the commission by Jack G. Nixon of Marinwood.

A BOUQUET to the City of Tiburon on its fifth birthday anniversary.

A BRICKBAT to the Tamalpais Fire Protection District board for holding a meeting without proper public notice.

A BOUQUET to Mill Valley City Councilmen for taking steps (posting of officer and imposing of curfew) to prevent mishaps and fires as Cascade Reservoir.

A BOUQUET to Douglas Waterhouse of Novato for winning second in the statewide carpenter apprenticeship contest.

BOUQUETS to Greenbrae youths who wielded rake and hoe to clean up a playground on Corte Los Sombres.

A BOUQUET to Arthur Palmer of Terra Linda, who will be 100 years old on July 3.

TRY AND STOP ME

Two professors of archaelology, avows Jan Harrison, of Norristown, Pa., were on a dig when they came upon a very odd rock formation. Furthermore, a strange, rhythmic sound seemed to be emanating from the rock, not unlike a heartbeat. "What do you suppose this can be?" one of the archaelogists wondered. Quoth his comapnaion, "Doctor, living stone, I presume."

Polk and Company, publishers of innumerable city directories, would have you know that the first street in the country is Second Street! There are more Second Streets in the U.S. than those bearing any other name. Park Street is runner-up, Third Street is third, Fourth is fourth, Fifth is fifth, and Main is sixth. Poor old First Street straggles in seventh.

Preserve Creek In Pristine State

Thanks for the photo, in last evening's (June 10) edition, of Corte Madera Creek as it is at Ross. A little intelligent planning, it is believed, and some labor by both county and city public work crews — each fall of the year — and all of the county streams could be preserved in their pristine state.

Yet, it is nothing short of incredible that Marin County, a geographical entity with no major rivers, can be fixed upon by the Corps of Engineers as testing ground for their nefarious schemes. What is even more annoying is that our supervisors can find need for their services. Tamalpais Valley, Terra Linda, and now Kentfield-Ross must bear monuments in enduring concrete to the bunglings of this heavy-footed bureaucracy.

There is, also, another sort of perpetuated playground put together by these inept fellows — which was conceived to enhance our knowledge of the Bay. When, however, any benefits redound to us from the Bay Model, the Bay will be long since filled by the conspirings of these many inept alphabet organizations such as ABAG, ACDC, etc. etc.

It is my understanding the gentlemen of the Bay Model have been assiduously keeping statistics upon certain phenomenon relating to the Bay. There is just one set of statistics I as a lone taxpayer would be interested in perusing . . . How much has been expended in building and maintaining the Bay Model since it was devised. Any report, of course, should include the recent extensive improvements to the structure housing this stepchild of our military, including the custom landscaping. Colonel Boerger, are you there?

LINES ON LIVING

Outgoing Joy Is Key To Human Fulfillment

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

Joy, not happiness, must be the ultimate in human life. For happiness is elusive and cannot always be guaranteed, whereas joy we can almost invariably create. At all times, we are capable of engaging in such activities which will bring us delightful sensations and the joys of living.

We might simply begin by greeting each day with a positive approach and a joyous appreciation for life itself, agreeing with Seneca that "When a man has said, 'I have lived,' every morning he arises he receives a bonus."

Joys, unlike happiness, come in the plural (there are no "happinesses") to indicate that they are by-products of many little acts and habits of grace that add up to a great and productive life.

HAPPINESS AND ease can come to all animal life. Elephants and cows are satisfied and contented in the fullness of their stomach. Human beings need fulfillment of soul as well. It was Mencken who graphically illustrated this point by shrewdly observing, "Happiness isn't everything; a hog is always happier than a man, and bacteria are always happier than hogs," Mr. Mencken's unceremonious lumping together of this trio— man, hog and bacteria — and the yardstick he uses for the measurements of the individual units of happiness apportioned to each of the three, may remain enigmatic and baffling to us.

One thing, however, is clear in his observation: Passive happiness and the ease of comfort aren't necessarily the ingredients of a great life. We do not reject happy living itself, but we reject happy living in itself alone as a goal of life without the creative and titillating qualities of the adventurous spirit that perceives that although "Much we know . . . more we dream."

EVERY HUMAN being is master of a world of symbols and the fashioning powers of language and reason. All his wisdom and vision and joy come to him by acts of affirmation. He is witness and observer, judge and jury, and his stamp seals the verdict in the "court room" of his own life. It is there where he glimpses revelations, where he views visions and brings the relationship of all that he sees into a harmony "to become all things."

We recall the biblical description how after the works of creation were completed, Adam was placed in his paradise to be given the supreme responsibility of giving names to all living things, "and whatsoever the man would call every living creature, that was to be its name," symbolizing the need for man to engage in meaningful affirmations and definitions in order to bring the reality of his experience into a world of life.

This is our destiny as masters in creation: Doing is joy and knowing is fun, although it proves painful at times. Yet the price is worth the man. Human fulfillment, the crown of creative joy, is the result of an optimistic and joyous affirmation of the worthiness of life, of the goodness of man and of the value of an inward spirit and a native ability to rejoice in ourselves — to have faith in our own power of thrust toward the stars.

FOR WHAT is life? A dream, a doom; a joy, a jest; a smile, a sigh; a throb, a storm; a leaf blown in the wind; a spirit rooted in the Eternal Flame? Whatever we choose in our human vocabulary and experience, whatever eloquence and imagery we give to life, it creates the world of our reality.

We communicate by the power of eloquent affirmation. We inherit life by the strength of our vision, by our ability to be productive, by mingling and belonging which merge our individual lives with the life of humanity. Outgoing joy then, not brooding retirement from life, is the key word in human expansion and growth. Because joy involves more than one individual and comes in the sharing of experiences with others, we belong when we are joyous; we are fulfilled in mirth; we are participants in an ode of joy that has its echoes in the roots of heaven.

More Movies Like 'Winnie The Pooh'

I think it is disgraceful that sex plays a major part in our lives. Everywhere one turns, sex is evident. Nowadays girls wear dresses that are more like shirts in lengths. . . .

I feel it is disgusting when movies get hard to find that are acceptable for children. More movies like "Winnie the Pooh" should be made. The utter shock of watching "The Killing of Sister George" or even the previews is too much for a child to understand. . . . Worse yet is the "Graduate" . . . or even worse is "Goodbye Columbus" . . .

After I get married by the time my children go through school, they will know as much as I do about this filthy aspect of life. They will not be allowed to see movies, watch television, or anything else that involves sex. . . . When they go to school if they so much as hear the word sex or any related subject, I will personally close the school and see that the teachers will never get another job.

Further more, I plan to start a movement to ban sex from the eyes and ears of our young. . . . Fines should be imposed and the people mentioning sex should be arrested and charged with a felony.

Refuse To Buy If Price Too High

Untold quantities of dollars are spent each year to determine what I, the consumer wants. How blind they are if they can not recognize two simple factors: QUALITY AND THRIFT.

I would like to enlist the assistance of all my fellow consumers to control their own market. REFUSE TO BUY UNLESS the item is both reasonably priced or reasonably good.

And to start, let us attack first the prices of beef. For my own part I am not going to buy any meat over $1 per pound or any poultry over $.50 per pound.

Will Johnson Break Silence To Support Nixon On Missile?

WASHINGTON — The deafening silence out of Texas is an example of Johnsonian restraint that even his fondest admirers had believed was beyond the reach of the former president. Nearly six months have gone by since he stepped off the center of the stage, and not a word has come from one of the most articulate and volatile men ever to occupy the White House.

Opportunities galore could have enticed Lyndon Baines Johnson — the Fortas affair, the ballooning controversy over the huge defense budget inherited by the Nixon administration, assaults on the Johnson record in the Vietnam War. Yet the silence on the banks of the Pedernales has been unbroken. Not a statement, not an interview, no television talk, has come from one who for more than four years was front and center on the world stage.

This does not mean that the former President is rocking quietly in that rocking chair on the front porch of the ranch house. If he had no other link with events, the close ties the Nixon White House is maintaining with the former President would keep him ahead of the news. Nixon has given the most careful instructions that his predecessor is to be informed in advance of every important foreign-policy move. And the President himself has been twice on the phone with the silent Texan.

This happened before the meeting at Midway when the withdrawal of 25,000 American troops was in the planning stage. Johnson was alerted to the conference with South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu and the prospective move intended to start the de-escalation of the war.

THE LINKAGE between the President and his predecessor has a recent precedent. When Johnson was in a bind on a security-foreign policy issue in need of at least a show of nonpartisan support, he turned to the late Dwight D. Eisenhower, whose public popularity as military leader and statesman gave his words extraordinary weight. Eisenhower rarely if ever let President Johnson down when there was any question of the national interest.

A similar demonstration of unity is contemplated by the White House as a showdown nears on the closely contested antiballistic-missile issue. A Johnson statement or, better still, a joint Nixon-Johnson declaration that the ABM is essential to national security would be helpful with senate waverers.

Some form of joint television appearance is not ruled out. Nixon said at his press conference he expected Johnson to be more helpful in the future.

Prior to the token de-escalation agreed to at Midway, this would hardly have been conceivable, since it would have seemed to ally Nixon's Vietnam policy with that of his predecessor. The word from the ranch is that no such statemnt is contemplated and that, so far as anyone in the immediate vicinity can tell, the former President has every intention of preserving his silence.

WITH PREPARATIONS for an intensive three-or four-week drive preceding the ABM vote, expected at the end of July, Nixon's aides are increasingly confident of approval for funds to deploy two safeguard missiles. Full-page ads showing an opinion research poll with an overwhelming majority for ABM are being run in newspapers across the country. This is the warmup for a final blitz by the White House and the Department of Defense.

How much weight a Johnson endorsement would carry can be only a guess.

South Viet Can Rule By Day, And Cong Can Govern At Night

WASHINGTON —Everyone is trying to come up with a face-saving solution for the Vietnam peace talks in Paris. There have been many proposals, and I hope no one minds if I throw another one on the round table.

It is named the Freeman Peace and Face-Saving Plan, after a young man named Peter Freeman from Hollywood, Calif., who thought of it one day when he was stuck on a freeway for two hours and was listening to news reports from Vietnam.

The plan hinges on the fact that vast parts of South Vietnam are controlled by the Saigon government forces in the daytime and by the Viet Cong at night. This fact is well known to everyone and cannot be disputed.

It also is known that the South Vietnamese government, under President Nguyen Van Theiu, is adamant about participating in a coalition government with the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong.

At the same time, the NLF wants nothing to do with the Saigon government.

THEREFORE, THE Freeman plan suggests that South Vietnam have TWO governments: A "day" government and a "night" government.

During the day, the peasants would pledge their allegiance to President Thieu. They would sell their goods to Saigon and receive whatever aid is available from the Americans.

Posters of President Thieu, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and President Nixon would be hung in each village square, and the American and South Vietnamese flags would hang side by side from the district town halls.

But as night falls the posters would all come down and be replaced by photographs of Ho Chi Minh, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap and Mao Tse-tung, and the flags of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong would fly from the town halls.

The "night" government of the NLF, or Hanoi, depending on who's running the show, could buy goods from the peasants in the evening. At night, the peasants would swear their devotion to Ho Chi Minh.

OF COURSE, there would have to be some ground rules so that the "night" government does not undo all the good work of the "day" government. By the same token, the "day" government couldn't institute laws that would sabotage the "night" government.

There would have to be a tax-sharing plan worked out and the draft in South Vietnam would have to be abolished so neigher side could take advantage of manpower situations in the villages.

But I'm certain that once they discover how well the "day" and "night" governments work, the two might even start co-operating together on an unofficial level.

THE BEAUTY OF the Freeman plan is that neither side has to give up anything. Both the NLF and Saigon govenment could say they are in control of the country (as they are saying now), and both would be right.

President Thieu would not have to allow any Communists in HIS government and, if President Nixon can remove American troops from Vietnam, Thieu knows he'll have access to all the money in the U.S. Treasury.

Ho Chi Minh, on the other hand, will benefit by governing at night, since he'll have the use of all the facilities the Americans build for the people in the daytime, as well as revenue from the bars and movie theaters.

As for the South Vietnamese peasant, he probably couldn't care less who governs him at this stage. In that beleaguered country, if you've seen one "liberating" army, you've seen them all.

Double-Parking Jams San Francisco Streets

SEVERAL YEARS HAVE passed since many of us first thought the Golden Gate Bridge was nearing maximum traffic capacity and that, any day, there would be a monumental traffic jam stretching from the toll gate all the way to San Rafael and beyond, each morning.

And in the afternoons, we were sure, we would soon see San Francisco streets jammed solid by cars backed up from the toll gate, northbound.

The reason this has not yet happened is, reduced to its most simple terms, is that the Golden Gate Bridge management has found and is still finding ways to increase utilization.

You might say the capacity of the bridge has been increased by the ever more efficient handling of traffic.

SAN FRANCISCO SHOULD take a long, close look at its increasingly intolerable downtown congestion and then reflect on how intelligent management has helped to ease a similar problem out at the bridge.

What's wrong in downtown San Francisco?

It is easy to say there are just too many automobiles for the street system.

But that is NOT necessarily true.

Look at an example.

O'Farrell Street, even with cars parked at both curbs, has three traffic lanes left to move vehicles.

Most of the time, however, the three lanes of traffic are required to squeeze into one lane because of double-parked delivery vehicles.

IN THE DAYS OF DIAGONAL parking on Fourth Street in San Rafael, double-parked delivery vehicles could effectively block traffic — if the police and city council permitted it.

Fortunately, San Rafael police and the city council limited delivery hours for double-parkers on Fourth Street. The limitation has been rigidly enforced. In the days of diagonal parking, delivery vehicles had to make their stops either before or after shopping hours.

One remedy, then, which is woefully overdue in San Francisco is elimination of double-parking for delivery vehicles during business hours.

This would have the effect of at least doubling the number of lanes available for the movement of cars in the downtown area.

THE ENFORCEMENT OF parking restrictions in San Francisco's downtown area has long been a farce.

Even in tow-away areas, as often as not the curb lane is blocked by a vehicle stopped for pick-up or delivery of passenger or freight.

In short, an awful lot of space which should be utilized for moving cars is actually unnecessarily blocked.

PERHAPS WE SHOULD NOT be too harsh in our criticism of "the city."

The downtown congestion discourages shoppers; we of the suburbs benefit.

More shoppers do their shopping in our suburbs. The increased volume of business enables our suburban stores to handle expanded lines, making it ever less necessary to go to "the city" to buy anything.

On second thought, San Francisco, just forget what we have said about how you could relieve your intolerable traffic congestion.

Let it jam up solid every day.

Marin merchants will love you for it.

Albeit, Marin commuters will be spending an increasing portion of their lives waiting in traffic.

—Jack Craemer

No-Nonsense Approach

The newly constituted Marin County Board of Supervisors has not proved capable of holding down the tax rate. Neither has it done much to indicate a change in direction at the Civic Center. But it deserves credit for at least one thing: What it has done has been without theatrics and grandstanding.

The atmosphere of the board is quite different these days than it had been for several years.

The three supervisors retired this year — Peter H. Behr, Ernest N. Kettenhofen, and Thomas T. Storer — were all limelight-lovers. Behr with his witticisms, Kettenhofen with his bulldog never-give-up insistence, Storer with his penchant for the television cameras and the admiring throng, all played for the accolade as much as for accomplishment.

The present board has a down-to-earth, no-nonsense attitude. Michael Wornum, Louis H. Baar and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. are as much individualists as were their predecessors, but they don't make a big noise about it.

Their accomplishments therefore may be more real than apparent, whereas the accomplishments of their predecessors were more apparent than real.

Look at an example.

O'Farrell Street, even with cars parked at both curbs, has three traffic lanes left to move vehicles.

Most of the time, however, the three lanes of traffic are required to squeeze into one lane because of double-parked delivery vehicles.

IN THE DAYS OF DIAGONAL parking on Fourth Street in San Rafael, double-parked delivery vehicles could effectively block traffic — if the police and city council permitted it.

Fortunately, San Rafael police and the city council limited delivery hours for double-parkers on Fourth Street. The limitation has been rigidly enforced. In the days of diagonal parking, delivery vehicles had to make their stops either before or after shopping hours.

One remedy, then, which is woefully overdue in San Francisco is elimination of double-parking for delivery vehicles during business hours.

This would have the effect of at least doubling the number of lanes available for the movement of cars in the downtown area.

THE ENFORCEMENT OF parking restrictions in San Francisco's downtown area has long been a farce.

Even in tow-away areas, as often as not the curb lane is blocked by a vehicle stopped for pick-up or delivery of passenger or freight.

In short, an awful lot of space which should be utilized for moving cars is actually unnecessarily blocked.

PERHAPS WE SHOULD NOT be too harsh in our criticism of "the city."

The downtown congestion discourages shoppers; we of the suburbs benefit.

More shoppers do their shopping in our suburbs. The increased volume of business enables our suburban stores to handle expanded lines, making it ever less necessary to go to "the city" to buy anything.

On second thought, San Francisco, just forget what we have said about how you could relieve your intolerable traffic congestion.

Let it jam up solid every day.

Marin merchants will love you for it.

Albeit, Marin commuters will be spending an increasing portion of their lives waiting in traffic.

—Jack Craemer

No-Nonsense Approach

The newly constituted Marin County Board of Supervisors has not proved capable of holding down the tax rate. Neither has it done much to indicate a change in direction at the Civic Center. But it deserves credit for at least one thing: What it has done has been without theatrics and grandstanding.

The atmosphere of the board is quite different these days than it had been for several years.

The three supervisors retired this year — Peter H. Behr, Ernest N. Kettenhofen, and Thomas T. Storer — were all limelight-lovers. Behr with his witticisms, Kettenhofen with his bulldog never-give-up insistence, Storer with his penchant for the television cameras and the admiring throng, all played for the accolade as much as for accomplishment.

The present board has a down-to-earth, no-nonsense attitude. Michael Wornum, Louis H. Baar and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. are as much individualists as were their predecessors, but they don't make a big noise about it.

Their accomplishments therefore may be more real than apparent, whereas the accomplishments of their predecessors were more apparent than real.

Bouquets And A Brickbat

BOUQUETS to Dr. William F. Upton, who stepped down this week from the Marin County Planning Commission after 16 years of faithful service. Good fishing in Canada, Dr. Upton! He will be succeeded on the commission by Jack G. Nixon of Marinwood.

A BOUQUET to the City of Tiburon on its fifth birthday anniversary.

A BRICKBAT to the Tamalpais Fire Protection District board for holding a meeting without proper public notice.

A BOUQUET to Mill Valley City Councilmen for taking steps (posting of officer and imposing of curfew) to prevent mishaps and fires as Cascade Reservoir.

A BOUQUET to Douglas Waterhouse of Novato for winning second in the statewide carpenter apprenticeship contest.

BOUQUETS to Greenbrae youths who wielded rake and hoe to clean up a playground on Corte Los Sombres.

A BOUQUET to Arthur Palmer of Terra Linda, who will be 100 years old on July 3.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

Two professors of archaelology, avows Jan Harrison, of Norristown, Pa., were on a dig when they came upon a very odd rock formation. Furthermore, a strange, rhythmic sound seemed to be emanating from the rock, not unlike a heartbeat. "What do you suppose this can be?" one of the archaelogists wondered. Quoth his comapnaion, "Doctor, living stone, I presume."

Polk and Company, publishers of innumerable city directories, would have you know that the first street in the country is Second Street! There are more Second Streets in the U.S. than those bearing any other name. Park Street is runner-up, Third Street is third, Fourth is fourth, Fifth is fifth, and Main is sixth. Poor old First Street straggles in seventh.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Preserve Creek In Pristine State

Thanks for the photo, in last evening's (June 10) edition, of Corte Madera Creek as it is at Ross. A little intelligent planning, it is believed, and some labor by both county and city public work crews — each fall of the year — and all of the county streams could be preserved in their pristine state.

Yet, it is nothing short of incredible that Marin County, a geographical entity with no major rivers, can be fixed upon by the Corps of Engineeers as testing ground for their nefarious schemes. What is even more annoying is that our supervisors can find need for their services. Tamalpais Valley, Terra Linda, and now Kentfield-Ross must bear monuments in enduring concrete to the bunglings of this heavy-footed bureaucracy.

There is, also, another sort of perpetuated playground put together by these inept fellows — which was conceived to enhance our knowledge of the Bay. When, however, any benefits redound to us from the Bay Model, the Bay will be long since filled by the conspirings of these many inept alphabet organizations such as ABAG, ACDC, etc. etc.

It is my understanding the gentlemen of the Bay Model have been assiduously keeping statistics upon certain phenomenon relating to the Bay. There is just one set of statistics I as a lone taxpayer would be interested in perusing . . . How much has been expended in building and maintaining the Bay Model since it was devised. Any report, of course, should include the recent extensive improvements to the structure housing this stepchild of our military, including the custom landscaping. Colonel Boerger, are you there?

(The flood control project is not a "nefarious scheme." The county and communities involved, after a series of public hearings, asked the Army Corps to help control flood waters that damage homes and other property along Corte Madera Creek. —Editor.)

More Movies Like 'Winnie The Pooh'

I think it is disgraceful that sex plays a major part in our lives. Everywhere one turns, sex is evident. Nowadays girls wear dresses that are more like shirts in lengths. . . .

I feel it is disgusting when movies get hard to find that are acceptable for children. More movies like "Winnie the Pooh" should be made. The utter shock of watching "The Killing of Sister George" or even the previews is too much for a child to understand. . . . Worse yet is the "Graduate" . . . or even worse is "Goodbye Columbus" . . .

After I get married by the time my children go through school, they will know as much as I do about this filthy aspect of life. They will not be allowed to see movies, watch television, or anything else that involves sex. . . . When they go to school if they so much as hear the word sex or any related subject, I will personally close the school and see that the teachers will never get another job.

Further more, I plan to start a movement to ban sex from the eyes and ears of our young. . . . Fines should be imposed and the people mentioning sex should be arrested and charged with a felony.

Refuse To Buy If Price Too High

Untold quantities of dollars are spent each year to determine what I, the consumer wants. How blind they are if they can not recognize two simple factors: QUALITY AND THRIFT.

I would like to enlist the assistance of all my fellow consumers to control their own market. REFUSE TO BUY UNLESS the item is both reasonably priced or reasonably good.

And to start, let us attack first the prices of beef. For my own part I am not going to buy any meat over $1 per pound or any poultry over $.50 per pound.

A very concerned consumer.

LINES ON LIVING

Outgoing Joy Is Key To Human Fulfillment

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

Joy, not happiness, must be the ultimate in human life. For happiness is elusive and cannot always be guaranteed, whereas joy we can almost invariably create. At all times, we are capable of engaging in such activities which will bring us delightful sensations and the joys of living.

We might simply begin by greeting each day with a positive approach and a joyous appreciation for life itself, agreeing with Seneca that "When a man has said, 'I have lived,' every morning he arises he receives a bonus."

Joys, unlike happiness, come in the plural (there are no "happinesses") to indicate that they are by-products of many little acts and habits of grace that add up to a great and productive life.

HAPPINESS AND ease can come to all animal life. Elephants and cows are satisfied and contented in the fullness of their stomach. Human beings need fulfillment of soul as well. It was Mencken who graphically illustrated this point by shrewdly observing, "Happiness isn't everything; a hog is always happier than a man, and bacteria are always happier than hogs," Mr. Mencken's unceremonious lumping together of this trio—man, hog and bacteria — and the yardstick he uses for the measurements of the individual units of happiness apportioned to each of the three, may remain enigmatic and baffling to us.

One thing, however, is clear in his observation: Passive happiness and the ease of comfort aren't necessarily the ingredients of a great life. We do not reject happy living itself, but we reject happy living in itself alone as a goal of life without the creative and titillating qualities of the adventurous spirit that perceives that although "Much we know . . . more we dream."

EVERY HUMAN being is master of a world of symbols and the fashioning powers of language and reason. All his wisdom and vision and joy come to him by acts of affirmation. He is witness and observer, judge and jury, and his stamp seals the verdict in the "court room" of his own life. It is there where he glimpses revelations, where he views visions and brings the relationship of all that he sees into a harmony "to become all things."

We recall the biblical description how after the works of creation were completed, Adam was placed in his paradise to be given the supreme responsibility of giving names to all living things, "and whatsoever the man would call every living creature, that was to be its name," symbolizing the need for man to engage in meaningful affirmations and definitions in order to bring the reality of his experience into a world of life.

This is our destiny as masters in creation: Doing is joy and knowing is fun, although it proves painful at times. Yet the price is worth the man. Human fulfillment, the crown of creative joy, is the result of an optimistic and joyous affirmation of the worthiness of life, of the goodness of man and of the value of an inward spirit and a native ability to rejoice in ourselves — to have faith in our own power of thrust toward the stars.

FOR WHAT is life? A dream, a doom; a joy, a jest; a smile, a sigh; a throb, a storm; a leaf blown in the wind; a spirit rooted in the Eternal Flame? Whatever we choose in our human vocabulary and experience, whatever eloquence and imagery we give to life, it creates the world of our reality.

We communicate by the power of eloquent affirmation. We inherit life by the strength of our vision, by our ability to be productive, by mingling and belonging which merge our individual lives with the life of humanity. Outgoing joy then, not brooding retirement from life, is the key word in human expansion and growth. Because joy involves more than one individual and comes in the sharing of experiences with others, we belong when we are joyous; we are fulfilled in mirth; we are participants in an ode of joy that has its echoes in the roots of heaven.

Will Johnson Break Silence To Support Nixon On Missile?

WASHINGTON — The deafening silence out of Texas is an example of Johnsonian restraint that even his fondest admirers had believed was beyond the reach of the former president. Nearly six months have gone by since he stepped off the center of the stage, and not a word has come from one of the most articulate and volatile men ever to occupy the White House.

Opportunities galore could have enticed Lyndon Baines Johnson — the Fortas affair, the ballooning controversy over the huge defense budget inherited by the Nixon administration, assaults on the Johnson record in the Vietnam War. Yet the silence on the banks of the Pedernales has been unbroken. Not a statement, not an interview, no television talk, has come from one who for more than four years was front and center on the world stage.

This does not mean that the former President is rocking quietly in that rocking chair on the front porch of the ranch house. If he had no other link with events, the close ties the Nixon White House is maintaining with the former President would keep him ahead of the news. Nixon has given the most careful instructions that his predecessor is to be informed in advance of every important foreign-policy move. And the President himself has been twice on the phone with the silent Texan.

This happened before the meeting at Midway when the withdrawal of 25,000 American troops was in the planning stage. Johnson was alerted to the conference with South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu and the prospective move intended to start the de-escalation of the war.

THE LINKAGE between the President and his predecessor has a recent precedent. When Johnson was in a bind on a security-foreign policy issue in need of at least a show of nonpartisan support, he turned to the late Dwight D. Eisenhower, whose public popularity as military leader and statesman gave his words extraordinary weight. Eisenhower rarely if ever let President Johnson down when there was any question of the national interest.

A similar demonstration of unity is contemplated by the White House as a showdown nears on the closely contested antiballistic-missile issue. A Johnson statement or, better still, a joint Nixon-Johnson declaration that the ABM is essential to national security would be helpful with senate waverers.

Some form of joint television appearance is not ruled out. Nixon said at his press conference he expected Johnson to be more helpful in the future.

Prior to the token de-escalation agreed to at Midway, this would hardly have been conceivable, since it would have seemed to ally Nixon's Vietnam policy with that of his predecessor. The word from the ranch is that no such statemnt is contemplated and that, so far as anyone in the immediate vicinity can tell, the former President has every intention of preserving his silence.

WITH PREPARATIONS for an intensive three-or four-week drive preceding the ABM vote, expected at the end of July, Nixon's aides are increasingly confident of approval for funds to deploy two safeguard missiles. Full-page ads showing an opinion research poll with an overwhelming majority for ABM are being run in newspapers across the country. This is the warmup for a final blitz by the White House and the Department of Defense.

How much weight a Johnson endorsement would carry can be only a guess.

ART BUCHWALD

South Viet Can Rule By Day, And Cong Can Govern At Night

WASHINGTON —Everyone is trying to come up with a face-saving solution for the Vietnam peace talks in Paris. There have been many proposals, and I hope no one minds if I throw another one on the round table.

It is named the Freeman Peace and Face-Saving Plan, after a young man named Peter Freeman from Hollywood, Calif., who thought of it one day when he was stuck on a freeway for two hours and was listening to news reports from Vietnam.

The plan hinges on the fact that vast parts of South Vietnam are controlled by the Saigon government forces in the daytime and by the Viet Cong at night. This fact is well known to everyone and cannot be disputed.

It also is known that the South Vietnamese government, under President Nguyen Van Theiu, is adamant about participating in a coalition government with the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong.

At the same time, the NLF wants nothing to do with the Saigon government.

THEREFORE, THE Freeman plan suggests that South Vietnam have TWO governments: A "day" government and a "night" government.

During the day, the peasants would pledge their allegiance to President Thieu. They would sell their goods to Saigon and receive whatever aid is available from the Americans.

Posters of President Thieu, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and President Nixon would be hung in each village square, and the American and South Vietnamese flags would hang side by side from the district town halls.

But as night falls the posters would all come down and be replaced by photographs of Ho Chi Minh, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap and Mao Tse-tung, and the flags of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong would fly from the town halls.

The "night" government of the NLF, or Hanoi, depending on who's running the show, could buy goods from the peasants in the evening. At night, the peasants would swear their devotion to Ho Chi Minh.

OF COURSE, there would have to be some ground rules so that the "night" government does not undo all the good work of the "day" government. By the same token, the "day" government couldn't institute laws that would sabotage the "night" government.

There would have to be a tax-sharing plan worked out and the draft in South Vietnam would have to be abolished so neigher side could take advantage of manpower situations in the villages.

But I'm certain that once they discover how well the "day" and "night" governments work, the two might even start co-operating together on an unofficial level.

THE BEAUTY OF the Freeman plan is that neither side has to give up anything. Both the NLF and Saigon govenment could say they are in control of the country (as they are saying now), and both would be right.

President Thieu would not have to allow any Communists in HIS government and, if President Nixon can remove American troops from Vietnam, Thieu knows he'll have access to all the money in the U.S. Treasury.

Ho Chi Minh, on the other hand, will benefit by governing at night, since he'll have the use of all the facilities the Americans build for the people in the daytime, as well as revenue from the bars and movie theaters.

As for the South Vietnamese peasant, he probably couldn't care less who governs him at this stage. In that beleaguered country, if you've seen one "liberating" army, you've seen them all.

Humanists To Install Marinite

A San Rafael man will be installed as president of the Humanist Institute of San Francisco at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the institute's new building at 1430 Masonic Avenue.

Tolbert H. McCarroll of 293 Knight Drive will be installed prior to an open house and picnic at the new building.

McCarroll, an attorney, is secretary of the International Humanist and Ethical Union and until this month was executive director of the American Humanist Association.

He was editorial director of the Humanist Magazine from 1965 to 1968 and is now co-editor of the Journal of International Humanism. He recently finished a book, "Let's Make a Wedding, A Humanistic Approach to Ceremony."

He is a guest lecturer in the psychology department at Sonoma State College and appears frequently at colleges and universities throughout the country.

Plea Date Slated On Morals Charge

A San Rafael man has been ordered to appear in Marin Municipal Court July 3 to enter a plea to five counts of lewd and lascivious acts with children and unnatural sex acts that allegedly took place in Novato last year and earlier this year.

Peter J. Hawkins of 724 B Street was arraigned yesterday after being ordered by mail to appear. He was later released on his own recognizance.

Treated For Pills

Kenneth Kline, 19, of 10 Meadowcroft Avenue, San Anselmo was treated Thursday at Letterman General Hospital for an overdose of sleeping pills after he was found at about 10:10 p.m. lying under some swings on the Isabel Cook School playground, police reported.

Humanists To Install Marinite

A San Rafael man will be installed as president of the Humanist Institute of San Francisco at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the institute's new building at 1430 Masonic Avenue.

Tolbert H. McCarroll of 293 Knight Drive will be installed prior to an open house and picnic at the new building.

McCarroll, an attorney, is secretary of the International Humanist and Ethical Union and until this month was executive director of the American Humanist Association.

He was editorial director of the Humanist Magazine from 1965 to 1968 and is now co-editor of the Journal of International Humanism. He recently finished a book, "Let's Make a Wedding, A Humanistic Approach to Ceremony."

He is a guest lecturer in the psychology department at Sonoma State College and appears frequently at colleges and universities throughout the country.

Plea Date Slated On Morals Charge

A San Rafael man has been ordered to appear in Marin Municipal Court July 3 to enter a plea to five counts of lewd and lascivious acts with children and unnatural sex acts that allegedly took place in Novato last year and earlier this year.

Peter J. Hawkins of 724 B Street was arraigned yesterday after being ordered by mail to appear. He was later released on his own recognizance.

Treated For Pills

Kenneth Kline, 19, of 10 Meadowcroft Avenue, San Anselmo was treated Thursday at Letterman General Hospital for an overdose of sleeping pills after he was found at about 10:10 p.m. lying under some swings on the Isabel Cook School playground, police reported.

NO RIOTS, SIT-INS

Soviet Education

By ROBERT BUCKHORN

KIEV, Russia (UPI)—Ekaterina Ustinovna teaches reading, writing and communism at school number 129, Darnitsa District in Kiev, the capital of the Soviet Ukraine.

Sit-ins? Campus riots? Student vandalism? Not while she is principal.

"The task of the teacher is to fill the thirst for knowledge. The task of the student is to seek knowledge," is the way this communist schoolmarm put it.

Those two sentences were all she cared to devote to questions on whether Soviet students were bringing pressure on the school system for change.

Mrs. Ustinovna, who sat arrow-straight in her drab office with its stern picture of Lenin behind her chair, agreed, however that Soviet education was not all arbitrary.

"The teachers always express their opinions about the curriculum—the students are never consulted!"

Doesn't this create dissension and unrest? "In our school we have no discipline problem we can't control," Mrs. Ustinovna said.

So much for the student revolution in the Soviet Union. It just doesn't exist.

But education is one of the Soviet society's key prizes. It is coveted and it is free.

According to the Kremlin, there are 48 million students studying at 210,000 educational establishments in the Soviet Union.

Right now, eight years of schooling is compulsory. This will be raised to 10 by 1970.

Take Mrs. Ustinovna's school a yellow cement building in a working class district of Kiev. There are 1,100 "children of the workers" in the school. The youngsters start at the age of seven.

The question of whether they should start at a younger age "is not discussed," Mrs. Ustinovna said.

The classes average 30 to 35, and in Mrs. Ustinovna's school, an obvious cut above the average, the teachers had the use of tape recorders, movie projectors and television.

What does a first-grader learn? The curriculum in this so-called "English school" ran this way:

Mathematics, native language (in this case Ukrainian), reading, English, Russian language (a required course), music and drawing. The students are graded on a one to five scale, with five being excellent.

From elementary school, a Russian student can either go to a vocational school for three years, or take an industrial job.

His best choice, however, is to go for a higher degree, assuming he can pass the required competitive exam. According to the Kremlin, more than 500,000 persons in Russia get some kind of college degree each year.

Even though college is free, the Kremlin is not open-handed with student allowances. They vary from $20 to $60 a month.

Once their education is completed, the students must "repay the state" by taking a job where the Kremlin feels they are needed.

Even if the virus of student unrest isn't to be seen in Russia, the Soviet leaders are taking no chances.

The Kremlin has tabbed as a "petty bourgeoise" Dr. Herbert Marcuse, the San Jose, Calif., professor who is considered the elder statesman of the student new left.

According to the official Communist Party line, Marcuse "is trying to alienate the radically-minded student youth from the communist movement."

Behind The News

JURY SELECTION

What's Ideal Not Always The Best

NEW YORK (UPI)—Every year thousands of juries are empaneled around the country to sit in judgment of cases that range from dog-bites-man lawsuits to murder charges.

Ideally the average American jury should be picked from the top 12 names on a list, be sworn in and then get on with deciding who's at fault or who's guilty.

It doesn't work that way, of course, as every newspaper reader knows, jury selection often takes days, sometimes weeks.

SIRHAN TRIAL

In the recent Sirhan Sirhan trial, 23 days of questioning and excusing a long list of possible jurors were required before a panel was agreed upon. Some civil court trials, with millions of lawsuits at stake, also frequently involve extensive investigation and questioning of prospective jurors.

Such delayed jury-picking has come under heavy criticism at times, but prominent New York trial lawyer Jacob D. Fuchsberg, a former president of the American Trial Lawyers Association, thinks it's all in the interest of justice.

"I like to think I un-select a jury—get rid of the worst ones," Fuchsberg explained in an interview with UPI. "There are two things to try for in seating a jury—first you must try to get a panel as free from prejudice in your case as possible, and then attempt to get them to look at a situation in another way—undo their preconceptions.

"Just remember there's always two sides on every case—two people trying to remove the ones who life has conditioned one way or another," he said.

THE PROSPECT

As far as Fuchsberg is concerned, everything about a prospective juror—appearance, religious beliefs, ethnic background, race, age, income, family status, sex, occupation, and political leanings—has significance to an accomplished trial lawyer.

"You must find out about a juror's background," he said. "A questionnaire shows conventional things. But a man may have a mistress, or doesn't get along with his wife, or has a lot of money.

"Never ask a juror a political question, but it's good to know if he's a liberal or conservative and whether he's paying $18 a month for a place or $1,800. Does he have a large family or a small one? Is he litigation prone—been sued himself?"

Fuchsberg said that in picking a jury "a lawyer has to have a knowledge of practical psychology. Sometimes it's just the way a man talks and looks at you. If he's trying to please you he may have reasons for wanting to stay on the jury. He may have the kind of background where he's been kicked off other panels. Nobody wants to be rejected.

LEADER-TYPE

Fuchsberg is also president of the Roscoe Pound-American Trial Lawyers Foundation, an organization dedicated to better trial court training for young attorneys. As an outspoken advocate of the jury system, he insists that the present selection system "all balances out. Juries are not stupid," he said. "I think the average juror does not try to act out of prejudice. He wraps himself in civic virtue. He's a judge now. He tries to act the part and do the right thing.

"Clarence Darrow made his reputation in civil cases in Chicago.

"I once heard him give a speech in which he said that the same kind of juror your defendant would want in a criminal case is the same as your plaintiff would want in a negligence case.

THE LIBERAL JUROR

"In my own experience the less skilled a man is the more liberal and more emphathetic he is, with less stake in aspiring to be part of the establishment."

Fuchsberg thinks that persons with a southern European or Latin background "traditionally express sympathy more outwardly. Negroes also tend to be more sympathetic to the underdog.

"On the other hand, Anglo-Saxons traditionally don't wear their heart on their sleeve," he said.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Dolwig's Windfall Stirs Capitol

By CAPITOL NEWS SERVICE

SACRAMENTO — An ethics probe into a reported $185,000 profit made by Sen. Richard Dolwig, R-San Mateo, following a favorable decision on the sale of stock by an insurance firm made by a state official, has been suggested by the leaders of the Legislature. Senate President Pro Tem Howard Way and Assembly Speaker Bob Monagan indicated they agreed the matter should be looked into by the committee. A story printed by a Southern California newspaper charges the decision was given after Dolwig authored a bill which would have resulted in the firing of the assistant to the state insurance commissioner. Dolwig has rejected the claim, saying he has done nothing wrong.

Pornography, and those who publish such materials, are faced with new laws today following the signing of two bills by Gov. Ronald Reagan aimed at restricting the publishing and selling for such items. Signed were SB-62 and SB-63, by Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Ventura, which are based on recent rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court concerning the printing of obscene materials to "appeal to the pruient interests" of the public. The laws provide for a $1,000 fine or six months in jail for such publications.

Cigarette advertsing will be banned in newspapers, television, radio, and on billboards throughout California under a bill, SB-341, which gained the approval of the Senate by a vote of 28-7. The vote on the bill by Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Beverly Holls was considered a surprise, with some experts saying the passage of the measure was in retaliation against the news media for unfavorable stories printed recently. Beilenson said his prime interest was to prevent "enticing" cigarette ads on television which were directed to young people. He said more than 4,000 young people begin smoking each day.

Uniform salaries for all teachers in unified districts throughout the state is the aim of a measure, AB-2216, authored by Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-San Bernardino, which has gained a vote of approval from the lower house. The bill is designed to prevent school districts, with combined levels of education, from setting differing pay schedules based on the grade levels taught. Lewis said the problem has been found, particularly in newly unified districts. The assembly vote was 58.0.

A white paper, or fully documented report on the recent "People's Park" riots in Berkeley has been promised by Reagan in an attempt to refute claims of the leaders of that confrontation that Reagan, in recent speeches, has been practicing the "big lie." The report is being prepared by the governor's staff.

Presumptive limits as they will affect drivers who consume alcohol has gained the approval of the Legislature and been signed by the governor. The measure, AB-105, by Assemblyman Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, sets the presumptive limits on the alcohol content of blood, breathe or urine, when a drinking driver may be presumed to be under the influence. As he signed the measure, Reagan declared it is "one of the most rewarding moments I have experienced as governor."

Local control of topless shows as well as other "lewd and indecent performances and exhibitions" was a step nearer to realization as the Senate Government Efficiency Committee voted out AB-524, by Assemblyman John Quimby, D-Rialto. The bill, already passed by the Assembly, would permit local governing boards to control such exhibitions. The measure would also permit the state to cooperate, by having the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control suspend or revoke licenses of establishments that Quimby said were "Dealing in human degredation for profit."

Second mailing of the $70 Homeowners Property Tax Relief checks of $70 each has been scheduled for July 9, according to State Controller Houston I. Flournoy. He reported more than 200,000 of the checks will be mailed on that date.

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The mounting pace of the "half-war" in the Middle Eeast caused considerable concern this week.

Hardly a day passed without a report of new violence somewhere in Israel or in one of the neighboring Arab countries as commandos and sabotage squads struck back and forth across the troubled borders.

In a space of less than 20 hours at the start of the week, Israeli and Egyptian commandos raided each other's lines and Israeli jets blasted targets in Jordan in retaliation for Arab rocket attacks. An Israeli announcement said 15 Egyptians were killed.

On Monday, Israeli commandos sabotaged the $85-million Ghor Canal, Jordan's most important irrigation project. On the Suez Canal front, Egyptian commandos attacked Israeli positions.

On Tuesday,an Arab saboteur's bomb blasted a pipeline at the big Haifa oil refineries, starting a fire and disrupting telephone service. A thousand tons of fuel was lost.

There appeared to be little prospect of an early settlement of the conflict.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

Buenos Aires — Saboteurs bombed nine supermarkets owned by a Rockefeller-family firm and an office building housing several U.S. firms on Thursday, three days before Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's scheduled arrival in Argentina. A dud bomb was found in a suburban office of the First National City Bank.

Washington — The Senate passed a "national commitments" resolution calling on the government not to commit troops or money to foreign countries without congressional approval.

NO RIOTS, SIT-INS

Soviet Education

By ROBERT BUCKHORN

KIEV, Russia (UPI)—Ekaterina Ustinovna teaches reading, writing and communism at school number 129, Darnitsa District in Kiev, the capital of the Soviet Ukraine.

Sit-ins? Campus riots? Student vandalism? Not while she is principal.

"The task of the teacher is to fill the thirst for knowledge. The task of the student is to seek knowledge," is the way this communist schoolmarm put it.

Those two sentences were all she cared to devote to questions on whether Soviet students were bringing pressure on the school system for change.

Mrs. Ustinovna, who sat arrow-straight in her drab office with its stern picture of Lenin behind her chair, agreed, however that Soviet education was not all arbitrary.

"The teachers always express their opinions about the curriculum—the students are never consulted!"

Doesn't this create dissension and unrest? "In our school we have no discipline problem we can't control," Mrs. Ustinovna said.

So much for the student revolution in the Soviet Union. It just doesn't exist.

But education is one of the Soviet society's key prizes. It is coveted and it is free.

According to the Kremlin, there are 48 million students studying at 210,000 educational establishments in the Soviet Union.

Right now, eight years of schooling is compulsory. This will be raised to 10 by 1970.

Take Mrs. Ustinovna's school a yellow cement building in a working class district of Kiev. There are 1,100 "children of the workers" in the school. The youngsters start at the age of seven.

The question of whether they should start at a younger age "is not discussed," Mrs. Ustinovna said.

The classes average 30 to 35, and in Mrs. Ustinovna's school, an obvious cut above the average, the teachers had the use of tape recorders, movie projectors and television.

What does a first-grader learn? The curriculum in this so-called "English school" ran this way:

Mathematics, native language (in this case Ukrainian), reading, English, Russian language (a required course), music and drawing. The students are graded on a one to five scale, with five being excellent.

From elementary school, a Russian student can either go to a vocational school for three years, or take an industrial job.

His best choice, however, is to go for a higher degree, assuming he can pass the required competitive exam. According to the Kremlin, more than 500,000 persons in Russia get some kind of college degree each year.

Even though college is free, the Kremlin is not open-handed with student allowances. They vary from $20 to $60 a month.

Once their education is completed, the students must "repay the state" by taking a job where the Kremlin feels they are needed.

Even if the virus of student unrest isn't to be seen in Russia, the Soviet leaders are taking no chances.

The Kremlin has tabbed as a "petty bourgeoise" Dr. Herbert Marcuse, the San Jose, Calif., professor who is considered the elder statesman of the student new left.

According to the official Communist Party line, Marcuse "is trying to alienate the radically-minded student youth from the communist movement."

Behind The News

JURY SELECTION

What's Ideal Not Always The Best

NEW YORK (UPI)—Every year thousands of juries are empaneled around the country to sit in judgment of cases that range from dog-bites-man lawsuits to murder charges.

Ideally the average American jury should be picked from the top 12 names on a list, be sworn in and then get on with deciding who's at fault or who's guilty.

It doesn't work that way, of course, as every newspaper reader knows, jury selection often takes days, sometimes weeks.

SIRHAN TRIAL

In the recent Sirhan Sirhan trial, 23 days of questioning and excusing a long list of possible jurors were required before a panel was agreed upon. Some civil court trials, with millions of lawsuits at stake, also frequently involve extensive investigation and questioning of prospective jurors.

Such delayed jury-picking has come under heavy criticism at times, but prominent New York trial lawyer Jacob D. Fuchsberg, a former president of the American Trial Lawyers Association, thinks it's all in the interest of justice.

"I like to think I un-select a jury—get rid of the worst ones," Fuchsberg explained in an interview with UPI. "There are two things to try for in seating a jury—first you must try to get a panel as free from prejudice in your case as possible, and then attempt to get them to look at a situation in another way—undo their preconceptions.

"Just remember there's always two sides on every case—two people trying to remove the ones who life has conditioned one way or another," he said.

THE PROSPECT

As far as Fuchsberg is concerned, everything about a prospective juror—appearance, religious beliefs, ethnic background, race, age, income, family status, sex, occupation, and political leanings—has significance to an accomplished trial lawyer.

"You must find out about a juror's background," he said. "A questionnaire shows conventional things. But a man may have a mistress, or doesn't get along with his wife, or has a lot of money.

"Never ask a juror a political question, but it's good to know if he's a liberal or conservative and whether he's paying $18 a month for a place or $1,800. Does he have a large family or a small one? Is he litigation prone—been sued himself?"

Fuchsberg said that in picking a jury "a lawyer has to have a knowledge of practical psychology. Sometimes it's just the way a man talks and looks at you. If he's trying to please you he may have reasons for wanting to stay on the jury. He may have the kind of background where he's been kicked off other panels. Nobody wants to be rejected.

LEADER-TYPE

Fuchsberg is also president of the Roscoe Pound-American Trial Lawyers Foundation, an organization dedicated to better trial court training for young attorneys. As an outspoken advocate of the jury system, he insists that the present selection system "all balances out. Juries are not stupid," he said. "I think the average juror does not try to act out of prejudice. He wraps himself in civic virtue. He's a judge now. He tries to act the part and do the right thing.

"Clarence Darrow made his reputation in civil cases in Chicago.

"I once heard him give a speech in which he said that the same kind of juror your defendant would want in a criminal case is the same as your plaintiff would want in a negligence case.

THE LIBERAL JUROR

"In my own experience the less skilled a man is the more liberal and more emphathetic he is, with less stake in aspiring to be part of the establishment."

Fuchsberg thinks that persons with a southern European or Latin background "traditionally express sympathy more outwardly. Negroes also tend to be more sympathetic to the underdog.

"On the other hand, Anglo-Saxons traditionally don't wear their heart on their sleeve," he said.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Dolwig's Windfall Stirs Capitol

By CAPITOL NEWS SERVICE

SACRAMENTO — An ethics probe into a reported $185,000 profit made by Sen. Richard Dolwig, R-San Mateo, following a favorable decision on the sale of stock by an insurance firm made by a state official, has been suggested by the leaders of the Legislature. Senate President Pro Tem Howard Way and Assembly Speaker Bob Monagan indicated they agreed the matter should be looked into by the committee. A story printed by a Southern California newspaper charges the decision was given after Dolwig authored a bill which would have resulted in the firing of the assistant to the state insurance commissioner. Dolwig has rejected the claim, saying he has done nothing wrong.

Pornography, and those who publish such materials, are faced with new laws today following the signing of two bills by Gov. Ronald Reagan aimed at restricting the publishing and selling for such items. Signed were SB-62 and SB-63, by Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Ventura, which are based on recent rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court concerning the printing of obscene materials to "appeal to the pruient interests" of the public. The laws provide for a $1,000 fine or six months in jail for such publications.

Cigarette advertsing will be banned in newspapers, television, radio, and on billboards throughout California under a bill, SB-341, which gained the approval of the Senate by a vote of 28-7. The vote on the bill by Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Beverly Holls was considered a surprise, with some experts saying the passage of the measure was in retaliation against the news media for unfavorable stories printed recently. Beilenson said his prime interest was to prevent "enticing" cigarette ads on television which were directed to young people. He said more than 4,000 young people begin smoking each day.

Uniform salaries for all teachers in unified districts throughout the state is the aim of a measure, AB-2216, authored by Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-San Bernardino, which has gained a vote of approval from the lower house. The bill is designed to prevent school districts, with combined levels of education, from setting differing pay schedules based on the grade levels taught. Lewis said the problem has been found, particularly in newly unified districts. The assembly vote was 58.0.

A white paper, or fully documented report on the recent "People's Park" riots in Berkeley has been promised by Reagan in an attempt to refute claims of the leaders of that confrontation that Reagan, in recent speeches, has been practicing the "big lie." The report is being prepared by the governor's staff.

Presumptive limits as they will affect drivers who consume alcohol has gained the approval of the Legislature and been signed by the governor. The measure, AB-105, by Assemblyman Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, sets the presumptive limits on the alcohol content of blood, breathe or urine, when a drinking driver may be presumed to be under the influence. As he signed the measure, Reagan declared it is "one of the most rewarding moments I have experienced as governor."

Local control of topless shows as well as other "lewd and indecent performances and exhibitions" was a step nearer to realization as the Senate Government Efficiency Committee voted out AB-524, by Assemblyman John Quimby, D-Rialto. The bill, already passed by the Assembly, would permit local governing boards to control such exhibitions. The measure would also permit the state to cooperate, by having the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control suspend or revoke licenses of establishments that Quimby said were "Dealing in human degredation for profit."

Second mailing of the $70 Homeowners Property Tax Relief checks of $70 each has been scheduled for July 9, according to State Controller Houston I. Flournoy. He reported more than 200,000 of the checks will be mailed on that date.

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The mounting pace of the "half-war" in the Middle Eeast caused considerable concern this week.

Hardly a day passed without a report of new violence somewhere in Israel or in one of the neighboring Arab countries as commandos and sabotage squads struck back and forth across the troubled borders.

In a space of less than 20 hours at the start of the week, Israeli and Egyptian commandos raided each other's lines and Israeli jets blasted targets in Jordan in retaliation for Arab rocket attacks. An Israeli announcement said 15 Egyptians were killed.

On Monday, Israeli commandos sabotaged the $85-million Ghor Canal, Jordan's most important irrigation project. On the Suez Canal front, Egyptian commandos attacked Israeli positions.

On Tuesday,an Arab saboteur's bomb blasted a pipeline at the big Haifa oil refineries, starting a fire and disrupting telephone service. A thousand tons of fuel was lost.

There appeared to be little prospect of an early settlement of the conflict.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

Buenos Aires — Saboteurs bombed nine supermarkets owned by a Rockefeller-family firm and an office building housing several U.S. firms on Thursday, three days before Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's scheduled arrival in Argentina. A dud bomb was found in a suburban office of the First National City Bank.

Washington — The Senate passed a "national commitments" resolution calling on the government not to commit troops or money to foreign countries without congressional approval.

New York—Funeral services were held for singing star Judy Garland who died of an accidental overdose of sleeping pills in London at the start of the week. She was 47.

Saigon—The fighting at Ben Het continued inconclusively, with U.S. artillery, helicopters and planes retaliating for enemy shelling. Military intelligence sources said the purpose of such attacks appears to be to influence U.S. public opinion against the war.

Jersey City, N.J. — Rafael Torres, a moderately successful grocery, was arrested on charges of killing his wife and seven of their nine children in an unexplained frenzy. An eighth child was seriously wounded and Torres himself was hospitalized poor condition after suffering a heart attack.

Tucson, Ariz.—Westbrook Pegley, former Pulitzer Prize columnist known for his caustic attacks on public figures who did not share his political views, died at 74.

NO RIOTS, SIT-INS

Soviet Education

By ROBERT BUCKHORN

KIEV, Russia (UPI)—Ekaterina Ustinovna teaches reading, writing and communism at school number 129, Darnitsa District in Kiev, the capital of the Soviet Ukraine.

Sit-ins? Campus riots? Student vandalism? Not while she is principal.

"The task of the teacher is to fill the thirst for knowledge. The task of the student is to seek knowledge," is the way this communist schoolmarm put it.

Those two sentences were all she cared to devote to questions on whether Soviet students were bringing pressure on the school system for change.

Mrs. Ustinovna, who sat arrow-straight in her drab office with its stern picture of Lenin behind her chair, agreed, however that Soviet education was not all arbitrary.

"The teachers always express their opinions about the curriculum—the students are never consulted!"

Doesn't this create dissension and unrest? "In our school we have no discipline problem we can't control," Mrs. Ustinovna said.

So much for the student revolution in the Soviet Union. It just doesn't exist.

But education is one of the Soviet society's key prizes. It is coveted and it is free.

According to the Kremlin, there are 48 million students studying at 210,000 educational establishments in the Soviet Union.

Right now, eight years of schooling is compulsory. This will be raised to 10 by 1970.

Take Mrs. Ustinovna's school a yellow cement building in a working class district of Kiev. There are 1,100 "children of the workers" in the school. The youngsters start at the age of seven.

The question of whether they should start at a younger age "is not discussed," Mrs. Ustinovna said.

The classes average 30 to 35, and in Mrs. Ustinovna's school, an obvious cut above the average, the teachers had the use of tape recorders, movie projectors and television.

What does a first-grader learn? The curriculum in this so-called "English school" ran this way:

Mathematics, native language (in this case Ukrainian), reading, English, Russian language (a required course), music and drawing. The students are graded on a one to five scale, with five being excellent.

From elementary school, a Russian student can either go to a vocational school for three years, or take an industrial job.

His best choice, however, is to go for a higher degree, assuming he can pass the required competitive exam. According to the Kremlin, more than 500,000 persons in Russia get some kind of college degree each year.

Even though college is free, the Kremlin is not open-handed with student allowances. They vary from $20 to $60 a month.

Once their education is completed, the students must "repay the state" by taking a job where the Kremlin feels they are needed.

Even if the virus of student unrest isn't to be seen in Russia, the Soviet leaders are taking no chances.

The Kremlin has tabbed as a "petty bourgeoise" Dr. Herbert Marcuse, the San Jose, Calif., professor who is considered the elder statesman of the student new left.

According to the official Communist Party line, Marcuse "is trying to alienate the radically-minded student youth from the communist movement."

Behind The News

JURY SELECTION

What's Ideal Not Always The Best

NEW YORK (UPI)—Every year thousands of juries are empaneled around the country to sit in judgment of cases that range from dog-bites-man lawsuits to murder charges.

Ideally the average American jury should be picked from the top 12 names on a list, be sworn in and then get on with deciding who's at fault or who's guilty.

It doesn't work that way, of course, as every newspaper reader knows, jury selection often takes days, sometimes weeks.

SIRHAN TRIAL

In the recent Sirhan Sirhan trial, 23 days of questioning and excusing a long list of possible jurors were required before a panel was agreed upon. Some civil court trials, with millions of lawsuits at stake, also frequently involve extensive investigation and questioning of prospective jurors.

Such delayed jury-picking has come under heavy criticism at times, but prominent New York trial lawyer Jacob D. Fuchsberg, a former president of the American Trial Lawyers Association, thinks it's all in the interest of justice.

"I like to think I un-select a jury—get rid of the worst ones," Fuchsberg explained in an interview with UPI. "There are two things to try for in seating a jury—first you must try to get a panel as free from prejudice in your case as possible, and then attempt to get them to look at a situation in another way—undo their preconceptions.

"Just remember there's always two sides on every case—two people trying to remove the ones who life has conditioned one way or another," he said.

THE PROSPECT

As far as Fuchsberg is concerned, everything about a prospective juror—appearance, religious beliefs, ethnic background, race, age, income, family status, sex, occupation, and political leanings—has significance to an accomplished trial lawyer.

"You must find out about a juror's background," he said. "A questionnaire shows conventional things. But a man may have a mistress, or doesn't get along with his wife, or has a lot of money.

"Never ask a juror a political question, but it's good to know if he's a liberal or conservative and whether he's paying $18 a month for a place or $1,800. Does he have a large family or a small one? Is he litigation prone—been sued himself?"

Fuchsberg said that in picking a jury "a lawyer has to have a knowledge of practical psychology. Sometimes it's just the way a man talks and looks at you. If he's trying to please you he may have reasons for wanting to stay on the jury. He may have the kind of background where he's been kicked off other panels. Nobody wants to be rejected.

LEADER-TYPE

Fuchsberg is also president of the Roscoe Pound-American Trial Lawyers Foundation, an organization dedicated to better trial court training for young attorneys. As an outspoken advocate of the jury system, he insists that the present selection system "all balances out. Juries are not stupid," he said. "I think the average juror does not try to act out of prejudice. He wraps himself in civic virtue. He's a judge now. He tries to act the part and do the right thing.

"Clarence Darrow made his reputation in civil cases in Chicago.

"I once heard him give a speech in which he said that the same kind of juror your defendant would want in a criminal case is the same as your plaintiff would want in a negligence case.

THE LIBERAL JUROR

"In my own experience the less skilled a man is the more liberal and more emphathetic he is, with less stake in aspiring to be part of the establishment."

Fuchsberg thinks that persons with a southern European or Latin background "traditionally express sympathy more outwardly. Negroes also tend to be more sympathetic to the underdog.

"On the other hand, Anglo-Saxons traditionally don't wear their heart on their sleeve," he said.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Dolwig's Windfall Stirs Capitol

By CAPITOL NEWS SERVICE

SACRAMENTO — An ethics probe into a reported $185,000 profit made by Sen. Richard Dolwig, R-San Mateo, following a favorable decision on the sale of stock by an insurance firm made by a state official, has been suggested by the leaders of the Legislature. Senate President Pro Tem Howard Way and Assembly Speaker Bob Monagan indicated they agreed the matter should be looked into by the committee. A story printed by a Southern California newspaper charges the decision was given after Dolwig authored a bill which would have resulted in the firing of the assistant to the state insurance commissioner. Dolwig has rejected the claim, saying he has done nothing wrong.

Pornography, and those who publish such materials, are faced with new laws today following the signing of two bills by Gov. Ronald Reagan aimed at restricting the publishing and selling for such items. Signed were SB-62 and SB-63, by Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Ventura, which are based on recent rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court concerning the printing of obscene materials to "appeal to the pruient interests" of the public. The laws provide for a $1,000 fine or six months in jail for such publications.

Cigarette advertsing will be banned in newspapers, television, radio, and on billboards throughout California under a bill, SB-341, which gained the approval of the Senate by a vote of 28-7. The vote on the bill by Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Beverly Holls was considered a surprise, with some experts saying the passage of the measure was in retaliation against the news media for unfavorable stories printed recently. Beilenson said his prime interest was to prevent "enticing" cigarette ads on television which were directed to young people. He said more than 4,000 young people begin smoking each day.

Uniform salaries for all teachers in unified districts throughout the state is the aim of a measure, AB-2216, authored by Assemblyman Jerry Lewis, R-San Bernardino, which has gained a vote of approval from the lower house. The bill is designed to prevent school districts, with combined levels of education, from setting differing pay schedules based on the grade levels taught. Lewis said the problem has been found, particularly in newly unified districts. The assembly vote was 58.0.

A white paper, or fully documented report on the recent "People's Park" riots in Berkeley has been promised by Reagan in an attempt to refute claims of the leaders of that confrontation that Reagan, in recent speeches, has been practicing the "big lie." The report is being prepared by the governor's staff.

Presumptive limits as they will affect drivers who consume alcohol has gained the approval of the Legislature and been signed by the governor. The measure, AB-105, by Assemblyman Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, sets the presumptive limits on the alcohol content of blood, breathe or urine, when a drinking driver may be presumed to be under the influence. As he signed the measure, Reagan declared it is "one of the most rewarding moments I have experienced as governor."

Local control of topless shows as well as other "lewd and indecent performances and exhibitions" was a step nearer to realization as the Senate Government Efficiency Committee voted out AB-524, by Assemblyman John Quimby, D-Rialto. The bill, already passed by the Assembly, would permit local governing boards to control such exhibitions. The measure would also permit the state to cooperate, by having the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control suspend or revoke licenses of establishments that Quimby said were "Dealing in human degredation for profit."

Second mailing of the $70 Homeowners Property Tax Relief checks of $70 each has been scheduled for July 9, according to State Controller Houston I. Flournoy. He reported more than 200,000 of the checks will be mailed on that date.

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The mounting pace of the "half-war" in the Middle Eeast caused considerable concern this week.

Hardly a day passed without a report of new violence somewhere in Israel or in one of the neighboring Arab countries as commandos and sabotage squads struck back and forth across the troubled borders.

In a space of less than 20 hours at the start of the week, Israeli and Egyptian commandos raided each other's lines and Israeli jets blasted targets in Jordan in retaliation for Arab rocket attacks. An Israeli announcement said 15 Egyptians were killed.

On Monday, Israeli commandos sabotaged the $85-million Ghor Canal, Jordan's most important irrigation project. On the Suez Canal front, Egyptian commandos attacked Israeli positions.

On Tuesday,an Arab saboteur's bomb blasted a pipeline at the big Haifa oil refineries, starting a fire and disrupting telephone service. A thousand tons of fuel was lost.

There appeared to be little prospect of an early settlement of the conflict.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

Buenos Aires — Saboteurs bombed nine supermarkets owned by a Rockefeller-family firm and an office building housing several U.S. firms on Thursday, three days before Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's scheduled arrival in Argentina. A dud bomb was found in a suburban office of the First National City Bank.

Washington — The Senate passed a "national commitments" resolution calling on the government not to commit troops or money to foreign countries without congressional approval.

New York—Funeral services were held for singing star Judy Garland who died of an accidental overdose of sleeping pills in London at the start of the week. She was 47.

Saigon—The fighting at Ben Het continued inconclusively, with U.S. artillery, helicopters and planes retaliating for enemy shelling. Military intelligence sources said the purpose of such attacks appears to be to influence U.S. public opinion against the war.

Jersey City, N.J. — Rafael Torres, a moderately successful grocery, was arrested on charges of killing his wife and seven of their nine children in an unexplained frenzy. An eighth child was seriously wounded and Torres himself was hospitalized poor condition after suffering a heart attack.

Tucson, Ariz.—Westbrook Pegley, former Pulitzer Prize columnist known for his caustic attacks on public figures who did not share his political views, died at 74.

GREGG SCHWEITZER of the Peacock Gap Junior Garden Club sees that some of the plants started by the group are kept watered. Those that make the proper progress will be entered in the Marin Art and Garden Fair's "Plant Now, Get Paid Later" competition for juniors.

Gardening For Juniors

When the Peacock Gap Junior Garden Club, a band of 28 intrepid youngsters, 6 to 10 years of age, decides to do anything, they do it all the way.

That's the way they decided to enter the 1969 Marin Art and Garden Fair's junior plant promotion, "Plant Now, Get Paid Later."

Learning about it back in February, they started their plants to enter in fair competition which takes place next week. The savage winter and the modern competition for the child's time took a high toll, but by lat spring, hopes, as well as many plants, were up high enough to talk about and even to take a few pictures.

Junior "Plant-Now" competition in the Marin County fair is for cut flowers, fruits and vegetables. Regular premiums of $3, $2 and $1 are offered for first, second and third places.

In addition, this year, three $5 cash awards are being given, one in each category, for entries flying the special "Plant Now, Get Paid Later" flags which were available, through April, at various nurseries and at the fair office. At that time, the Peacock Gap Junior Garden Club put in a large and hopeful store of flags, anticipating their walking off with a large part of the special "Plant-Now" money.

The Peacock Gap Junior Garden Club, organized last fall, is under the sponsorship of the Peacock Gap Garden Club. Co-chairmen are Mrs. L. T. Simmelink and Mrs. Gabriel Raab Jr.

The group has monthly programs where they not only learn about various aspects of growing things but actually grow them. They are also interested in conservation and recently took part in projects sponsored by the California Garden Clubs to raise money for the Pigmy Forest.

The group planted a tree for Arbor Day and have programs on flower arranging, anti-litter and wildlife.

KEN RAAB thinks he may very well be growing another "Jack-in-the-Beanstalk" plant. As a vine, it is coming along nicely. But it will require a lot of real hot sun to produce many string beans in time for the fair. (Independent-Journal photos)

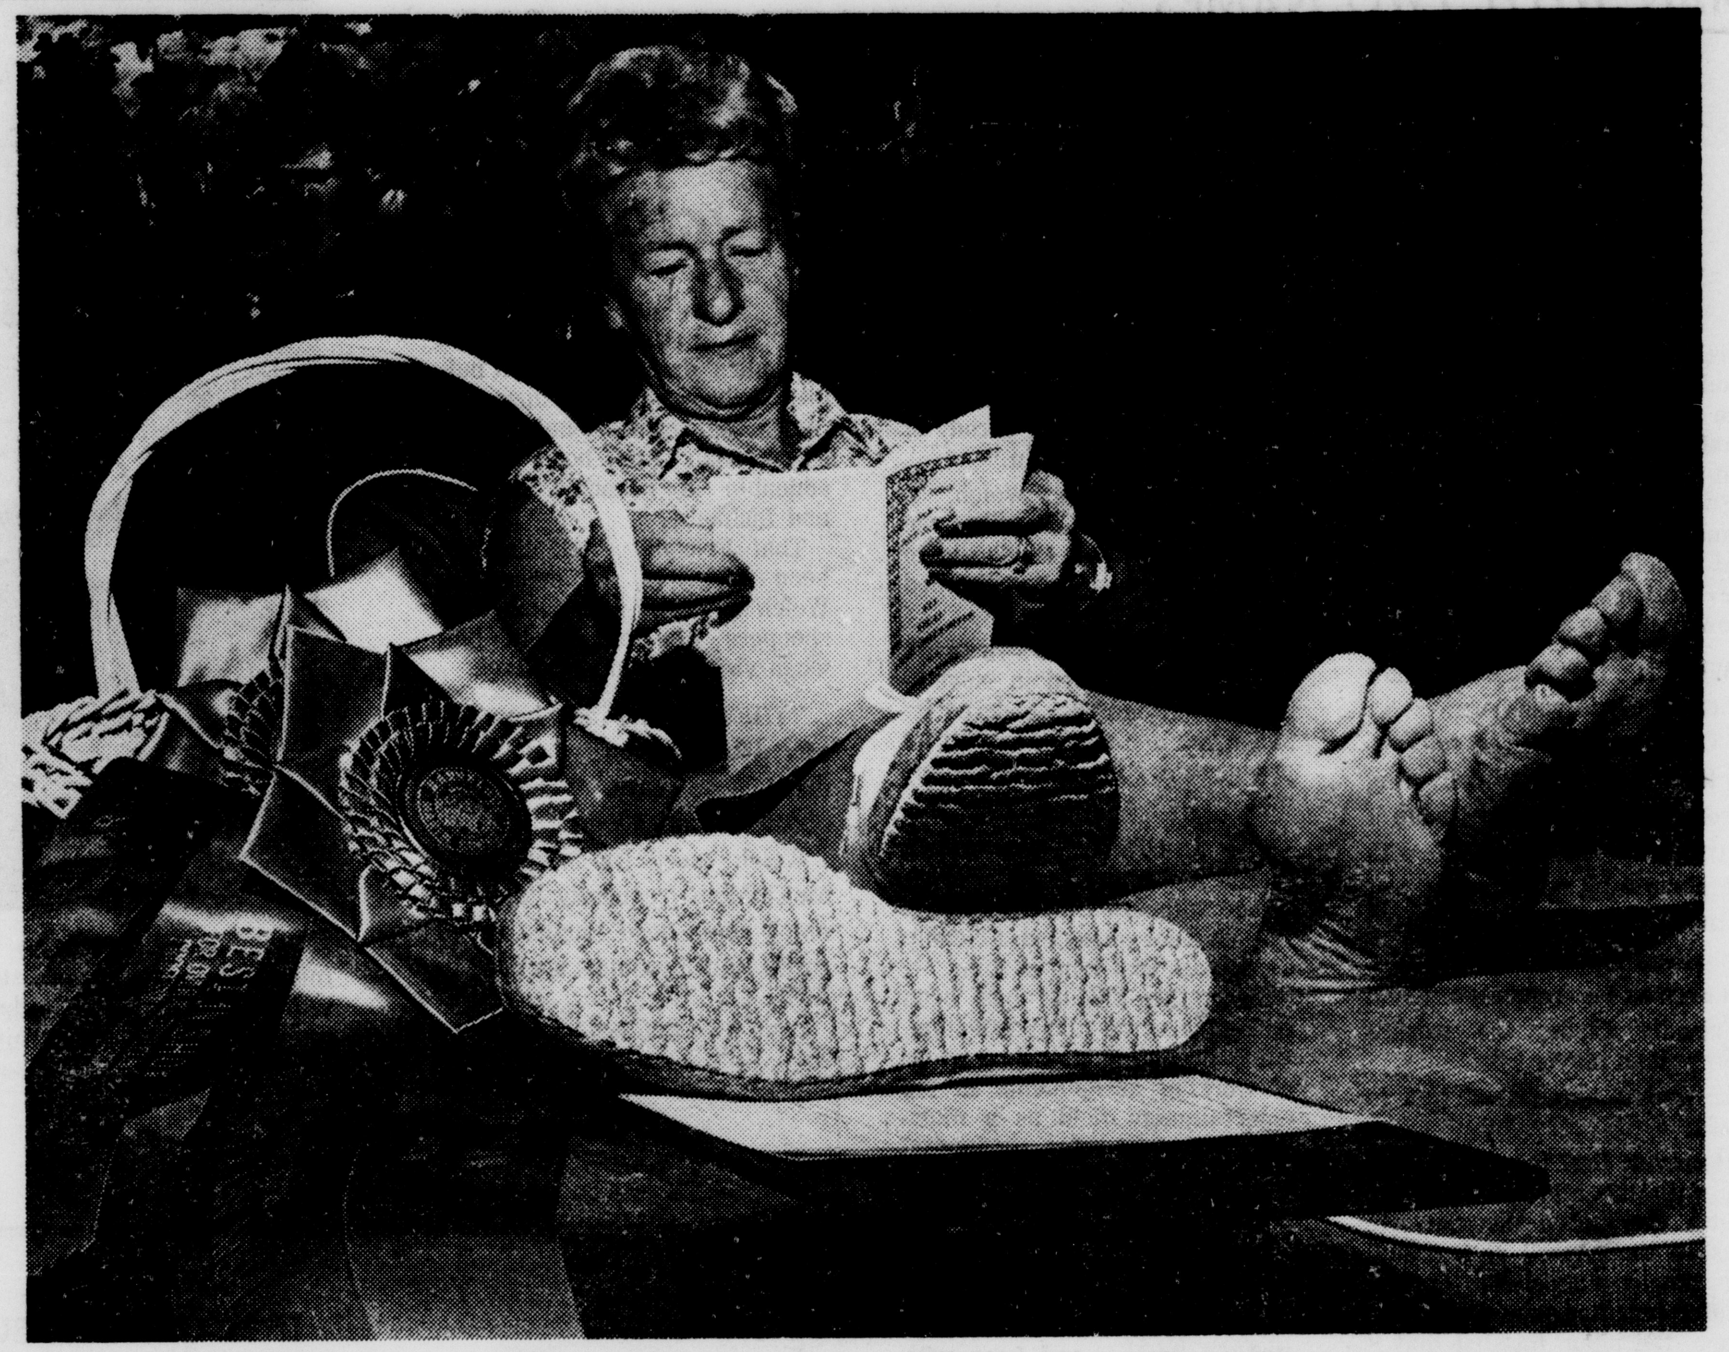
It's No Job For Sore Feet

Fair Judge Clerk Must Trot A Lot



SORTING THE RIBBONS and studying the program for the 1969 Marin County Art and Garden Fair, Mrs. Melvin (Rusty) Duncan also relaxes and gives her feet a rest in the lush garden of her San Anselmo home. Well rested and properly shod feet are a requisite for Mrs. Duncan's annual task as chief clerk to the judges of garden design at the Ross fair, a job which she will be tackling once again this coming Wednesday. (Independent-Journal photos)

The adage that there is a woman behind every important man will never be truer than on Wednesday morning when three judges, two of them male, will make the rounds of the display gardens at this year's Marin Art and Garden Fair and award $10,875 in premiums for design.

That woman, trotting along behind them, clipboard in hand, will be Mrs. Rusty Duncan, serving her sixth year in the highly important and sensitive volunteer position of chief clerk of garden design judges.

"Trotting" is an accurate word because, before the day is over, she and her assistant, the ribbon clerk, will have covered a score of miles guiding the judging team from one garden to another, crossing and criss-crossing the five acres of garden displays many times over. Even before Rusty Duncan meets with the judges and takes them on their first quick "look-see," she herself will have "cased" the grounds thoroughly and plotted the course.

It is no job for a woman whose feet hurt.

"COMFORTABLE shoes," she confesses, "are not only desirable but a necessity. I can't guess how many miles we cover during the judging period. Fortunately, in that department, 99 per cent of the judges, during my tenure, have been men — well-known landscapers, architects or professors, to whom shoe comfort is seldom a problem."

Just once, she recalls, a woman being on the judging team, (though there will be another this year).

"That year the lady judge's heels were low enough, but her shoes were open-toed. Before the day was over she was in misery."

Annually for the past 24 years, the Marin Art and Garden Fair in Ross has featured anywhere from 25 to 40 model gardens in some 15 categories, both amateur and professional. For the past six years, active Rusty Duncan (Mrs. Melvin Duncan of San Anselmo), one of the county's better gardeners in her own right, has served as the chief garden design clerk, a job demanding the diplomacy of an ambassador, the stamina of a long-distance runner and the even rarer ability to keep quiet.

OF THAT LAST she says: "Two things a clerk must never do is to inject her opinon or be indiscreet enough to mention an exhibitor's name, all of whom are carefully concealed during judging.

"Because the judges are usually well-known and highly knowledgeable, and because many of the exhibitors tend to have certain tell-tale styles, speculation as to whose work is being judged often runs high among the team. The clerk, who of course knows, but must never say 'aye' or 'nay' to any speculation until after the final ribbon has been put in place."

How are gardens judged?

"First," she says, "the judges generally take a quick tour through the area and note how the exhibitor has adapted his ideas and plant material to the description in the premium schedule. Next, they look for balance, color and harmony. Then they consider individual structures, theme and quality of plant material."

OTHER POINTS being equal, some of the things that seem to turn off the judges, according to Mrs. Duncan, are: non-adherence to theme, murky water if it is a water garden, ill-concealed plumbing, wilted plants or failure to cover structural materials such as plastic sheeting.

On the whole, the chief clerk says, the judges she has worked with have been highly skilled, cooperative and easy-to-get-along-with. Landscape designers tend to be strong on plant material while architects lean toward structures. However agreement is generally quickly reached.

Often one of the three judges might indicate that, while he doesn't agree, he will concede.

This does not mean they always see eye-to-eye from the beginning. On one occasion, she recalls, two judges saw nothing particularly commendable about a long, skinny Japanese-style garden, stretching along the center's boundary fence. The third judge kept arguing in its favor and returning to it. He finally won out by arguing: "Look what the exhibitor has done with an impossible physical setting and under the most difficult situation?" It got the blue ribbon.

ANOTHER YEAR, she recalls, the situation got rather "sticky-wicket" when one judge found few gardens he felt qualified for blue ribbons.

This, she pointed out, brings up the interesting fact about the Marin fair. In this particular model garden show, unlike a beauty contest, the exhibitor competes not only against others in his category, but against standards.

In other words, the best of what is in the show does not automatically get the blue ribbon. If, in the opinion of the judges, no garden in a particular category is up to blue ribbon standards, no first place ribbon is awarded.

Another time, she recalls a judge being so enthralled and happy with the show he literally had to be pried away from each garden. "If he hadn't, we would have still been there." The prodding job, of course, fell to diplomat Duncan.

THE SAME GROUP of judges who pin the awards on the professional gardens also make awards to the amateur section. Mrs. Duncan was asked if there is an obvious difference between the two categories.

"The subject matter in the amateur gardens is more obvious—a weaver's garden, an artist's garden, a children's garden. The professional garden tends to be sleeker and the plant material more sophisticated. But that is not to put down the amateur gardens as simply the work of loving-hands-at-home. They are far more than that."

Also, she pointed out, there is often apt to be some humor injected into the amateur garden. Seldom is this so in a professional one.

The role and the hours spent as chief garden judge clerk are made easier for Rusty Duncan by her own abiding love for plant material. The Melvin Duncan home on Oak Avenue, high in the San Anselmo hills, testifies to that. It is a garden showplace.

"I GROW everything up here — even things that aren't supposed to grow up here in this sort of scrub-oak, hard-pan habitat."

And by everything she means just that — not only all the plants and shrubs that flourish with tender loving care, but also tropicals like ginger, tube roses, bird of paradise, orchid and fern. There are also espaliered apples against a garage wall and old English holly burgeoning with berries, lots of citrus, Japanese maples and rock terrace after rock terrace of plantings.

There is one hanging basket of asparagus fern however, that is dying for lack of water. It looks out-of-place in its well-watered surroundings.

"There is a nest of baby birds in it," she explains fondly. "The fern will just have to be replaced."

HER FAVORITES, next to the tropicals, are bonsai, and many of them rest happily in lovely containers in the spacious decks that surround the hill-top house.

The fair's chief garden clerk thinks she probably came by her love of gardening naturally — though it took some time for it to surface. She was raised on a Sonoma County farm on the Russian River. In college she took nearly every kind of botany course available — not so much because she liked botany, but because it excused her from such other courses she considered distasteful, like zoology, chemistry and anatomy.

Rusty Duncan has served two years as president of the Northgate Group of the Marin Art and Garden Center and has chaired nearly every major activity of that group. She is also active with Sunny Hills.

The Players Are Part Of The Fair

The current, but by no means final, balance sheet of the Ross Valley Players reads something like this: 39 years of existence, nearly 120 stellar productions, 100,000 hamburgers, 30,000 chicken dinners, a lot of laughs and a repertory of memories.

That isn't bad in the world of little theater where the mortality rate is high.

The productions and the years of existence are a matter of record. The hamburgers and the chicken dinners — recall something quite different.

THEY RECALL the coexistence of the Ross Valley Players with the annual Marin Art and Garden Fair, (this year next Wednesday through July 6) in the operation of the restaurant in the Northgate area of the Marin Art and Garden Center. That operation, over the years, has turned many a good actor into an even better short-order cook.

Last year's 5,000 hamburgers served by the actors-turned-cooks is a long way from the Players' humble start in the culinary world. That began back in 1951 when Dave Massingham headed a committee to put in a hamburger snackbar at the fair. It operated from a lean-to and, due to space limitations, only a handful of people were involved.

Today the five-day fair run of the restaurant, headed by veteran Player Carl Riznik, uses the services of about 50 members a day.

THE PLAYERS themselves pre-date their fair involvement by many years. The group started in 1930 with some young married Ross couples. While its stated purpose was thespian in nature, actually it was formed primarily to provide a social outlet for young depression-hit couples.

Eugene Lloyd, a shipping executive, reluctantly became its first president. All the way home from that first meeting, recalls Mrs. Beth Lloyd, he grumbled "steamroller politics." He pointed out that amateur theatricals bored him and reminded her that he had come only as her escort and at her insistence.

His protests at the first meeting had been countered with "Who wants an actor for a president? We need a business man." That sentiment set a precedent.

CREDITED WITH the original idea for the group were Mrs. Thomas Babcock, Mrs. George Mosle and Mrs. William Miles. An insurance man, A. P. Conklin, mailed 25 invitations to a meeting and the group was shakily launched. The first production was two one-act plays: "A Page from Pepy's Diary" and "The Port of Missing Things."

George E. Lask, an old-time theatrical director and a local resident, volunteered to do the directing.

Many of the productions in the 1930s could be classed as extravaganzas, recalls Mrs. Lloyd, who suddenly found herself drafted as wardrobe mistress, a role she held until she resigned from the group. She remembers with fondness, such productions at Woodland Theater, the Players' early home, as "The World We Live In," "Distant Drums," "Kismet," "Peer Gynt" and "Robin Hood," all of which were costumed in the Louis B. Mayer tradition.

MRS. LLOYD remembers other things too.

Like the opening night of "Robin Hood" when one of the leads, Clyde Barnwell, suffered a heart attack and Bill Gwinn, now a part of the professional Hollywood scene but then a Player, stepped in and took over the role without a hitch.

"That wouldn't have been so miraculous" she says, "except for one thing. Never before had he been able to remember lines."

A wardrobe crisis occurred when arrangements to secure the many and elaborate "bug" costumes for the production "The World We Live In" fell through a week before opening.

"FOR A WEEK every bathtub in Ross Valley was full of material being dyed," she recalls.

During the costuming of the exotic middle-Eastern set "Kismet," Mrs. Lloyd and her mother-in-law never saw the Ross summer sun for a solid month, coming down from their attic cutting-and-sewing room only to eat and sleep.

The 30s and 40s produced two Players in Roland Telfer and Cameron Prud'homme, who were to go on to greater things. Both of them had been professionals before their Player stints, but became famous afterwards.

THE WAR YEARS ushered in another era for the Ross Valley Players with the fund-raising cabaret productions "A Night at Duffee's" that were reportedly started in a fit of pique — not unusual in an actor's group.

When the Players' board suggested dropping from membership a square dance group, formed within the parent group, as being "unproductive," the dance group decided to show the parent group their fund-raising abilities. They did. The many "Nights at Duffee's" were gala fund-raising successes to which local servicemen's groups were invited free.

In the late 1930s the group moved to the Barn at the Marin Art and Garden Center, where it still remains. Gradually the emphasis shifted from pageantry to drama. The end of the war saw still another change in the membership roster and with it came such production successes as "Mister Roberts," "No Time for Sergeants," "Stalag 17," "Tea House of the August Moon" and "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker."

RECENT productions have included the all-time moneymaker for the Players, "A Thousand Clowns," "The Odd Couple," "Any Wednesday," and the last and most recent production, "The Impossible Years."

The list of presidents of the group, once called "Marin's First Social Club," reads like a "Who's Who of Marin County."

Starting with Eugene Lloyd, who served from 1930 to 1932, there are Albert Kent, 1932; Russell Smith, 1933; Sam Abbott, 1934; William H. Thomas, 1935; Irwin Holton, 1936; Gilbert

It's No Job For Sore Feet

Fair Judge Clerk Must Trot A Lot

SORTING THE RIBBONS and studying the program for the 1969 Marin County Art and Garden Fair, Mrs. Melvin (Rusty) Duncan also relaxes and gives her feet a rest in the lush garden of her San Anselmo home. Well rested and properly shod feet are a requisite for Mrs. Duncan's annual task as chief clerk to the judges of garden design at the Ross fair, a job which she will be tackling once again this coming Wednesday. (Independent-Journal photos)

The adage that there is a woman behind every important man will never be truer than on Wednesday morning when three judges, two of them male, will make the rounds of the display gardens at this year's Marin Art and Garden Fair and award $10,875 in premiums for design.

That woman, trotting along behind them, clipboard in hand, will be Mrs. Rusty Duncan, serving her sixth year in the highly important and sensitive volunteer position of chief clerk of garden design judges.

"Trotting" is an accurate word because, before the day is over, she and her assistant, the ribbon clerk, will have covered a score of miles guiding the judging team from one garden to another, crossing and criss-crossing the five acres of garden displays many times over. Even before Rusty Duncan meets with the judges and takes them on their first quick "look-see," she herself will have "cased" the grounds thoroughly and plotted the course.

It is no job for a woman whose feet hurt.

"COMFORTABLE shoes," she confesses, "are not oniy desirable but a necessity. I can't guess how many miles we cover during the judging period. Fortunately, in that department, 99 per cent of the judges, during my tenure, have been men — well-known landscapers, architects or professors, to whom shoe comfort is seldom a problem."

Just once, she recalls, a woman being on the judging team, (though there will be another this year).

"That year the lady judge's heels were low enough, but her shoes were open-toed. Before the day was over she was in misery."

Annually for the past 24 years, the Marin Art and Garden Fair in Ross has featured anywhere from 25 to 40 model gardens in some 15 categories, both amateur and professional. For the past six years, active Rusty Duncan (Mrs. Melvin Duncan of San Anselmo), one of the county's better gardeners in her own right, has served as the chief garden design clerk, a job demanding the diplomacy of an ambassador, the stamina of a long-distance runner and the even rarer ability to keep quiet.

OF THAT LAST she says: "Two things a clerk must never do is to inject her opinon or be indiscreet enough to mention an exhibitor's name, all of whom are carefully concealed during judging.

"Because the judges are usually well-known and highly knowledgeable, and because many of the exhibitors tend to have certain tell-tale styles, speculation as to whose work is being judged often runs high among the team. The clerk, who of course knows, but must never say 'aye' or 'nay' to any speculation until after the final ribbon has been put in place."

How are gardens judged?

"First," she says, "the judges generally take a quick tour through the area and note how the exhibitor has adapted his ideas and plant material to the description in the premium schedule. Next, they look for balance, color and harmony. Then they consider individual structures, theme and quality of plant material."

OTHER POINTS being equal, some of the things that seem to turn off the judges, according to Mrs. Duncan, are: nonadherence to theme, murky water if it is a water garden, ill-concealed plumbing, wilted plants or failure to cover structural materials such as plastic sheeting.

On the whole, the chief clerk says, the judges she has worked with have been highly skilled, cooperative and easy-to-get-along-with. Landscape designers tend to be strong on plant material while architects lean toward structures. However agreement is generally quickly reached.

Often one of the three judges might indicate that, while he doesn't agree, he will concede.

This does not mean they always see eye-to-eye from the beginning. On one occasion, she recalls, two judges saw nothing particularly commendable about a long, skinny Japanese-style garden, stretching along the center's boundary fence. The third judge kept arguing in its favor and returning to it. He finally won out by arguing: "Look what the exhibitor has done with an impossible physical setting and under the most difficult situation?" It got the blue ribbon.

ANOTHER YEAR, she recalls, the situation got rather "sticky-wicket" when one judge found few gardens he felt qualified for blue ribbons.

This, she pointed out, brings up the interesting fact about the Marin fair. In this particular model garden show, unlike a beauty contest, the exhibitor competes not only against others in his category, but against standards.

In other words, the best of what is in the show does not automatically get the blue ribbon. If, in the opinion of the judges, no garden in a particular category is up to blue ribbon standards, no first place ribbon is awarded.

Another time, she recalls a judge being so enthralled and happy with the show he literally had to be pried away from each garden. "If he hadn't, we would have still been there." The prodding job, of course, fell to

IN RECALLING the Players' long association with the Marin Art and Garden Fair, now in its 24th year, it seemed natural for actors to get into the spirit of this year's theme, "In Old New Orleans," and help publicize the fair by portraying famous characters associated with the Vieux Carre.

And that is exactly what they did. You see the results in these pages.

THE MARKET PLACE was one of Old New Orleans' most colorful spots. Ross Valley Players Mrs. Virginia O'Brien, left, and Mrs. June Burks portray two elegant Creole ladies on a mid-morning visit to the French flower mart. When the 1969 Marin Art and Garden Fair opens Wednesday, this same spot will become the restaurant traditionally operated by the Players.

THE MARDI GRAS or Fat Tuesday revelry is symbolic of New Orleans. In this "made in Marin" version of the festivity, Mario Gianetti plays the "king of the Mardi Gras," while Ellen Clarke Eilert is the queen. With them, Mrs. Eilert's daughters, Buffie, holds a comic Jean LaFitte parade mask. Their float was photographed at the crossroads of the Marin Art and Garden Center where much of the fair activity will be occurring next week.

A COLORFUL FIGURE in early New Orleans history was the gentleman-pirate Jean LaFitte. Dick Helm of the Ross Valley Players portrays that character, standing on the bridge that will be in the center of the professional garden area when the 1969 Marin Art and Garden Fair opens Wednesday.

ANOTHER HISTORIC figure in Old New Orleans was the famous ornithologist and artist J. J. Audubon, who produced his folios "The Birds of America" in 1827 while teaching drawing in his humble New Orleans studio. Tom Hendricks is seen as Audubon where, starting Wednesday, artists "in action" will demonstrate their skills for Marin Art and Garden Fair visitors. (Photos by Ken Molino)

Glasgow's Beautiful Sister City

Edinburgh Delights Visitors

By DON KEOWN

YES, YOU DO still see kilts in Scotland. And such sights as this piper entertaining a visiting uniformed American police officer with a Scottish air, played from Ayrshire's Brig O'Doon, made immortal by Robert Burns' account of Tam O'Shanter's wild ride on his mare Meg.

Poor Glasgow. It fares so badly as the ugly sister because of its proximity to beautiful and glamorous Edinburgh.

No fairy godmother or urban renewal is likely to create from her a Cinderella city.

So the thing to do, after landing at Glasgow, the aviation hub of Scotland, is to depart immediately for Edinburgh.

There you can enjoy one of the most attractive metropolitan centers on earth. And unlike some other beautiful cities (San Francisco, for instance), Edinburgh is at her prettiest in the very heart of her downtown shopping district.

THIS IS because Edinburgh's principal shopping thoroughfare, Princes Street, is broad, clean and handsome, lined with well-kept stores and office buildings, and, along one side for a considerable stretch, with the greenery and bright blooms of Princes Gardens.

From this garden park, a long, curling walk sweeps upwards through lawns and flower beds to reach ultimately impressive Edinburgh Castle, looming high overhead on a cliff. Edinburgh Castle, as viewed from Princes Street, is one of the never-to-be-forgotten sights of Britain.

A closer, downtown landmark is the Scott Monument which towers in eye-pleasing proportions. You will want to climb the 270-some (or is it 370-some?) steep and spiraling steps to enjoy a vista well worth the effort that extends beyond the city to the waters of the Firth of Forth.

ALSO IN THE heart of downtown and awaiting art-lovers is the National Gallery where during the national exhibition Scotland's finest paintings and sculpture are housed each summer.

From near Scott's Monument, the Edinburgh City Transport operates a series of bargain sightseeing bus tours for visitors. You'll want to ride to the gates of Edinburgh Castle, also to Arthur's Seat, the high point from which you can enjoy the best view of the entire city.

But you should walk, not ride, the Royal Mile. This is the distance the royal coaches have traveled for centuries between Hollyrood Palace, the now seldom-used home of the British monarch when in Scotland, to Edinburgh Castle along the streets of Old Town. Those streets are twisting and cobbled, fronted by venerable old buildings, straight out of the 18th Century.

IN MAKING that walk you will also be making a number of stops. For a couple of history-filled museums, Huntly House and Canongate Tolbooth, across the street from each other. For John Knox's home, now also a museum crammed with memorabilia from the life of the famed churchman. For tea and cakes at one of the shops. To look at the woollens in another. To go inside beautiful St. Giles' Cathedral.

And to investigate the contents of Lady Stairs' House, loaded with mementoes of Sir Walter Scott, Robert Burns and Robert Louis Stevenson. Edinburgh rivals Dublin and London for a literary past, and along with Scott, Burns and Stevenson, others such as Daniel Defoe have left their stamp on the city.

For "something different" take a city bus — Edinburgh's municipal transport is very good — and ride to Dean's Bridge. Beneath the span you will find Dean's Village, a collection of very old and now very quiet houses and buildings from out of the past. You can stroll on a broad path along the water back toward the city's center.

EDINBURGH'S prices for both lodging and food are quite reasonable, and not too difficult to come by except at festival time in the late summer when reservations are most advisable.

The larger hotels generally are located near Waverly Railroad Station, itself just off Princes Street. There is a long skein of smaller, cheaper, but clean and comfortable hotels perched along the Royal Terrace, also close in. Guesthouses abound.

The Brown Derby on Princes serves excellent food, and the prices are right. From its elevated corner dining room you have a superb view of the castle.

DON'T BE surprised if you are seated at a table already occupied by others, or others are brought to your table. The thrifty Scots do not waste table space. For one Brown Derby meal, our companions proved to be an Edinburgh lady and her visiting sister from Santa Rosa. The Santa Rosan spoke with a decided Scottish burr. The Edinburgh resident did not.

The Chocolate House and the Shortbread House, both on Princes, are sparkling little places that serve excellent snacks and light meals. The Laigh Coffee House on Hanover Street is another. The Epicure at 10 Shadwick Street, end of Princes, is a place to splurge a bit on continental cuisine for luncheon or dinner.

But gneerally, Scottish beef, Scottish lamb and Scottish salmon are the things to eat in Scotland, along with the excellent breads and tea. Skip the haggis.

YOU WILL no doubt breakfast at your hotel. And a big one

HER INVOLVEMENT in the Marin County Art and Garden Fair as chief clerk for the garden design judges comes natural to Rusty Duncan, for she is herself an accomplished and dedicated gardener. Here she is seen at work in her own garden, which features a wide variety of plantings, from tropicals to English holly, from espaliered fruit trees to bonsais.

diplomat Duncan.

THE SAME GROUP of judges who pin the awards on the professional gardens also make awards to the amateur section. Mrs. Duncan was asked if there is an obvious difference between the two categories.

"The subject matter in the amateur gardens is more obvious—a weaver's garden, an artist's garden, a children's garden. The professional garden tends to be sleeker and the plant material more sophisticated. But that is not to put down the amateur gardens as simply the work of loving-hands-at-home. They are far more than that."

Also, she pointed out, there is often apt to be some humor injected into the amateur garden. Seldom is this so in a professional one.

The role and the hours spent as chief garden judge clerk are made easier for Rusty Duncan by her own abiding love for plant material. The Melvin Duncan home on Oak Avenue, high in the San Anselmo hills, testifies to that. It is a garden showplace.

"I GROW everything up here — even things that aren't supposed to grow up here in this sort of scrub-oak, hard-pan habitat."

And by everything she means just that — not only all the plants and shrubs that flourish with tender loving care, but also tropicals like ginger, tube roses, bird of paradise, orchid and fern. There are also espaliered apples against a garage wall and old English holly burgeoning with berries, lots of citrus, Japanese maples and rock terrace after rock terrace of plantings.

There is one hanging basket of asparagus fern however, that is dying for lack of water. It looks out-of-place in its well-watered surroundings.

"There is a nest of baby birds in it," she explains fondly. "The fern will just have to be replaced."

HER FAVORITES, next to the tropicals, are bonsai, and many of them rest happily in lovely containers in the spacious decks that surround the hill-top house.

The fair's chief garden clerk thinks she probably came by her love of gardening naturally — though it took some time for it to surface. She was raised on a Sonoma County farm on the Russian River. In college she took nearly every kind of botany course available — not so much because she liked botany, but because it excused her from such other courses she considered distasteful, like zoology, chemistry and anatomy.

Rusty Duncan has served two years as president of the Northgate Group of the Marin Art and Garden Center and has chaired nearly every major activity of that group. She is also active with Sunny Hills.

they don't hardly make 'em like that anymore!

At long last someone had the courage to build a sofa or fine chair the old way—carefully hand tieing not only the seats but backs as well. Supervising each little detail so that what's inside is just as important as what you actually see. Impeccable styling—guaranteed craftsmanship.

Walking The Royal Mile And Shopping On Princes Street

it will be, in the tradition that holds forth throughout the United Kingdom and Ireland.

One treat you will not want to miss is luncheon at the Tryst on High Street across from St. Giles' Cathedral. It is upstairs in a thick-walled old stone building where Oliver Cromwell once resided, quite colorful, quite good and quite reasonable as well.

The favored pub is Deacon Brodie's Tavern on Bank Street uphill from Princes.

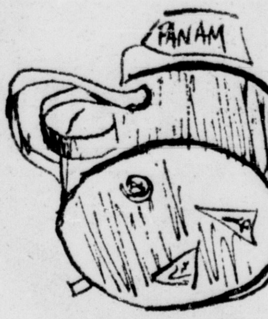
Except at festival time, Edinburgh is not noted for its nightlife. Even the pubs close at 10 and do not open at all on Sunday. But you can find folk singing as an added delight in many of the pubs while open. And there are summer evening military and bagpipe concerts on the castle escarpment and in Princes Park.

SHOPPING WILL occupy much of the daytime hours of the woman. Jenner's on Princes is the big store. But there are many splendid shops. Scottish sweaters are, of course, the favorite item.

From Edinburgh, two major side excursions beckon. You can head for the border country associated with Scott. Or you can travel north into the highlands. Although it was very early May, we chose the north.

Traveling by uncrowded train from Edinburgh to Inverness with a compartment to ourselves, we passed through the pretty festival town of Pitlochry, beside clear fishing streams, and then through alternating patches of white snow and purple heather.

INVERNESS, "capital of the highlands," is an old town on the River Ness and at the head of the Inverness Firth, surrounded by wildlands through which young back packers were already hiking. The clean, rushing river lends the town most of its appeal.



Inverness Castle looks down upon it, and when we visited it, we were pleased to hear bagpipe music coming mysteriously from within the castle. It turned out to be a young bagpipe band rehearsing, and soon the pipers and drummers were drilling outside along the river bank.

A one-day bus trip took us farther north to the village of Dornoch. Our vehicle proved to be a combination public transport, school bus, mail truck and commuter service. The conductor acted as postman, and also kept the school kids in line.

WHEN ONE little old lady wanted to do a bit of shopping in a small village, the bus waited patiently while she completed her transaction. Dornoch, too, had its castle, now in use as a hotel.

The return south to Glasgow where we were to catch our plane was made in two days by comfortable bus with the overnight stop in the interesting old town of Fort William, resembling an American frontier outpost in Alaska. A good part of one of those days was spent riding along the shores of Loch Ness, with nary a sight of the fabled monster. And a sizable portion of the second day our bus followed the bonnie banks of Loch Lomond, an incredibly beautiful body of blue water reflecting trees and mountains that more than lives up to its romantic reputation. The sight of Loch Lomond alone is worth a trip to Scotland.

The arrival in grimy, grim Glasgow brings one back to reality with a thud, after the fantasy of the highlands.

ANY STORY of Scotland without greater attention to the Scottish people themselves would be incomplete. Unfairly characterized as dour and stingy, they are, instead, most cheerful, generous and exceedingly friendly and helpful, as fine a people as one could hope to encounter anywhere.

The tourist is always accorded a warm welcome and extended assistance that, if at times a bit too profuse, is certainly well-intentioned.

One example: On a very cold and windy night, my wife and I were caught in a driving rain in Edinburgh. We attempted a shortcut back to our hotel. Predictably, we were soon lost in a maze of dark streets, getting wetter and colder by the minute.

FOR HELP I accosted one elderly man hurrying along the walk, no doubt bound for home. What we got was not the verbal information requested, but a personal guide every step of the way back to the doorway of our hotel. It must have taken him many, many blocks out of his way on that miserable night, for our's was not his direction. But even when he had us back among familiar surroundings and we assured him we could then locate our hotel, he insisted on completing the walk, all the time keeping up a patter of friendly chatter about his relatives in the States.

That was the way of the Scots.

Clerks — who do not really speak a different language, their brand of English just sounds that way — will leave their store counters unattended to accompany you outside and point out directions, even to rival shops about which you have inquired.

As for kilts — yes, you do see them. But not many. Perhaps it was not yet the season for them. Anyway, the infrequent sight of a brae Scot in that traditional dress served to remind us that we were, indeed, in the land of the Stuarts, the MacGregors and the Campbells.

Walking The Royal Mile And Shopping On Princes Street

it will be, in the tradition that holds forth throughout the United Kingdom and Ireland.

One treat you will not want to miss is luncheon at the Tryst on High Street across from St. Giles' Cathedral. It is upstairs in a thick-walled old stone building where Oliver Cromwell once resided, quite colorful, quite good and quite reasonable as well.

The favored pub is Deacon Brodie's Tavern on Bank Street uphill from Princes.

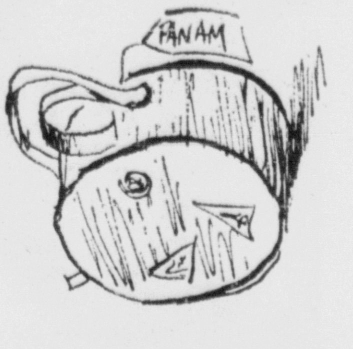
Except at festival time, Edinburgh is not noted for its nightlife. Even the pubs close at 10 and do not open at all on Sunday. But you can find folk singing as an added delight in many of the pubs while open. And there are summer evening military and bagpipe concerts on the castle escarpment and in Princes Park.

SHOPPING WILL occupy much of the daytime hours of the woman. Jenner's on Princes is the big store. But there are many splendid shops. Scottish sweaters are, of course, the favorite item.

From Edinburgh, two major side excursions beckon. You can head for the border country associated with Scott. Or you can travel north into the highlands. Although it was very early May, we chose the north.

Traveling by uncrowded train from Edinburgh to Inverness with a compartment to ourselves, we passed through the pretty festival town of Pitlochry, beside clear fishing streams, and then through alternating patches of white snow and purple heather.

INVERNESS, "capital of the highlands," is an old town on the River Ness and at the head of the Inverness Firth, surrounded by wildlands through which young back packers were already hiking. The clean, rushing river lends the town most of its appeal.



Inverness Castle looks down upon it, and when we visited it, we were pleased to hear bagpipe music coming mysteriously from within the castle. It turned out to be a young bagpipe band rehearsing, and soon the pipers and drummers were drilling outside along the river bank.

A one-day bus trip took us farther north to the village of Dornoch. Our vehicle proved to be a combination public transport, school bus, mail truck and commuter service. The conductor acted as postman, and also kept the school kids in line.

WHEN ONE little old lady wanted to do a bit of shopping in a small village, the bus waited patiently while she completed her transaction. Dornoch, too, had its castle, now in use as a hotel.

The return south to Glasgow where we were to catch our plane was made in two days by comfortable bus with the overnight stop in the interesting old town of Fort William, resembling an American frontier outpost in Alaska. A good part of one of those days was spent riding along the shores of Loch Ness, with nary a sight of the fabled monster. And a sizable portion of the second day our bus followed the bonnie banks of Loch Lomond, an incredibly beautiful body of blue water reflecting trees and mountains that more than lives up to its romantic reputation. The sight of Loch Lomond alone is worth a trip to Scotland.

The arrival in grimy, grim Glasgow brings one back to reality with a thud, after the fantasy of the highlands.

ANY STORY of Scotland without greater attention to the Scottish people themselves would be incomplete. Unfairly characterized as dour and stingy, they are, instead, most cheerful, generous and exceedingly friendly and helpful, as fine a people as one could hope to encounter anywhere.

The tourist is always accorded a warm welcome and extended assistance that, if at times a bit too profuse, is certainly well-intentioned.

One example: On a very cold and windy night, my wife and I were caught in a driving rain in Edinburgh. We attempted a shortcut back to our hotel. Predictably, we were soon lost in a maze of dark streets, getting wetter and colder by the minute.

FOR HELP I accosted one elderly man hurrying along the walk, no doubt bound for home. What we got was not the verbal information requested, but a personal guide every step of the way back to the doorway of our hotel. It must have taken him many, many blocks out of his way on that miserable night, for our's was not his direction. But even when he had us back among familiar surroundings and we assured him we could then locate our hotel, he insisted on completing the walk, all the time keeping up a patter of friendly chatter about his relatives in the States.

That was the way of the Scots.

Clerks — who do not really speak a different language, their brand of English just sounds that way — will leave their store counters unattended to accompany you outside and point out directions, even to rival shops about which you have inquired.

As for kilts — yes, you do see them. But not many. Perhaps it was not yet the season for them. Anyway, the infrequent sight of a brae Scot in that traditional dress served to remind us that we were, indeed, in the land of the Stuarts, the MacGregors and the Campbells.

The Players Are Part Of The Fair

The current, but by no means final, balance sheet of the Ross Valley Players reads something like this: 39 years of existence, nearly 120 stellar productions, 100,000 hamburgers, 30,000 chicken dinners, a lot of laughs and a repertory of memories.

That isn't bad in the world of little theater where the mortality rate is high.

The productions and the years of existence are a matter of record. The hamburgers and the chicken dinners — recall something quite different.

THEY RECALL the coexistence of the Ross Valley Players with the annual Marin Art and Garden Fair, (this year next Wednesday through July 6) in the operation of the restaurant in the Northgate area of the Marin Art and Garden Center. That operation, over the years, has turned many a good actor into an even better short-order cook.

Last year's 5,000 hamburgers served by the actors-turned-cooks is a long way from the Players' humble start in the culinary world. That began back in 1951 when Dave Massingham headed a committee to put in a hamburger snackbar at the fair. It operated from a lean-to and, due to space limitations, only a handful of people were involved.

Today the five-day fair run of the restaurant, headed by veteran Player Carl Riznik, uses the services of about 50 members a day.

THE PLAYERS themselves pre-date their fair involvement by many years. The group started in 1930 with some young married Ross couples. While its stated purpose was thespian in nature, actually it was formed primarily to provide a social outlet for young depression-hit couples.

Eugene Lloyd, a shipping executive, reluctantly became its first president. All the way home from that first meeting, recalls Mrs. Beth Lloyd, he grumbled "steamroller politics." He pointed out that amateur theatricals bored him and reminded her that he had come only as her escort and at her insistence.

His protests at the first meeting had been countered with "Who wants an actor for a president? We need a business man." That sentiment set a precedent.

CREDITED WITH the original idea for the group were Mrs. Thomas Babcock, Mrs. George Mosle and Mrs. William Miles. An insurance man, A. P. Conklin, mailed 25 invitations to a meeting and the group was shakily launched. The first production was two one-act plays: "A Page from Pepy's Diary" and "The Port of Missing Things."

George E. Lask, an old-time theatrical director and a local resident, volunteered to do the directing.

Many of the productions in the 1930s could be classed as extravaganzas, recalls Mrs. Lloyd, who suddenly found herself drafted as wardrobe mistress, a role she held until she resigned from the group. She remembers with fondness, such productions at Woodland Theater, the Players' early home, as "The World We Live In," "Distant Drums," "Kismet," "Peer Gynt" and "Robin Hood," all of which were costumed in the Louis B. Mayer tradition.

MRS. LLOYD remembers other things too.

Like the opening night of "Robin Hood" when one of the leads, Clyde Barnwell, suffered a heart attack and Bill Gwinn, now a part of the professional Hollywood scene but then a Player, stepped in and took over the role without a hitch.

"That wouldn't have been so miraculous" she says, "except for one thing. Never before had he been able to remember lines."

A wardrobe crisis occurred when arrangements to secure the many and elaborate "bug" costumes for the production "The World We Live In" fell through a week before opening.

"FOR A WEEK every bathtub in Ross Valley was full of material being dyed," she recalls.

During the costuming of the exotic middle-Eastern set "Kismet," Mrs. Lloyd and her mother-in-law never saw the Ross summer sun for a solid month, coming down from their attic cutting-and-sewing room only to eat and sleep.

The 30s and 40s produced two Players in Roland Telfer and Cameron Prud'homme, who were to go on to greater things. Both of them had been professionals before their Player stints, but became famous afterwards.

THE WAR YEARS ushered in another era for the Ross Valley Players with the fund-raising cabaret productions "A Night at Duffee's" that were reportedly started in a fit of pique — not unusual in an actor's group.

When the Players' board suggested dropping from membership a square dance group, formed within the parent group, as being "unproductive," the dance group decided to show the parent group their fund-raising abilities. They did. The many "Nights at Duffee's" were gala fund-raising successes to which local servicemen's groups were invited free.

In the late 1930s the group moved to the Barn at the Marin Art and Garden Center, where it still remains. Gradually the emphasis shifted from pageantry to drama. The end of the war saw still another change in the membership roster and with it came such production successes as "Mister Roberts," "No Time for Sergeants," "Stalag 17," "Tea House of the August Moon" and "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker."

RECENT productions have included the all-time moneymaker for the Players, "A Thousand Clowns," "The Odd Couple," "Any Wednesday," and the last and most recent production, "The Impossible Years."

The list of presidents of the group, once called "Marin's First Social Club," reads like a "Who's Who of Marin County."

Starting with Eugene Lloyd, who served from 1930 to 1932, there are Albert Kent, 1932; Russell Smith, 1933; Sam Abbott, 1934; William H. Thomas, 1935; Irwin Holton, 1936; Gilbert

Today's Tycoons As Viewed By Believer In Gospel Of Galbraith

THE MONEYMAKERS by Kenneth Lamott; Little, Brown, 306 pages, $6.75. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Kenneth Lamott, Tiburon freelance writer, is fascinated by wealth. As this fascination is shared by a large portion of the populace, and as Lamott is an accomplished writer, "The Moneymakers: or The Great Big New Rich in America" would appear offhand to be a likely bet for the best-seller list.

However, the odds are otherwise.

Lamott begins by defining "the Great Big New Rich" as those Americans with fortunes of 100 million dollars or more. He then selects 13 of them, ranging from D. K. Ludwig to H. L. Hunt, to examine as examples. As he notes, most of these are little known to the public, contrast to the prominence of the "robber barons" of an earlier generation.

The expositions of the careers of these men unfortunately do little to satisfy our curiosity as to how they got that way. The brief sketches seem to have been drawn mainly from the Wall Street Journal book, "The New Millionaires and How They Made Their Fortunes," and from sundry light magazine and newspaper features which Lamott does not bother to list in the bibliography.

Interspersed with these rather unsatisfying sketches are chapters in which the author philosophizes and lectures about wealth, American folklore, income tax, etc.

Lamott is no Gustavus Myers detailing the devious designs by which the rich acquired their wealth. Like Myers, he lectures. But his lectures wander. Myers' classic "History of the Great American Fortunes" was based on the simple and straight-forward premise that, while anybody can make an honest dollar, nobody can make an honest million dollars. Lamott seems to subscribe to that, but one is never quite sure.

There is a surprising naivete about some of Lamott's lectures, too. For instance, he says the "Great Big New Rich . . . have virtually no political power," contrasting this with the direct and indirect influence of the "robber barons," who "could deliver messages to Capitol Hill or even to the White House with the certain knowledge that their instruction would be obeyed." It does not seem to occur to Lamott that politics, like most other things, has changed considerably in the last century, and that nowadays political influence is exercised through bureaucrats who are as faceless as D. K. Ludwig (the least known of his 13 examples), rather than through senators or presidents. More than half of these men of "virtually no political power" got a big leg up the ladder of fortune through government contracts, as even the sketchy career descriptions in "The Moneymakers" demonstrate. There is competition for such contracts, and the really fat ones are not likely to fall into the laps of men with "virtually no political power."

Contributing to the lack of cohesion of "The Moneymakers" is the author's penchant for inserting all sorts of quotations from all sorts of people throughout its pages, some of them being only vaguely revelant.

These quotations contribute little to the book, but they serve to inform the reader that Lamott is a great admirer of John Kenneth Galbraith, who is quoted far more frequently than anybody else.

If the book has a text, it would seem to be drawn from the First Epistle of Paul to Timothy, which Lamott does not quote (being fonder of the gospel according to Galbraith): "The love of money is the root of all evil."

Kenneth Lamott is, as we said at the beginning, an accomplished writer. But he is not at his best in "The Moneymakers." This is too bad, for the subject of the tycoons of our day is certainly one that commands wide interest and cries for more thorough examination.

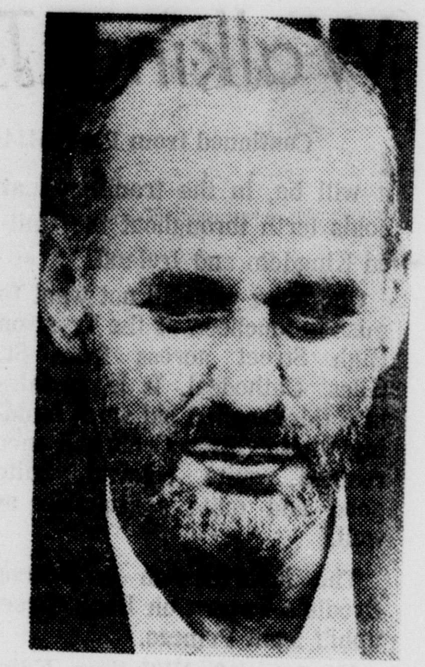
Russell On Reason

THE ART OF PHILOSOPHIZING AND OTHER ESSAYS by Bertrand Russell; Philosophical Library, 119 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This is a collection of three pieces written by the British philosopher during World War II while he was teaching in America, and published now for the first time in book form.

The essays stem from a period when Russell was less concerned with specific controversial social issues and more interested in the broader question of how man reaches his conclusions. His target was the irrational creeds that man had adopted. His hope — a more logical reasoning in the future. It is doubtful if Russell, today, would feel that the intervening years have seen any substantial progress toward the realization of that hope. But then, he admitted to utopianism at the time in expressing the hope that man might ultimately learn from experience.

ROBERT LOWELL
Exciting insights



LAWRENCE FERLINGHETTI
Adolescent rawness

Three Very Different Poets—

NOTEBOOK 1967-68 by Robert Lowell, Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 161 pages, $6. THE SECRET MEANING OF THINGS by Lawrence Ferlinghetti, New Directions, 48 pages, $3.95. THAT SHINING PLACE by Mark Van Doren, Hill & Wang, 81 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Except the fact that they are well-known — by name at least — these three poets have almost nothing whatever in common. Three more different concepts of poetry would be hard to find.

Robert Lowell is the most prominent, of course, with a high-ranking international reputation, an irreproachable scholar and award-winning translator. He is of the confessional school; his work includes many allusions that are inaccessible, or of no interest, to the general reader, but he is well worth a careful reading nevertheless, for he is capable of highly exciting insight. Acutely attuned to our times as he is, it is the more exasperating that he is so often content to muffle his lines in woolly prosiness.

In the course of this volume, which is in the form of one long journal poem, he hits some shining high spots, especially in a charged group of poems dealing with a Mexican love affair, and some intriguing poems to, and for, other poet luminaries — Pound, Eliot, Frost, etc.

Ferlinghetti's works should be, as they so often are, read aloud by an emotional reader who is able to infuse them with the life they lack on the printed page.

This new collection, consisting of six long poems, is splashed out with his typical adolescent rawness (like Peter Pan, Ferlinghetti does not age). There is some word on the jacket cover about "deepening of vision," but it reads like more of the shallow prose commentary on our times that Ferlinghetti always makes, with Far Eastern flourishes, and more pretentiously personal references than seems fair, really.

Mark Van Doren is probably America's most distinguished poet working in the traditional framework. His elegantly structured poems are charming, and they are remote, exuding an air of other worlds, other times. Publication of this collection marks the poet-teacher-critic's 75th birthday.

Rachel's Sister Proves Simpatico

THE FIRE-DWELLERS by Margaret Laurence; Knopf, 308 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Margaret Terrien.

In the poignant final scene of the film "Rachel, Rachel," the 35-year-old spinster heroine and her nattering mother are busing out of town on a permanent move to the Pacific Northwest, where lives Rachel's sister Stacey Cameron MacAindra with her husband and four children. The movie faithfully follows Margaret Laurence's previous novel, "A Jest of God."

If you left the theater lumpy-throated and hoping Rachel's (Joanne Woodward's) sister was simpatico, you may rest assured. Stacey is great.

The title of this companion novel refers, of course, to woman's immemorial but claustrophobic role as keeper of the hearth.

Stacey, who as the book begins is facing her 40th birthday, left her Canadian priarie hometown when she was "nearly 19, expert typist, five foot three, with breasts like apples as it says in the Song of Solomon."

In Vancouver she first worked, then met and married for love Mac, who was "27, hopeful, confident, lean. Agamemnon king of men or the equivalent, at least to her." The children arrive, planned and unplanned, and Stacey takes night courses in Aspects of Contemporary Thought and Ancient Greek Drama.

Mac is a salesman and, unfortunately, the only one-dimensional character in the book. But the reader can be grateful that neither he nor Stacey have a married sex hang-up. Just the inevitable "maybe I'm missing something" blues that beset the middle-aged.

Stacey, a devoted, involved mother and an honest, lusty woman, naturally buckles under the strain at least twice a week and bleakly admits to herself, "I'm bloody sick of trying to cope. I don't want to be a good wife and mother."

She can't help herself, though. Inadequate she may feel, overly dependent on the solitary gin and tonic, prone to escapist daydreams, to Tommy Dorsey's "Boogie-Woogie," but she still loves her work. Her four children are interesting and recognizable, and author Laurence is not sticky about them.

When husband Mac, feeling hag-ridden by business and wife, demands that she "leaves me alone," Stacey temporarily whirls off for a night drive in the mountains. This accidentally leads to a two-encounter affair with an engaging and virile writer, 15 years her junior.

And if all this weren't enough, Stacey, like the rest of us, must constantly confront, assimilate, and interpret to her children the horror depicted daily on the "ever-open eye" of the family television. All those wounded, scared, and dying kids in Vietnam. To say nothing of the increasing violence and despair at home.

Two of the MacAindras' family friends are involved in suicides; one disguised, one abortive.

"The Fire-Dwellers" cannot be dismissed with that most insulting of all put-downs: "a woman's book." Margaret Laurence's vivid, conversational, often poetic style; her masterful technique (which obviously has been influenced by the stylist innovations of modern film-making); her wit, earthiness, humanity — all these combine with a swift storyline to produce a book fit for human beings.

Any man who has ever wondered, "Do women ever think of sexy things like . . .?" should find this book enlightening.

Yes, women do.

Close To The Earth And Heart

COME GENTLE SPRING by Jesse Stuart; McGraw-Hill, 282 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bruce Coleman.

Jesse Stuart has a fine way of telling stories of his native Appalachia which—though we're sure they are based on truth—have a touch of the fantastic about them.

For example, in this collection of 20 yarns, he has one entitled "Seventy-Six Days" about a man who bet "pa" he couldn't eat a quail a day for 76 days.

Pa knew he could but then when he had about 18 to go he began to get sick from buckshot poisoning and then he went the way of all men. And, on his marker on the hill, sat a little quail.

There is a picaresque quality in Stuart's stories of love in the spring, hunting and an amusing one about a hen that crowed and said bad words. You feel you are sitting down with the author and he's telling you the stories with a twinkle in his eyes as you await the unraveling.

Besides being a humorist, he is a poet: "She was as slender and as straight as a young sapling and as soft as the young sassafras leaves in early spring."

If you like stories close to the earth and near to the heart —and you are a hill or a mountain person, too — this is your book.

Except the fact that they are well-known — by name at least — these three poets have almost nothing whatever in common. Three more different concepts of poetry would be hard to find.

Robert Lowell is the most prominent, of course, with a high-ranking international reputation, an irreproachable scholar and award-winning translator. He is of the confessional school; his work includes many allusions that are inaccessible, or of no interest, to the general reader, but he is well worth a careful reading nevertheless, for he is capable of highly exciting insight. Acutely attuned to our times as he is, it is the more exasperating that he is so often content to muffle his lines in woolly prosiness.

In the course of this volume, which is in the form of one long journal poem, he hits some shining high spots, especially in a charged group of poems dealing with a Mexican love affair, and some intriguing poems to, and for, other poet luminaries — Pound, Eliot, Frost, etc.

Ferlinghetti's works should be, as they so often are, read aloud by an emotional reader who is able to infuse them with the life they lack on the printed page.

This new collection, consisting of six long poems, is splashed out with his typical adolescent rawness (like Peter Pan, Ferlinghetti does not age). There is some word on the jacket cover about "deepening of vision," but it reads like more of the shallow prose commentary on our times that Ferlinghetti always makes, with Far Eastern flourishes, and more pretentiously personal references than seems fair, really.

Mark Van Doren is probably America's most distinguished poet working in the traditional framework. His elegantly structured poems are charming, and they are remote, exuding an air of other worlds, other times. Publication of this collection marks the poet-teacher-critic's 75th birthday.

Rachel's Sister Proves Simpatico

THE FIRE-DWELLERS by Margaret Laurence; Knopf, 308 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Margaret Terrien.

In the poignant final scene of the film "Rachel, Rachel," the 35-year-old spinster heroine and her nattering mother are busing out of town on a permanent move to the Pacific Northwest, where lives Rachel's sister Stacey Cameron MacAindra with her husband and four children. The movie faithfully follows Margaret Laurence's previous novel, "A Jest of God."

If you left the theater lumpy-throated and hoping Rachel's (Joanne Woodward's) sister was simpatico, you may rest assured. Stacey is great.

The title of this companion novel refers, of course, to woman's immemorial but claustrophobic role as keeper of the hearth.

Stacey, who as the book begins is facing her 40th birthday, left her Canadian priarie hometown when she was "nearly 19, expert typist, five foot three, with breasts like apples as it says in the Song of Solomon."

In Vancouver she first worked, then met and married for love Mac, who was "27, hopeful, confident, lean. Agamemnon king of men or the equivalent, at least to her." The children arrive, planned and unplanned, and Stacey takes night courses in Aspects of Contemporary Thought and Ancient Greek Drama.

Mac is a salesman and, unfortunately, the only one-dimensional character in the book. But the reader can be grateful that neither he nor Stacey have a married sex hang-up. Just the inevitable "maybe I'm missing something" blues that beset the middle-aged.

Stacey, a devoted, involved mother and an honest, lusty woman, naturally buckles under the strain at least twice a week and bleakly admits to herself, "I'm bloody sick of trying to cope. I don't want to be a good wife and mother."

She can't help herself, though. Inadequate she may feel, overly dependent on the solitary gin and tonic, prone to escapist daydreams, to Tommy Dorsey's "Boogie-Woogie," but she still loves her work. Her four children are interesting and recognizable, and author Laurence is not sticky about them.

When husband Mac, feeling hag-ridden by business and wife, demands that she "leaves me alone," Stacey temporarily whirls off for a night drive in the mountains. This accidentally leads to a two-encounter affair with an engaging and virile writer, 15 years her junior.

And if all this weren't enough, Stacey, like the rest of us, must constantly confront, assimilate, and interpret to her children the horror depicted daily on the "ever-open eye" of the family television. All those wounded, scared, and dying kids in Vietnam. To say nothing of the increasing violence and despair at home.

Two of the MacAindras' family friends are involved in suicides; one disguised, one abortive.

"The Fire-Dwellers" cannot be dismissed with that most insulting of all put-downs: "a woman's book." Margaret Laurence's vivid, conversational, often poetic style; her masterful technique (which obviously has been influenced by the stylist innovations of modern film-making); her wit, earthiness, humanity — all these combine with a swift storyline to produce a book fit for human beings.

Any man who has ever wondered, "Do women ever think of sexy things like . . .?" should find this book enlightening.

Yes, women do.

Close To The Earth And Heart

COME GENTLE SPRING by Jesse Stuart; McGraw-Hill, 282 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bruce Coleman.

Jesse Stuart has a fine way of telling stories of his native Appalachia which—though we're sure they are based on truth—have a touch of the fantastic about them.

For example, in this collection of 20 yarns, he has one entitled "Seventy-Six Days" about a man who bet "pa" he couldn't eat a quail a day for 76 days.

Pa knew he could but then when he had about 18 to go he began to get sick from buckshot poisoning and then he went the way of all men. And, on his marker on the hill, sat a little quail.

There is a picaresque quality in Stuart's stories of love in the spring, hunting and an amusing one about a hen that crowed and said bad words. You feel you are sitting down with the author and he's telling you the stories with a twinkle in his eyes as you await the unraveling.

Besides being a humorist, he is a poet: "She was as slender and as straight as a young sapling and as soft as the young sassafras leaves in early spring."

If you like stories close to the earth and near to the heart —and you are a hill or a mountain person, too — this is your book.

Contemporary History As Seen By One Of The New Radicals

By DON KEOWN

EMPIRE AND THE REVOLUTION by David Horowitz; Random House, 274 pages, $5.95.

The rhetoric of the New Left often sounds too hysterically shrill to command the serious attention of the establishment.

Yet, if for reasons of self-defense alone, these young and very different radicals should be heard. Communication, at least, must be attained, if today's already dreadful hostilities are not to grow still worse.

David Horowitz' "Empire and Revolution: A Radical Interpretation of Contemporary History" can serve as an introduction to this thinking. It is not an easy book to read, but it deals with important subject matter in a manner that is revealing of what the clamor at Berkeley, Columbia, the Sarbonne, etc., is all about.

Horowitz, author and Ramparts editor, is nothing if not straight-forward in his conclusion:

"More than ever before, for humanity to live under capitalism is to live on borrowed time. . . . Liberation is no longer, and can be no longer, merely a national concern. The dimension of the struggle, as Lenin and the Bolsheviks so clearly saw, is international; its road is the socialist revolution."

This has been preceded by Horowitz' retracing, from his point of view, world history since the Bolshevik seizure of the Russian reins a half century ago.

The fact that that revolutionary movement went wrong, at least temporarily, he attributes partially to "the primitive and miserable setting" in which the socialist experiment began, and more strongly to the devastating civil war, instigated by the West, he claims, that followed the relatively bloodless Bolshevik revolution.

It was this civil strife, he says, that "ruined an already damaged economy; it brutalized and demoralized the population, destroyed the party system, institutionalized the terror as an instrument of the state, and generally prepared the way for the emergence of the Stalinist regime and its rule."

It caused a shift from the conditional determinism and reliance upon revolutionary internationalism of the original Bolsheviks to a theory of casual determinism, in which history marches inevitably, unaffected by man, and to an intense nationalism that left Russia turned inward and isolated.

Forcible industrialism and collectivization, says Horowitz, became the accepted alternatives to "the spread of the revolution." Consequently, the European revolution essential to the total success of the Soviet experiment never materialized, leaving Russian alone in an unfriendly world of imperialistic capitalist powers.

The Stalin brand of revolution, Horowitz writes, was "based not on class but on bureaucracy, not on a popular upsurge, but on the suppression of the popular will. (It) liquidated class rule but regimented lives. . . . (It) encouraged the resurgence of Russian nationalism, the rejection of which had been the very basis of the Leninist break with social democracy."

Horowitz then proceeds with his interpretation of pre-war friction, the uneasy World War II alliance, and the ensuing Cold War and coexistence years.

The de-Stalinization of the Soviet Union was, in Horowitz' opinion, a move toward "decentralization and democratization" that was only "half-hearted and incomplete." Consequently, though other countries adopted Marxism, "no community of socialist states was ever realized."

Yet Horowitz does see new evidence of a delayed realization of the old Bolshevik faith in revolutionary internationalism. Fidel Castro's Cuba is his prime example. To him it is "revolution released from Russian nationalist confines and . . . accelerating socialist development in the direction of (Bolshevism's) democratic and internationalist ideals."

Despite his disappointment with Russian socialism, Horowitz is consistently much harder on his own country and its capitalism. "It is unrealistic not to regard the U.S. as an imperialist power," he argues, though he admits that it has been symbolic of idealistic anti-imperialism.

Now, he continues, the U.S. has hardened its role to that of "conservative guardian of the status quo," shaking off all idealistic inhibitions.

Horowitz sees little hope for permanent reconciliation between the Soviet Union and the United States. "Soviet national interest lies in supporting socialist revolution; the U.S. national interest lies in opposing them," he says, posing a basic conflict. This leaves, in his view, other peoples confronted with a choice between embracing a socialist system or facing domination by the U.S. capitalistic monolith that has been acquiring more and more economic power abroad.

Horowitz' interpretation of history is unquestionably colored by the red-tinted glasses he wears as an unabashed and undisguised radical. But then, analytical history invariably is affected by the beliefs and prejudices of the interpreter. That Horowitz' slant is different and more pronounced than that of more orthodox historians does not necessarily make it less valid, although the degree of partiality should make it more suspect.

Anyway, his book does constitute an earnest effort to explain why some young leftists are insisting that a modification of our system is not enough, that what is needed is an entirely new system. It tells us something of what lies behind the shouting and confronting.

THE SPY WHO WASN'T EXCHANGED by Alfred Tack; Doubleday, 215 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The cynicism with which nations practice intelligence, the ploys and counter-ploys, the doublecross and triplecross, is a familiar theme in spy fiction by now.

English industrialist-writer Alfred Tack isn't on par with Len Deighton or John LeCarre in handling it, but nevertheless he employs it rather well.

James Mason, business man specializing in export trade, agrees to undertake a mission to Moscow for the English, partly out of patriotism, partly out of his feelings for a younger girl, an agent, with whom he has fallen in love. Once in Moscow, Mason finds himself caught in a pincers, imperiled by two rival Soviet intelligence agencies and possibly by the British as well who just might regard him as expendable.

Tack uses his personal knowledge of international commerce to good effect. His Russian characters tend to become caricature villains. But excitement and intrigue are very much present, and there is a nice surprise twist at the end.

ANDREW F. ROLLE, the Occidental College historian, has brought his standard text, "California: A History," that first appeared in 1963, up to date with a second edition that includes both new historical research and key developments of the middle and late 1960s.

Looking into the future, Rolle says: "That (the) state will continue to expand — in population, economy and power — is a prediction easily made. That this expansion will beget cultural depth and significance cannot be forecast so readily. . . . To move from frontier conditions into urban grandeur provides a great challenge to any culture. One day a new faith in their future may help Californians to build more than plastic cities pockmarked by ugliness, and the blight of impersonality.

"At that point materialist boosterism will have given way to the confidence of solid achievement. Beauty lost will have become beauty rewon."

PABLO PICASSO, of course, is not noted for his poetry. But he does write poems infrequently. "Trozo de Piel" or "Hunk of Skin" was his first, in 1959, to be written in Spanish, and now it has received its first English translation by Paul Blackburn, in City Lights' The Pocket Poets Series, with an introduction by Camilo Jose Cela.

The small book contains both Spanish and English texts on facing pages.

And there is a good deal of the painter Picasso also to be seen in the poet Picasso: "Every silver lining has its dark cloud said the cobbler/ and you don't skin your mother in the open window . . ."

FOR THE poet the problem of getting his or her verse into print is a most frustrating one. The market for poetry is extremely restricted and highly erratic.

LOUDSPEAKER COMMENTS — Periodically articles describing how to build speaker systems appear in magazines. Many of these articles are based on the use of several inexpensive small 4 or 5 inch loudspeakers instead of one or two more costly high fidelity units. Supposedly, several speakers instead of one will provide equal sound quality for less investment.

An example of one of these articles was a speaker system requiring 16 small speakers costing about $2.00 each. What happens with a system of this type? It's true that 16 small speakers moving together push as much or more air in motion as does one large speaker but! There is a great deal more air put into motion at the tones that the small speakers perform their best. Since these small speakers do not perform very well at the low bass tones, these bass tones although much louder than if one speaker were performing alone, are still much weaker than the higher tones.

A small inexpensive speaker has high distortion and an uneven tonal response throughout its useful range. Connecting more of these speakers together does not reduce the distortion, it merely intensifies it. The overall sound will be even more non-linear with several units because of the beaming effects caused by placement of the units around each other. The only real advantages of multiple inexpensive speaker arrangements is a spatial effect caused by the broader area reproducing the sound, and an ability to handle more power.

A commercially available speaker system is made up of several small speakers with an electronic equalizer to make the small speakers sound full range. This type of system is designed by measuring the sound output throughout the range and installing equalizing circuitry to hold down the peaks to correspond with the level of the weak bass tones. Unfortunately, this type of tuning, as it might be called, is only accurate for the location and room for which it was tuned. The sound in any room is greatly influenced by the reflections and the absorbing characteristics of the room. The room may magnify some tones and absorb others. For smooth response, a tuning would be required for each room, and every time the speaker system is moved even within the same room. Our firm is prepared to tune a quality system in your home. We use expensive laboratory test equipment. However, the cost of the broad band filters and narrow band filters is fairly high.

WRITING FOR CHILDREN

The Goal: A Sharpening Of That Dimension Of Amazement

THE GREEN AND BURNING TREE by Eleanor Cameron; Atlantic-Little, Brown, 377 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Eleanor Cameron is one author of books for children who can never be accused of "writing down" for her young audience.

In her "The Green and Burning Tree: On the Writing and Enjoyment of Children's Books," she says: "I have never felt it necessary that a child be able afterwards to explain every twist and turn of a story he has read." The writer, she insists, should not feel restricted as to plotting or to vocabulary.

Yet with her distinguished Mushroom Planet Series and her other books such as the splendid "A Spell Is Cast," all of which rely heavily on fantasy and in none of which is there the slightest condescension, Mrs. Cameron has demonstrated a remarkable gift for establishing a rapport with the very young.

What she sets out to accomplish for her young reader, she says in one of the series of essays that make up "The Green and Burning Tree," is to make certain "that his excitement be set simmering."

"The Green and Burning Tree" is one of those books you begin somewhat hesitantly, almost reluctantly, and then, after some sticky early going, you suddenly find yourself in tune with Mrs. Cameron's wave length, discovering that this talented, vital woman has some most sagacious and stimulating things to say. So you read on and on, more and more eager to follow this most sensitive mind and most expressive voice.

Her chapter on "Of Style and the Stylist" is a work of beauty in itself, and by reading it you realize that Mrs. Cameron is a most extraordinary stylist in her own right, capable of weaving perfectly-crafted phrases into lengthy and at first glance seemingly complicated sentences that, when examined more closely, prove to be astonishingly simple with each individual thread easily separated and followed. She has, too, the knack for pure, exact language — the ability to select the one and only proper word and the courage to then use it unhesitatingly, whether it be of two or many syllables.

In short, her book can be read for example as well as for its discursive merits, which are considerable.

Mrs. Cameron takes strong exception to those who contend there is no such thing as children's books, and even stronger umbrage at those who admit its existence, but are contemptuous of it.

"Children's and adult literature are facets of a single art, and . . . the highest standards of one hold good for the other," she asserts.

Yet, she continues, there are definite qualities that set apart the successful writer for children from other authors: "Perhaps there can be no doubt that what the great writers for children have in common is that they have somehow retained into adulthood many of the mental qualities of children. . ."

She explores with skill and insight the parts played by time and place in the backgrounds and in the works of these authors. And one of her most captivating chapters is devoted to writer-artist-translator Wanda Gag.

It is not surprising that Mrs. Cameron accords the writing of fantasy special attention. It is a genre, she says, that succeeds and survives by dangling before young readers some "unsatisfied desire, the experience of which is in itself more desirable than any satisfaction." Could anyone put it more finely?

And she writes that fantasy that lives avoids the "escape" role even though it is set outside the world of reality, for it possesses a convincing reality of its own, and contains "the essential truths of the human condition."

Great fantasy, she continues, is rooted in such enduring qualities as toughness, wonder, humor, tenderness, wisdom and imagination "pressed down and running over" that nourish the child toward maturity.

Her book sparkles with such names as Walter de la Mare, C. S. Lewis, Rumer Godden, J. R. R. Tolkien, Lewis Carroll, Beatrix Potter, Hans Christian Andersen, Lucy Boston, Hugh Lofting and other fantasists and fairytale spinners she admires. In them she detects a general sharing of the experience of unhappiness in their own childhoods that seems "almost a prerequisite of creativity."

Some readers will suspect Mrs. Cameron of having idealized the reading interests and habits of children, based upon the exceptional coterie of small admirers with whom she is most familiar. But she would reply that this hunger for fine reading is present in all or most children, and she particularly laments the failure of education to give greater attention to children's literature in the preparation of its teachers so that they might be equipped to bring out this latent interest.

"The passion and tenderness and laughter, the imaginative powers and penetrations we find in the great writers . . . can help children in their battle against deprivation," she believes.

Her key point is: "You can write for children without writing down." And the goal she sets is: To sharpen and to intensify that "dimension of amazement" that lies within each child and sets him apart from all other creatures.

NEW READING FOR JUNIORS

As witnessed by their universal popularity as topics of conversation, weather and what determines it have always been of keen interest to people, old and young alike.

Weather-related space achievements have served to heighten that interest.

Roy A. Gallant wrote his "Exploring the Weather" for young readers more than a decade ago, and now has brought it up to date in a new edition for Doubleday to include science's new understanding of the subject.

It is a book that already claims the endorsements of such groups as the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Best Books for Children, National Science Foundation and the Library Journal.

Actually, it seems to us that Gallant has been guilty of lowering his stylistic sights in aiming at an audience of 14 and younger, as deplored by Eleanor Cameron. (See review on this page.) He has used the short, choppy sentences so many writers think appropriate for junior readers, and generally, except where scientific terms are irreplaceable, he has stuck to the simplest words. Children with a genuine interest in meteorology no doubt would be able to absorb and even appreciate a higher level of writing.

But the information that Gallant imparts about weather and related topics is unquestionably sound and understandable. And he has been extended a large assist by illustrator Lowell Hess, who is responsible for the drawings and diagrams, many of them in color, that support the text.

From the making of weather forecasting and recording devices to the anatomy of a tornado, the questions are all answered, making the $4.50 book an excellent choice for the child, especially about 11 or 12, whose intellectual curiosity is pointed in the direction of the sciences and of meteorology in particular.

Some other new books for the juniors:

As a man and as an artist, Charles Dickens is one of literature's most appealing figures of all-time. As a personality he still intrigues us today. And as an author, his work still charms and stimulates us. Lettice Cooper, London biographer, has written his story in "A Hand Upon the Time" (Pantheon, $3.95). Her chronicle of the eventful life of the Victorian great in a colorful era is acceptable if hardly exceptional writing. Supposedly it is for the 12 to 16-year-olds, but most likely it will strike its most responsive chord at about 12 and 13-year level.

"Catproof, Windproof, Rainproof" (Doubleday, $3.50) by Marcelle and Harold Bowman has as its heroine a sparrow in search of a safe place for her nest. Eventually, of course, Amanda Sparrow and her mate Sylvester succeed. It is a cheerful little tale for 7-year-olds and younger, accompanied by soft, subdued artwork enlivened with an occasional splash of color. It is also an appealing plea on behalf of birds.

"Tony and the Toll Collector" (Little, Brown, $3.95) by Eric Stevenson with illustrations by James Stevenson deals with a subject familiar to Marin youngsters, thanks to the proximity of the San Francisco Bay bridges. It tells of the friendship one lad develops with his favorite tolltaker, and of the day that gentleman was replaced by a basket into which you tossed your quarter. It has, however, a happy ending. The black and white ink drawings, too, have a happy, droll simplicity.

Robert Graves is the distinguished author of the small book "The Poor Boy Who Followed His Star." (Doubleday, $3.50). The poet-novelist-critic re-tells beautifully and sensitively a 17th Century fantasy by the Sufi sage Halquavi recorded earlier by Idries Shah in his "Tales of the Dervishes." There is adventure as well as magic, and a happy ending for one poor lad who sets out to better himself. Illustrations in the book, for children up to 10, are by Alice Meyer-Wallace.

"The Curse of the Dragon's Gold" (Doubleday, $4.50) is an unusually rich collection of legendary tales from Europe, put together by Jacynth Hope-Simpson, the English storyteller. She gives us the epic heroes of several lands, doing battle with monsters, trying to please their fair ladies, etc. It is a book populated by werewolves, knights, giants, kings and dragons, and Mrs. Hope-Simpson's retelling of these age-old tales is splendid.

"The Fabulous Earthworm Deal" (Viking $4.50) by Arthur D. Stapp is an entertaining book for boys about a couple of lads who plunge into a most unusual business venture and with ingenuity and industry overcome some unexpected obstacles. The story is told with humor and in a manner which creates in the reader a sense of sharing the experiences of J. T. and Marsh. In other words a true slice from young life.

LOUDSPEAKER COMMENTS — Periodically articles describing how to build speaker systems appear in magazines. Many of these articles are based on the use of several inexpensive small 4 or 5 inch loudspeakers instead of one or two more costly high fidelity units. Supposedly, several speakers instead of one will provide equal sound quality for less investment.

An example of one of these articles was a speaker system requiring 16 small speakers costing about $2.00 each. What happens with a system of this type? It's true that 16 small speakers moving together push as much or more air in motion as does one large speaker but! There is a great deal more air put into motion at the tones that the small speakers perform their best. Since these small speakers do not perform very well at the low bass tones, these bass tones although much louder than if one speaker were performing alone, are still much weaker than the higher tones.

A small inexpensive speaker has high distortion and an uneven tonal response throughout its useful range. Connecting more of these speakers together does not reduce the distortion, it merely intensifies it. The overall sound will be even more non-linear with several units because of the beaming effects caused by placement of the units around each other. The only real advantages of multiple inexpensive speaker arrangements is a spatial effect caused by the broader area reproducing the sound, and an ability to handle more power.

A commercially available speaker system is made up of several small speakers with an electronic equalizer to make the small speakers sound full range. This type of system is designed by measuring the sound output throughout the range and installing equalizing circuitry to hold down the peaks to correspond with the level of the weak bass tones. Unfortunately, this type of tuning, as it might be called, is only accurate for the location and room for which it was tuned. The sound in any room is greatly influenced by the reflections and the absorbing characteristics of the room. The room may magnify some tones and absorb others. For smooth response, a tuning would be required for each room, and every time the speaker system is moved even within the same room. Our firm is prepared to tune a quality system in your home. We use expensive laboratory test equipment. However, the cost of the broad band filters and narrow band filters is fairly high.

WRITING FOR CHILDREN

The Goal: A Sharpening Of That Dimension Of Amazement

THE GREEN AND BURNING TREE by Eleanor Cameron; Atlantic-Little, Brown, 377 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Eleanor Cameron is one author of books for children who can never be accused of "writing down" for her young audience.

In her "The Green and Burning Tree: On the Writing and Enjoyment of Children's Books," she says: "I have never felt it necessary that a child be able afterwards to explain every twist and turn of a story he has read." The writer, she insists, should not feel restricted as to plotting or to vocabulary.

Yet with her distinguished Mushroom Planet Series and her other books such as the splendid "A Spell Is Cast," all of which rely heavily on fantasy and in none of which is there the slightest condescension, Mrs. Cameron has demonstrated a remarkable gift for establishing a rapport with the very young.

What she sets out to accomplish for her young reader, she says in one of the series of essays that make up "The Green and Burning Tree," is to make certain "that his excitement be set simmering."

"The Green and Burning Tree" is one of those books you begin somewhat hesitantly, almost reluctantly, and then, after some sticky early going, you suddenly find yourself in tune with Mrs. Cameron's wave length, discovering that this talented, vital woman has some most sagacious and stimulating things to say. So you read on and on, more and more eager to follow this most sensitive mind and most expressive voice.

Her chapter on "Of Style and the Stylist" is a work of beauty in itself, and by reading it you realize that Mrs. Cameron is a most extraordinary stylist in her own right, capable of weaving perfectly-crafted phrases into lengthy and at first glance seemingly complicated sentences that, when examined more closely, prove to be astonishingly simple with each individual thread easily separated and followed. She has, too, the knack for pure, exact language — the ability to select the one and only proper word and the courage to then use it unhesitatingly, whether it be of two or many syllables.

In short, her book can be read for example as well as for its discursive merits, which are considerable.

Mrs. Cameron takes strong exception to those who contend there is no such thing as children's books, and even stronger umbrage at those who admit its existence, but are contemptuous of it.

"Children's and adult literature are facets of a single art, and . . . the highest standards of one hold good for the other," she asserts.

Yet, she continues, there are definite qualities that set apart the successful writer for children from other authors: "Perhaps there can be no doubt that what the great writers for children have in common is that they have somehow retained into adulthood many of the mental qualities of children. . . "

She explores with skill and insight the parts played by time and place in the backgrounds and in the works of these authors. And one of her most captivating chapters is devoted to writer-artist-translator Wanda Gag.

It is not surprising that Mrs. Cameron accords the writing of fantasy special attention. It is a genre, she says, that succeeds and survives by dangling before young readers some "unsatisfied desire, the experience of which is in itself more desirable than any satisfaction." Could anyone put it more finely?

And she writes that fantasy that lives avoids the "escape" role even though it is set outside the world of reality, for it possesses a convincing reality of its own, and contains "the essential truths of the human condition."

Great fantasy, she continues, is rooted in such enduring qualities as toughness, wonder, humor, tenderness, wisdom and imagination "pressed down and running over" that nourish the child toward maturity.

Glasgow's Beautiful Sister City

The Travel Pages

Edinburgh Delights Visitors

By DON KEOWN

Poor Glasgow. It fares so badly as the ugly sister because of its proximity to beautiful and glamorous Edinburgh.

No fairy godmother or urban renewal is likely to create from her a Cinderella city.

So the thing to do, after landing at Glasgow, the aviation hub of Scotland, is to depart immediately for Edinburgh.

There you can enjoy one of the most attractive metropolitan centers on earth. And unlike some other beautiful cities (San Francisco, for instance), Edinburgh is at her prettiest in the very heart of her downtown shopping district.

THIS IS because Edinburgh's principal shopping thoroughfare, Princes Street, is broad, clean and handsome, lined with well-kept stores and office buildings, and, along one side for a considerable stretch, with the greenery and bright blooms of Princes Gardens.

From this garden park, a long, curling walk sweeps upwards through lawns and flower beds to reach ultimately impressive Edinburgh Castle, looming high overhead on a cliff. Edinburgh Castle, as viewed from Princes Street, is one of the never-to-be-forgotten sights of Britain.

A closer, downtown landmark is the Scott Monument which towers in eye-pleasing proportions. You will want to climb the 270-some (or is it 370-some?) steep and spiraling steps to enjoy a vista well worth the effort that extends beyond the city to the waters of the Firth of Forth.

YES, YOU DO still see kilts in Scotland. And such sights as this piper entertaining a visiting uniformed American police officer with a Scottish air, played from Ayrshire's Brig O'Doon, made immortal by Robert Burns' account of Tam O'Shanter's wild ride on his mare Meg.

ALSO IN THE heart of downtown and awaiting art-lovers is the National Gallery where during the national exhibition Scotland's finest paintings and sculpture are housed each summer.

From near Scott's Monument, the Edinburgh City Transport operates a series of bargain sightseeing bus tours for visitors. You'll want to ride to the gates of Edinburgh Castle, also to Arthur's Seat, the high point from which you can enjoy the best view of the entire city.

But you should walk, not ride, the Royal Mile. This is the distance the royal coaches have traveled for centuries between Hollyrood Palace, the now seldom-used home of the British monarch when in Scotland, to Edinburgh Castle along the streets of Old Town. Those streets are twisting and cobbled, fronted by venerable old buildings, straight out of the 18th Century.

IN MAKING that walk you will also be making a number of stops. For a couple of history-filled museums, Huntly House and Canongate Tolbooth, across the street from each other. For John Knox's home, now also a museum crammed with memorabilia from the life of the famed churchman. For tea and cakes at one of the shops. To look at the woollens in another. To go inside beautiful St. Giles' Cathedral.

And to investigate the contents of Lady Stairs' House, loaded with mementoes of Sir Walter Scott, Robert Burns and Robert Louis Stevenson. Edinburgh rivals Dublin and London for a literary past, and along with Scott, Burns and Stevenson, others such as Daniel Defoe have left their stamp on the city.

For "something different" take a city bus — Edinburgh's municipal transport is very good — and ride to Dean's Bridge. Beneath the span you will find Dean's Village, a collection of very old and now very quiet houses and buildings from out of the past. You can stroll on a broad path along the water back toward the city's center.

EDINBURGH'S prices for both lodging and food are quite reasonable, and not too difficult to come by except at festival time in the late summer when reservations are most advisable.

The larger hotels generally are located near Waverly Railroad Station, itself just off Princes Street. There is a long skein of smaller, cheaper, but clean and comfortable hotels perched along the Royal Terrace, also close in. Guesthouses abound.

The Brown Derby on Princes serves excellent food, and the prices are right. From its elevated corner dining room you have a superb view of the castle.

DON'T BE surprised if you are seated at a table already occupied by others, or others are brought to your table. The thrifty Scots do not waste table space. For one Brown Derby meal, our companions proved to be an Edinburgh lady and her visiting sister from Santa Rosa. The Santa Rosan spoke with a decided Scottish burr. The Edinburgh resident did not.

The Chocolate House and the Shortbread House, both on Princes, are sparkling little places that serve excellent snacks and light meals. The Laigh Coffee House on Hanover Street is another. The Epicure at 10 Shadwick Street, end of Princes, is a place to splurge a bit on continental cuisine for luncheon or dinner.

But gneerally, Scottish beef, Scottish lamb and Scottish salmon are the things to eat in Scotland, along with the excellent breads and tea. Skip the haggis.

YOU WILL no doubt breakfast at your hotel. And a big one

On The Stereo Scene With Sunier

By JOHN SUNIER

RCA's budget-priced Victrola label has had so many fine releases lately I'm forced to credit them in the following checklist fashion:

"THE NEW MUSIC, VOLUME 2" Rome Symphony/Maderna — Victrola VICS-1312; "THE NEW MUSIC, VOLUME 3" Rome Symphony/Maderna—Victrola VICS-1313:

This three-disc series affords an excellent opportunity to hear an over-view of what is happening in really contemporary music, with educational yet readable liner notes and good performances and stereo.

Volume 1 contained the amazing "Threnody for the Victims of Hiroshima" by Penderecki.

Bruno Maderna, who conducts the orchestra, features his own "Concerto for Oboe and Chamber Orchestra" on the second volume, a pontillistic work with tinkly sounds; also flute compositions by Boulez and Haubenstock-Ramati.

Volume 3 is even heavier on flute — works by Nono, Fukushima, Berio and Lehmann, all featuring the instrument in a variety of ways.

"DANCE MUSIC OF THE RENAISSANCE" — Various German artists — Victrola VICS-1328:

Simply adorable light music by composers of this period you probably never heard of and probably won't hear of again; recorders, crumhorns, lute and viols.

SCHUBERT: "Divertissement a la hongroise"; "Variations on an Original Theme" — Jorg Demus and Paul Badura - Skoda, 1845 pianoforte — Victrola VICS-1329:

There are very few recordings made on early pianos, and the sound is something special; so don't miss these two rare Schubertian gems in proficient performances by two familiar names to LPs.

TAKEMITSU: "Coral Island" for soprano and orchestra; "Water Music"; "Vocalism Ai" — Yomiuri Nippon Orchestra/Wakasugi (on Island) — (Magnetic Tape realization of other two selections) — Victrola VICS-1334:

Fascinating new works by an outstanding young Japanese composer. The orchestral work is a sort of 1960s "La Mer"; and the "Vocalism," whose constantly-repeated Japanese word means "love," is both hypnotic and occasionally humorous. A wow in stereo.

CASTELNUOVO-TEDOSO: "Quintet for Guitar and String Quartet"; BONDON: "Concerto de Mars for Guitar and Orchestra" — (1) Manuel Lopez Ramos, guitar/The Parrenin Quartet, (2) Konrad Rogossnig, guitar/Orchestre des Concerts Lamoureux/Jacques Bondon — Victrola VICS-1367:

First stereo version of the rather introspective chamber work by Castelnuovo-Tedesco, composer of the quite popular "Guitar Concerto in D." The Bondon work, conducted by the composer, is a brash modern work that sits comfortably on the ear nevertheless.

JOHN PFEIFFER: "Electronomusic": Nine Images — Victrola VICS-1371:

Pfeiffer is an "artist and repertory" man for RCA. He has some rather brash words about the orginality of what he is doing here which I cannot accept, but the selections are mostly short, varied and generally interesting electronic music. This would be good for someone just getting into the idiom.

ELGAR: "Cockaigne Overture"; "Chanson de Matin" (and) "Chanson de Nuit"; "Pomp and Circumstance Marches Nos. 1 and 4"; "Serenade for Strings in E Minor" — The Royal Philharmonic/George Weldon — Victrola VICS-1377.

Seems like Elgar performed by other than an English orchestra would be unthinkable. These have all been well done before, but these versions sing and strut in best Elgar fashion without being stuffy about it, and the price is great (low, that is).

The smell of musty sleeping bags and a little left-
over sand
Pre-supposes summer days on hand.
We hear in memory's ear children's laughter and
the hum of bees
And feel the coolness under leafy trees.
And as we watch the hot sun sink behind
unfamiliar hills
We eagerly await tomorrow's thrills;
Then in gentleness, embrace the softness of the lazy moon
Who doesn't want to give way to dawn so soon.
Why is it the anticipation is more than we can bear and it would seem Today's reality is not half the delight of tomorrow's young dream?

ONE OF THE MORE serious notes amidst the festivities of the 1969 Marin Art and Garden Fair, opening Wednesday in Ross, will be struck by the American Cancer Society's mobile movie theater. Staffed by volunteers from the Marin District of the California Nurses' Association, the Marin Mastectomy Club and various Marin high schools, it will be showing a Mr. Magoo cartoon and a Ralph Edwards-narrated feature film, both made especially for the crusade against cancer.

On The Stereo Scene With Sunier

By JOHN SUNIER

RCA's budget-priced Victrola label has had so many fine releases lately I'm forced to credit them in the following checklist fashion:

"THE NEW MUSIC, VOLUME 2" Rome Symphony/Maderna — Victrola VICS-1312; "THE NEW MUSIC, VOLUME 3" Rome Symphony/Maderna— Victrola VICS-1313:

This three-disc series affords an excellent opportunity to hear an over-view of what is happening in really contemporary music, with educational yet readable liner notes and good performances and stereo.

Volume 1 contained the amazing "Threnody for the Victims of Hiroshima" by Penderecki.

Bruno Maderna, who conducts the orchestra, features his own "Concerto for Oboe and Chamber Orchestra" on the second volume, a pontillistic work with tinkly sounds; also flute compositions by Boulez and Haubenstock-Ramati.

Volume 3 is even heavier on flute — works by Nono, Fukushima, Berio and Lehmann, all featuring the instrument in a variety of ways.

"DANCE MUSIC OF THE RENAISSANCE" — Various German artists — Victrola VICS-1328:

Simply adorable light music by composers of this period you probably never heard of and probably won't hear of again; recorders, crumhorns, lute and viols.

SCHUBERT: "Divertissement a la hongroise"; "Variations on an Original Theme" — Jorg Demus and Paul Badura - Skoda, 1845 pianoforte — Victrola VICS-1329:

There are very few recordings made on early pianos, and the sound is something special; so don't miss these two rare Schubertian gems in proficient performances by two familiar names to LPs.

TAKEMITSU: "Coral Island" for soprano and orchestra; "Water Music"; "Vocalism Ai" — Yomiuri Nippon Orchestra/Wakasugi (on Island) — (Magnetic Tape realization of other two selections) — Victrola VICS-1334:

Fascinating new works by an outstanding young Japanese composer. The orchestral work is a sort of 1960s "La Mer"; and the "Vocalism," whose constantly-repeated Japanese word means "love," is both hypnotic and occasionally humorous. A wow in stereo.

CASTELNUOVO-TEDOSO: "Quintet for Guitar and String Quartet"; BONDON: "Concerto de Mars for Guitar and Orchestra" — (1) Manuel Lopez Ramos, guitar/The Parrenin Quartet, (2) Konrad Rogossnig, guitar/Orchestre des Concerts Lamoureux/Jacques Bondon — Victrola VICS-1367:

First stereo version of the rather introspective chamber work by Castelnuovo-Tedesco, composer of the quite popular "Guitar Concerto in D." The Bondon work, conducted by the composer, is a brash modern work that sits comfortably on the ear nevertheless.

JOHN PFEIFFER: "Electronomusic": Nine Images — Victrola VICS-1371:

Pfeiffer is an "artist and repertory" man for RCA. He has some rather brash words about the orginality of what he is doing here which I cannot accept, but the selections are mostly short, varied and generally interesting electronic music. This would be good for someone just getting into the idiom.

ELGAR: "Cockaigne Overture"; "Chanson de Matin" (and) "Chanson de Nuit"; "Pomp and Circumstance Marches Nos. 1 and 4"; "Serenade for Strings in E Minor" — The Royal Philharmonic/George Weldon — Victrola VICS-1377.

Seems like Elgar performed by other than an English orchestra would be unthinkable. These have all been well done before, but these versions sing and strut in best Elgar fashion without being stuffy about it, and the price is great (low, that is).

Walking The Royal Mile And Shopping On Princes Street

it will be, in the tradition that holds forth throughout the United Kingdom and Ireland.

One treat you will not want to miss is luncheon at the Tryst on High Street across from St. Giles' Cathedral. It is upstairs in a thick-walled old stone building where Oliver Cromwell once resided, quite colorful, quite good and quite reasonable as well.

The favored pub is Deacon Brodie's Tavern on Bank Street uphill from Princes.

Except at festival time, Edinburgh is not noted for its nightlife. Even the pubs close at 10 and do not open at all on Sunday. But you can find folk singing as an added delight in many of the pubs while open. And there are summer evening military and bagpipe concerts on the castle escarpment and in Princes Park.

SHOPPING WILL occupy much of the daytime hours of the woman. Jenner's on Princes is the big store. But there are many splendid shops. Scottish sweaters are, of course, the favorite item.

From Edinburgh, two major side excursions beckon. You can head for the border country associated with Scott. Or you can travel north into the highlands. Although it was very early May, we chose the north.

Traveling by uncrowded train from Edinburgh to Inverness with a compartment to ourselves, we passed through the pretty festival town of Pitlochry, beside clear fishing streams, and then through alternating patches of white snow and purple heather.

INVERNESS, "capital of the highlands," is an old town on the River Ness and at the head of the Inverness Firth, surrounded by wildlands through which young back packers were already hiking. The clean, rushing river lends the town most of its appeal.

Inverness Castle looks down upon it, and when we visited it, we were pleased to hear bagpipe music coming mysteriously from within the castle. It turned out to be a young bagpipe band rehearsing, and soon the pipers and drummers were drilling outside along the river bank.

A one-day bus trip took us farther north to the village of Dornoch. Our vehicle proved to be a combination public transport, school bus, mail truck and commuter service. The conductor acted as postman, and also kept the school kids in line.

WHEN ONE little old lady wanted to do a bit of shopping in a small village, the bus waited patiently while she completed her transaction. Dornoch, too, had its castle, now in use as a hotel.

The return south to Glasgow where we were to catch our plane was made in two days by comfortable bus with the overnight stop in the interesting old town of Fort William, resembling an American frontier outpost in Alaska. A good part of one of those days was spent riding along the shores of Loch Ness, with nary a sight of the fabled monster. And a sizable portion of the second day our bus followed the bonnie banks of Loch Lomond, an incredibly beautiful body of blue water reflecting trees and mountains that more than lives up to its romantic reputation. The sight of Loch Lomond alone is worth a trip to Scotland.

The arrival in grimy, grim Glasgow brings one back to reality with a thud, after the fantasy of the highlands.

ANY STORY of Scotland without greater attention to the Scottish people themselves would be incomplete. Unfairly characterized as dour and stingy, they are, instead, most cheerful, generous and exceedingly friendly and helpful, as fine a people as one could hope to encounter anywhere.

The tourist is always accorded a warm welcome and extended assistance that, if at times a bit too profuse, is certainly well-intentioned.

One example: On a very cold and windy night, my wife and I were caught in a driving rain in Edinburgh. We attempted a shortcut back to our hotel. Predictably, we were soon lost in a maze of dark streets, getting wetter and colder by the minute.

FOR HELP I accosted one elderly man hurrying along the walk, no doubt bound for home. What we got was not the verbal information requested, but a personal guide every step of the way back to the doorway of our hotel. It must have taken him many, many blocks out of his way on that miserable night, for our's was not his direction. But even when he had us back among familiar surroundings and we assured him we could then locate our hotel, he insisted on completing the walk, all the time keeping up a patter of friendly chatter about his relatives in the States.

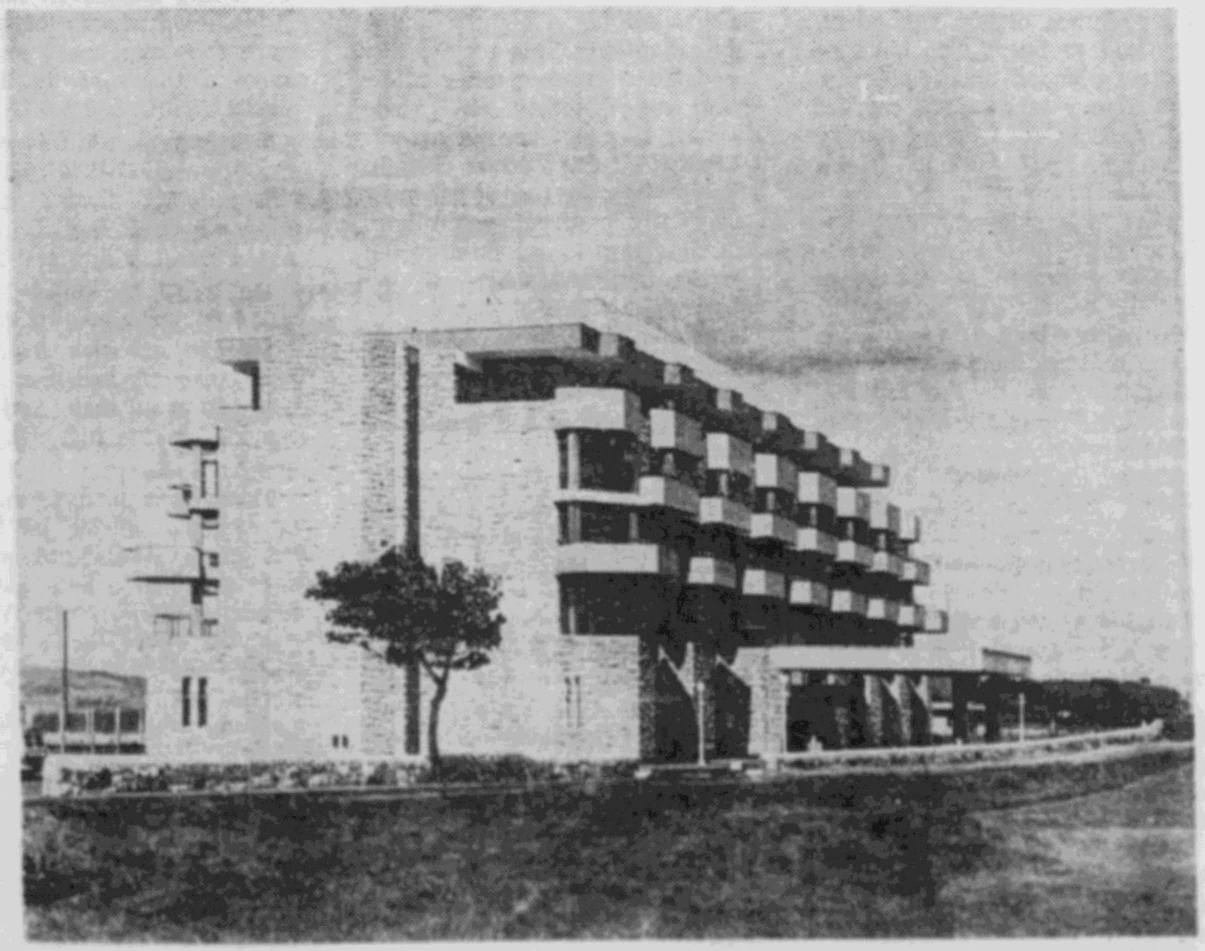
That was the way of the Scots.

Clerks — who do not really speak a different language, their brand of English just sounds that way — will leave their store counters unattended to accompany you outside and point out directions, even to rival shops about which you have inquired.

As for kilts — yes, you do see them. But not many. Perhaps it was not yet the season for them. Anyway, the infrequent sight of a brae Scot in that traditional dress served to remind us that we were, indeed, in the land of the Stuarts, the MacGregors and the Campbells.

Vintage Transport

For railway buffs who enjoy sampling train travel as it existed over 60 years ago a 1918 steam locomotive pulling two old carriages now offers weekend service between the villages of Blonay and Chamby, near Lake Geneva in Switzerland.



GOLF RIVALS FISHING as a popular sport in Scotland with visitors and residents alike. Courses range from Muirfield, near Edinburgh, the oldest golf club in the world, to St. Andrews, where a new four-story hotel, above, overlooks the famous 17th green of the Old Course. The hotel will accommodate 148 people, and all rooms have private bath, telephone and television.

Consider The Ever-Lovely Evergreens

Garden Pages

Evergreen trees are a year-around source of delight, but it is in the summer that their abilities to shade and to screen are most appreciated by Marinites.

Home owners here can make their selections from evergreens that range from huge, sprawling trees that shadow large expanses to smaller or more uniquely shaped trees that supply more privacy or ornamentation than shade.

One of the favorites in Marin is the Bailey Acacia — always providing you are not one of those allergic to its pungent pollen. It offers eye-appeal in its blue-gray foliage and its cheery yellow blooms that appear early when color is most gratifying. As a medium grower, sometimes attaining a height of 30 feet, more often 20, and a spread of from 15 to 20 feet, it is a serviceable shade tree.

THERE ARE other acacias that do well in Marin, but they are better suited to screening purposes than to shading.

The sweetshade or Hymenosperum flavum is an evergreen less often seen in Marin, but one that thrives here when given a chance. Its distinctions include yellow blooms in early summer that give off an orange-blossom fragrance.

It is a slow to moderate grower that assumes a slender, graceful habit that is not too desirable in a shade tree, but which makes for an interesting design against a wall.

ANY DISCUSSION of evergreens and Marin preferences inevitably must include mention of the magnolias, some of which, however, fall in the deciduous category.

The Southern Magnolia is the patriarch of a family that features large white and wonderfully fragrant flowers. Two newer evergreen introductions are the Samuel Sommer and Majestic Beauty, globe-like in shape and sporting collosal blooms up to 14 inches across.

Magnolias, generally, are slow growers, so can be used as specimen plantings without overpowering the remainder of a landscape.

EVERGREEN PEAR is a smaller-growing evergreen tree with deep green, glistening foliage, a pendulous look, and attractive white flowers that appear early. Its versatility includes an adaptability to espaliering.

For parkway areas, some choose the Carolina Cherry, although it takes its time about reaching its full height and spread.

Some other evergreens seen frequently in Marin County include the California Pepper, the Podocarpus or Fern Pine (with a lacy foliage that gives off little shade but a great deal of decoration), and the olives.

THEN THERE is the magnificent redwood, king of the evergreens, as well as all the other lesser but still attractive conifers.

Whether you have a spacious estate that will accommodate the redwood or simply a deck or patio sufficient in size only for a small tree in a tub, the ever-lovely evergreens include in their diversified ranks something that will fit your special needs.

THE EUROPEAN OLIVE is a popular evergreen tree in Marin County, and deservedly so. It has a California history that reaches back into the days of the early Missions. It has, too, finely-cut gray-green foliage and a semi-pendulous growth habit that makes it a graceful addition to any landscape. (Photo courtesy of the California Association of Nurserymen)

The Mahonia Not Restricted To Oregonians

They call it "the Oregon Grape," but nurserymen advise Marin gardeners they should not be misled by that name.

This popular shrub, also known as the Mahonia, with its evergreen foliage, fall color and berries, yellow blooms that arrive in late winter, and good growth habits, thrives in almost all California climes including our own.

In Marin gardens, it will take full sun, but will do equally well in partial shade.

There is a dwarf as well as the standard variety.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Water your tomato plants no more than is necessary, but when you do irrigate, make certain the moisture penetrates at least a foot or more into the ground.

✓Pluck faded blooms from your favorite plants regularly. This serves the two-fold purpose of encouraging additional flowering and conserving the strength of the plant.

✓Now is the time to choose new hibiscus plants, which are in bloom in nurseries, and to plant them in sunny, protected spots. There is a wide range of colors — white, pink, scarlet, orange and apricot — and both single and double flower forms from which to make your selections.

✓You can plant all kinds of container-grown trees and shrubs at this time.

✓And you can set out zinnias, salvia or scarlet sage, marigolds, ageratum and other annuals for quick summer color.

✓Water fuchsias and camellias regularly and frequently, remembering they prefer an overhead drenching with a spray.

Today's Tycoons As Viewed By Believer In Gospel Of Galbraith

THE MONEYMAKERS by Kenneth Lamott; Little, Brown, 306 pages, $6.75. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Kenneth Lamott, Tiburon free-lance writer, is fascinated by wealth. As this fascination is shared by a large portion of the populace, and as Lamott is an accomplished writer, "The Moneymakers: or The Great Big New Rich in America" would appear offhand to be a likely bet for the best-seller list.

However, the odds are otherwise.

Lamott begins by defining "the Great Big New Rich" as those Americans with fortunes of 100 million dollars or more. He then selects 13 of them, ranging from D. K. Ludwig to H. L. Hunt, to examine as examples. As he notes, most of these are little known to the public, contrast to the prominence of the "robber barons" of an earlier generation.

The expositions of the careers of these men unfortunately do little to satisfy our curiosity as to how they got that way. The brief sketches seem to have been drawn mainly from the Wall Street Journal book, "The New Millionaires and How They Made Their Fortunes," and from sundry light magazine and newspaper features which Lamott does not bother to list in the bibliography.

Interspersed with these rather unsatisfying sketches are chapters in which the author philosophizes and lectures about wealth, American folklore, income tax, etc.

Lamott is no Gustavus Myers detailing the devious designs by which the rich acquired their wealth. Like Myers, he lectures. But his lectures wander. Myers' classic "History of the Great American Fortunes" was based on the simple and straight-forward premise that, while anybody can make an honest dollar, nobody can make an honest million dollars. Lamott seems to subscribe to that, but one is never quite sure.

There is a surprising naivete about some of Lamott's lectures, too. For instance, he says the "Great Big New Rich . . . have virtually no political power," contrasting this with the direct and indirect influence of the "robber barons," who "could deliver messages to Capitol Hill or even to the White House with the certain knowledge that their instruction would be obeyed." It does not seem to occur to Lamott that politics, like most other things, has changed considerably in the last century, and that nowadays political influence is exercised through bureaucrats who are as faceless as D. K. Ludwig (the least known of his 13 examples), rather than through senators or presidents. More than half of these men of "virtually no political power" got a big leg up the ladder of fortune through government contracts, as even the sketchy career descriptions in "The Moneymakers" demonstrate. There is competition for such contracts, and the really fat ones are not likely to fall into the laps of men with "virtually no political power."

Contributing to the lack of cohesion of "The Moneymakers" is the author's penchant for inserting all sorts of quotations from all sorts of people throughout its pages, some of them being only vaguely revelant.

These quotations contribute little to the book, but they serve to inform the reader that Lamott is a great admirer of John Kenneth Galbraith, who is quoted far more frequently than anybody else.

If the book has a text, it would seem to be drawn from the First Epistle of Paul to Timothy, which Lamott does not quote (being fonder of the gospel according to Galbraith): "The love of money is the root of all evil."

Kenneth Lamott is, as we said at the beginning, an accomplished writer. But he is not at his best in "The Moneymakers." This is too bad, for the subject of the tycoons of our day is certainly one that commands wide interest and cries for more thorough examination.

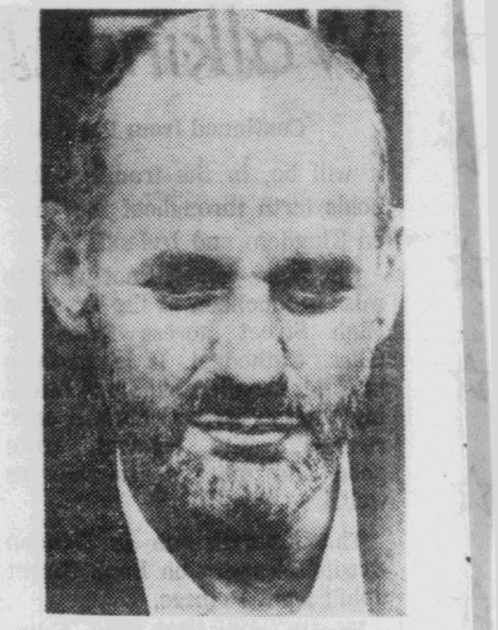
Russell On Reason

THE ART OF PHILOSOPHIZING AND OTHER ESSAYS by Bertrand Russell; Philosophical Library, 119 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This is a collection of three pieces written by the British philosopher during World War II while he was teaching in America, and published now for the first time in book form.

The essays stem from a period when Russell was less concerned with specific controversial social issues and more interested in the broader question of how man reaches his conclusions. His target was the irrational creeds that man had adopted. His hope — a more logical reasoning in the future. It is doubtful if Russell, today, would feel that the intervening years have seen any substantial progress toward the realization of that hope. But then, he admitted to utopianism at the time in expressing the hope that man might ultimately learn from experience.

ROBERT LOWELL
Exciting insights



LAWRENCE FERLINGHETTI
Adolescent rawness

Three Very Different Poets—

NOTEBOOK 1967-68 by Robert Lowell, Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 161 pages, $6. THE SECRET MEANING OF THINGS by Lawrence Ferlinghetti, New Directions, 48 pages, $3.95. THAT SHINING PLACE by Mark Van Doren, Hill & Wang, 81 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Except the fact that they are well-known — by name at least — these three poets have almost nothing whatever in common. Three more different concepts of poetry would be hard to find.

Robert Lowell is the most prominent, of course, with a high-ranking international reputation, an irreproachable scholar and award-winning translator. He is of the confessional school; his work includes many allusions that are inaccessible, or of no interest, to the general reader, but he is well worth a careful reading nevertheless, for he is capable of highly exciting insight. Acutely attuned to our times as he is, it is the more exasperating that he is so often content to muffle his lines in woolly prosiness.

In the course of this volume, which is in the form of one long journal poem, he hits some shining high spots, especially in a charged group of poems dealing with a Mexican love affair, and some intriguing poems to, and for, other poet luminaries — Pound, Eliot, Frost, etc.

Ferlinghetti's works should be, as they so often are, read aloud by an emotional reader who is able to infuse them with the life they lack on the printed page.

This new collection, consisting of six long poems, is splashed out with his typical adolescent rawness (like Peter Pan, Ferlinghetti does not age). There is some word on the jacket cover about "deepening of vision," but it reads like more of the shallow prose commentary on our times that Ferlinghetti always makes, with Far Eastern flourishes, and more pretentiously personal references than seems fair, really.

Mark Van Doren is probably America's most distinguished poet working in the traditional framework. His elegantly structured poems are charming, and they are remote, exuding an air of other worlds, other times. Publication of this collection marks the poet-teacher-critic's 75th birthday.

Rachel's Sister Proves Simpatico

THE FIRE-DWELLERS by Margaret Laurence; Knopf, 308 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Margaret Terrien.

In the poignant final scene of the film "Rachel, Rachel," the 35-year-old spinster heroine and her nattering mother are busing out of town on a permanent move to the Pacific Northwest, where lives Rachel's sister Stacey Cameron MacAindra with her husband and four children. The movie faithfully follows Margaret Laurence's previous novel, "A Jest of God."

If you left the theater lumpy-throated and hoping Rachel's (Joanne Woodward's) sister was simpatico, you may rest assured. Stacey is great.

The title of this companion novel refers, of course, to woman's immemorial but claustrophobic role as keeper of the hearth.

Stacey, who as the book begins is facing her 40th birthday, left her Canadian priarie hometown when she was "nearly 19, expert typist, five foot three, with breasts like apples as it says in the Song of Solomon."

In Vancouver she first worked, then met and married for love Mac, who was "27, hopeful, confident, lean. Agamemnon king of men or the equivalent, at least to her." The children arrive, planned and unplanned, and Stacey takes night courses in Aspects of Contemporary Thought and Ancient Greek Drama.

Mac is a salesman and, unfortunately, the only one-dimensional character in the book. But the reader can be grateful that neither he nor Stacey have a married sex hang-up. Just the inevitable "maybe I'm missing something" blues that beset the middle-aged.

Stacey, a devoted, involved mother and an honest, lusty woman, naturally buckles under the strain at least twice a week and bleakly admits to herself, "I'm bloody sick of trying to cope. I don't want to be a good wife and mother."

She can't help herself, though. Inadequate she may feel, overly dependent on the solitary gin and tonic, prone to escapist daydreams, to Tommy Dorsey's "Boogie-Woogie," but she still loves her work. Her four children are interesting and recognizable, and author Laurence is not sticky about them.

When husband Mac, feeling hag-ridden by business and wife, demands that she "leaves me alone," Stacey temporarily whirls off for a night drive in the mountains. This accidentally leads to a two-encounter affair with an engaging and virile writer, 15 years her junior.

And if all this weren't enough, Stacey, like the rest of us, must constantly confront, assimilate, and interpret to her children the horror depicted daily on the "ever-open eye" of the family television. All those wounded, scared, and dying kids in Vietnam. To say nothing of the increasing violence and despair at home.

Two of the MacAindras' family friends are involved in suicides; one disguised, one abortive.

"The Fire-Dwellers" cannot be dismissed with that most insulting of all put-downs: "a woman's book." Margaret Laurence's vivid, conversational, often poetic style; her masterful technique (which obviously has been influenced by the stylist innovations of modern film-making); her wit, earthiness, humanity — all these combine with a swift storyline to produce a book fit for human beings.

Any man who has ever wondered, "Do women ever think of sexy things like . . .?" should find this book enlightening.

Yes, women do.

Close To The Earth And Heart

COME GENTLE SPRING by Jesse Stuart; McGraw-Hill, 282 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bruce Coleman.

Jesse Stuart has a fine way of telling stories of his native Appalachia which—though we're sure they are based on truth—have a touch of the fantastic about them.

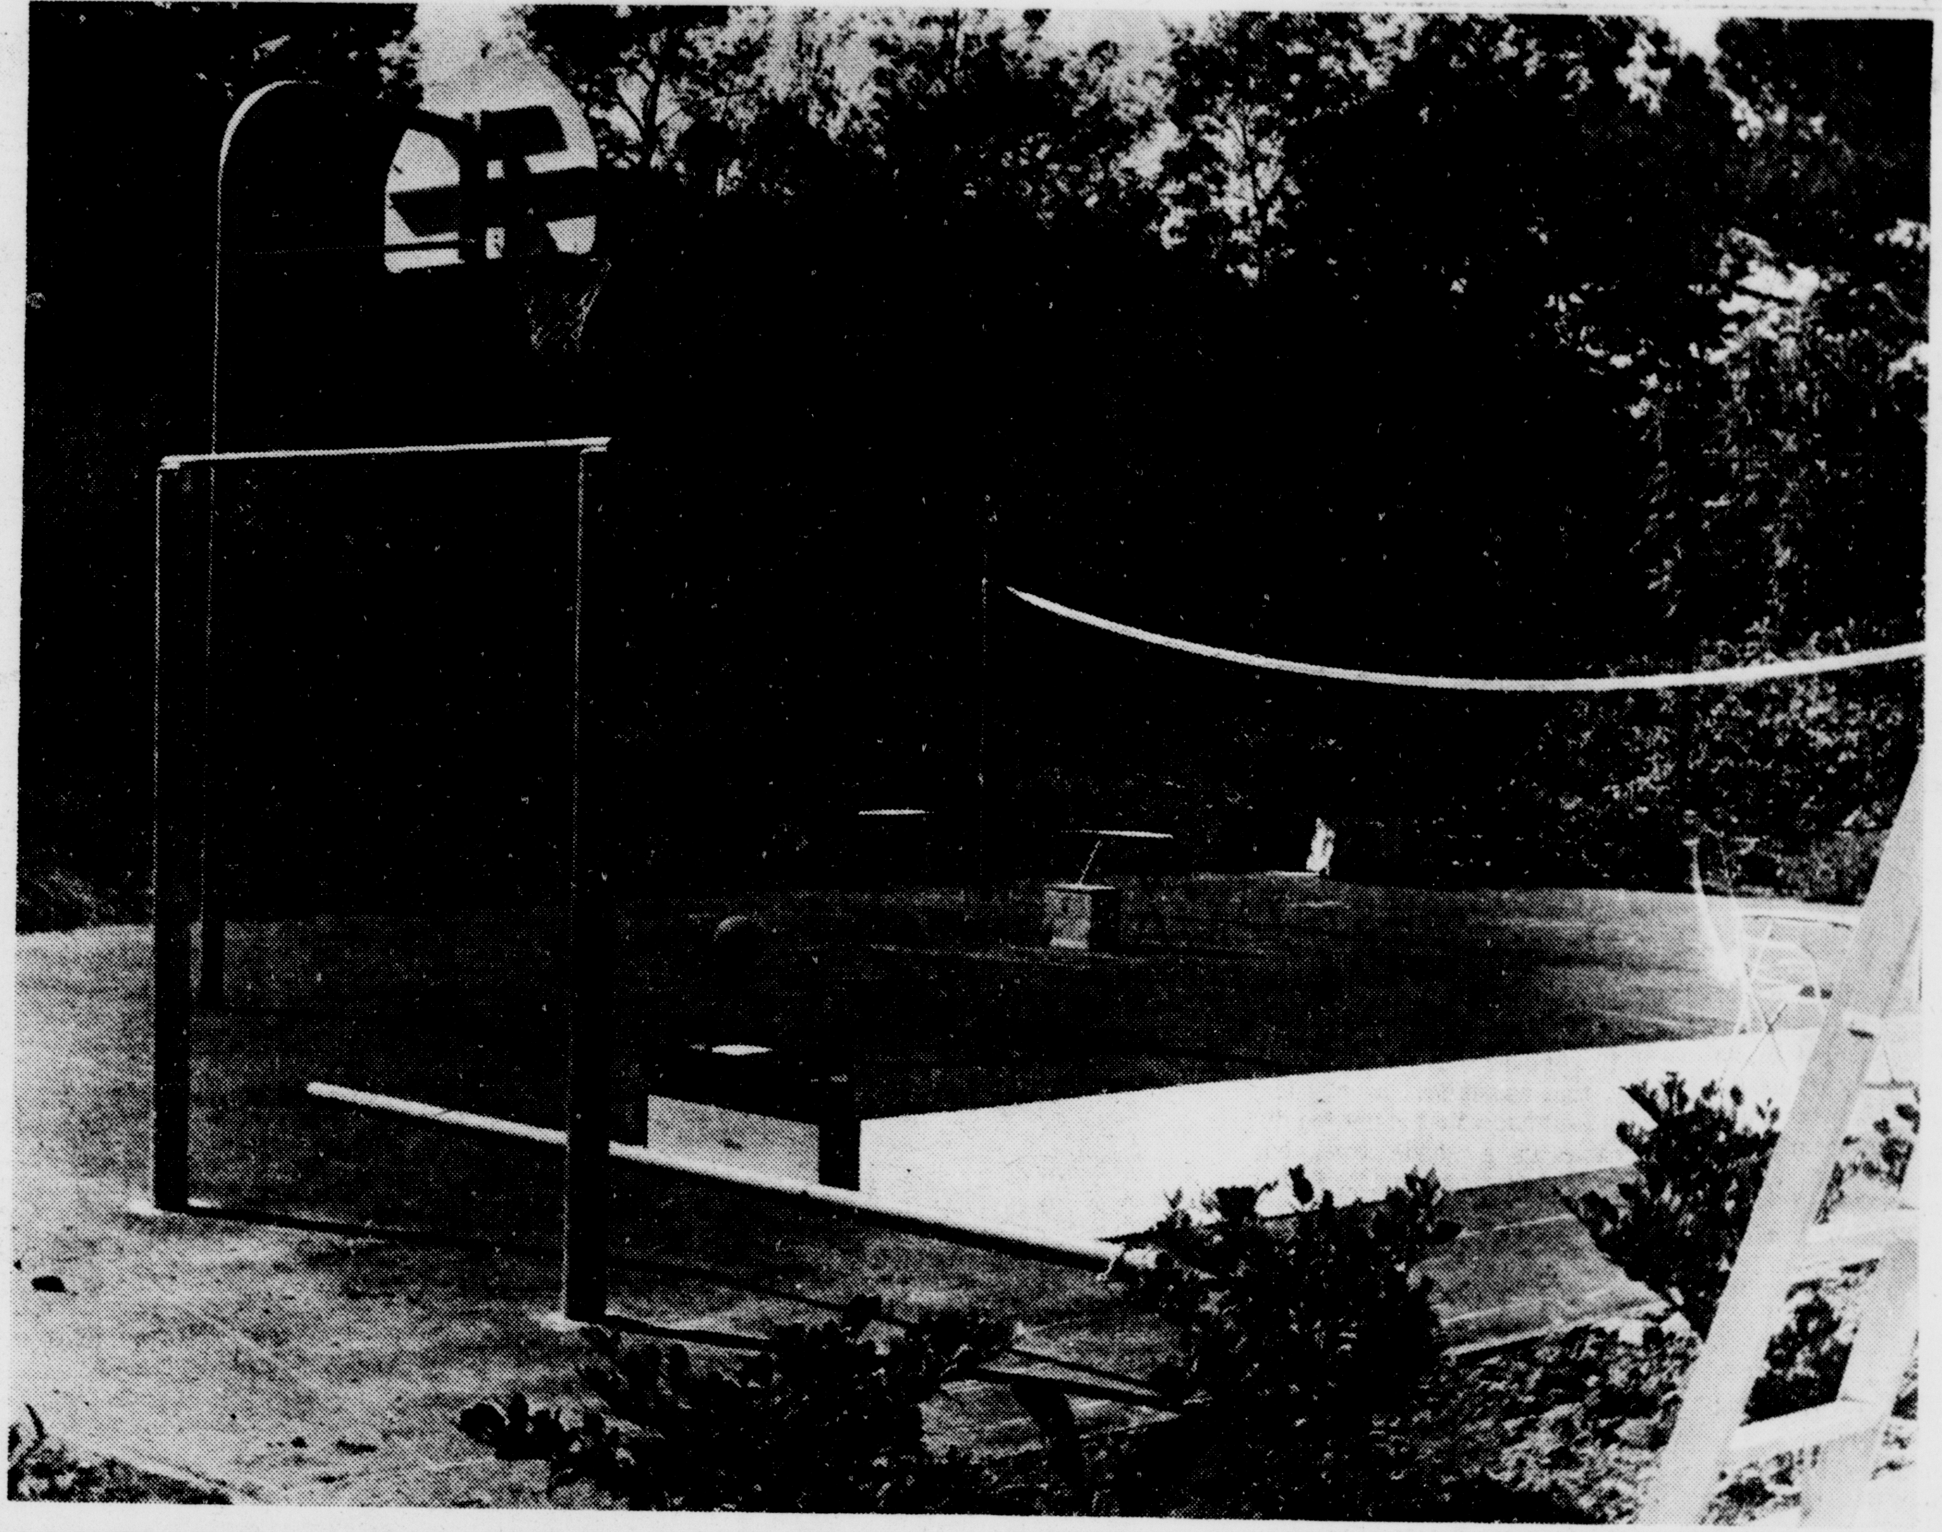
For example, in this collection of 20 yarns, he has one entitled "Seventy-Six Days" about a man who bet "pa" he couldn't eat a quail a day for 76 days.

Pa knew he could but then when he had about 18 to go he began to get sick from buckshot poisoning and then he went the way of all men. And, on his marker on the hill, sat a little quail.

There is a picaresque quality in Stuart's stories of love in the spring, hunting and an amusing one about a hen that crowed and said bad words. You feel you are sitting down with the author and he's telling you the stories with a twinkle in his eyes as you await the unraveling.

Besides being a humorist, he is a poet: "She was as slender and as straight as a young sapling and as soft as the young sassafras leaves in early spring."

If you like stories close to the earth and near to the heart —and you are a hill or a mountain person, too — this is your book.



A FLOWER GARDEN isn't always the best solution for the use of that backyard space—not if you have active youngsters in the family. The LeRoy W. Rices of Kentfield have three such children. And so they asked Sidney M. Lewin, landscape architect, to design a backyard playground for their home. When this photograph was taken, the Rice children were in the process of converting the area temporarily into a site for a neighborhood carnival. And other times, it is the scene of basketball, tetherball, volleyball and badminton games. There is also a chinning bar and a shuffleboard. And amazingly enough, the adults use the area almost as often as the children.

New Instant Landscaping Has Its Uses

Instant landscaping is one of our newest and fastest growing developments.

"Artificial shrubbery, impervious to weather, disease and the neighbor's dog, is now being manufactured. . ."

If your reaction is an immediate "ugh" stop and think a bit. No one, not even the manufacturer, wants to replace nature but, as the ladies have proved with their wigs and what-not, nature often can be helped along.

SI SPIEGEL, head of the Tree and Wreath Division of American Technical Industries, says his company is turning out polyvinylchloride versions of three popular varieties — Muhgo pine, white sheared pine and Costa blue spruce — in a variety of sizes. These resemble the realistic looking evergreens now familiar as indoor Christmas trees.

The branches consist of twisted-wire stems and hard, needle-shaped polyvinylchloride bristles. The center poles are of wire or weather-proofed Ponderosa pine.

Larger sizes have cast-iron stakes for outdoor "planting;" the smaller models have wire stands for use indoors or out.

SPIEGEL SAYS the company has in mind, chiefly, highway beautification programs, apartment buildings and housing developments, shopping centers, public recreation areas, schools, hospitals, motels, suburban banks and gasoline service stations, but he suggests a variety of possible uses around the private home:

As fill-in shrubbery in areas where natural shrubs won't grow because of too much sun or wind, too little or too much water; too little light, or too much traffic, human or canine.

Around swimming pools and sundecks where natural plantings often are difficult to maintain and create litter in the pool itself. Particularly good for above-ground pools.

As temporary decor for outdoor weddings, receptions, parties.

Around a barbecue area. The artificial shrubs won't be damaged by heat or smoke, and are flameproof.

As instant screening of the more barren areas on new properties, until natural plantings can be grown.

For landscaping an apartment terrace, or for use in indoor planters.

Even The Old Reliables Among House Plants Need Some Care

Even the old reliables among our house plants still sometimes require a little attention, or at least better treatment.

Is your philodendron beginning to look tired and are the leaves getting smaller and smaller?

The answer is not just food. It needs that, too, but the trouble is you are probably trying to grow it hanging down — and it really wants to grow up. The answer is to grow it upright on a simple trellis you can remove when you want it to hang down for special occasions or effects.

ARE YOUR geraniums getting small-leaved and scrawny? Don't feed or water them very much but give them all the sun you can and as cool a location as you can find. But, make sure it is safe from frost in winter.

Your cacti seem to grow well but never flower as they are supposed to? Here the answer is they are probably getting no rest.

With food, water and heat they will keep growing. But to throw them into bloom, you should have rested them for a couple of months during the short days. You gradually reduce the watering, stop feeding and give them a cool temperature. After such a rest most will burst into bloom when watering is commenced. Try it next fall.

NEARLY EVERYONE likes the richly scented gardenia but it frequently does not do well. The answer — give it 65 degrees during the day (10 less at night) and lots of moisture in the air. If you can't afford humidifiers, at least put trays with pebbles and water all around.

African violets not blooming? Just give them more, or less, light and when you find the right amount it will throw them into bloom — continuously for years, sometimes.

THE BOOK PAGES

Contemporary History As Seen By One Of The New Radicals

By DON KEOWN

EMPIRE AND THE REVOLUTION by David Horowitz; Random House, 274 pages, $5.95.

The rhetoric of the New Left often sounds too hysterically shrill to command the serious attention of the establishment.

Yet, if for reasons of self-defense alone, these young and very different radicals should be heard. Communication, at least, must be attained, if today's already dreadful hostilities are not to grow still worse.

David Horowitz' "Empire and Revolution: A Radical Interpretation of Contemporary History" can serve as an introduction to this thinking. It is not an easy book to read, but it deals with important subject matter in a manner that is revealing of what the clamor at Berkeley, Columbia, the Sarbonne, etc., is all about.

Horowitz, author and Ramparts editor, is nothing if not straight-forward in his conclusion:

"More than ever before, for humanity to live under capitalism is to live on borrowed time. . . . Liberation is no longer, and can be no longer, merely a national concern. The dimension of the struggle, as Lenin and the Bolsheviks so clearly saw, is international; its road is the socialist revolution."

This has been preceded by Horowitz' retracing, from his point of view, world history since the Bolshevik seizure of the Russian reins a half century ago.

The fact that that revolutionary movement went wrong, at least temporarily, he attributes partially to "the primitive and miserable setting" in which the socialist experiment began, and more strongly to the devastating civil war, instigated by the West, he claims, that followed the relatively bloodless Bolshevik revolution.

It was this civil strife, he says, that "ruined an already damaged economy; it brutalized and demoralized the population, destroyed the party system, institutionalized the terror as an instrument of the state, and generally prepared the way for the emergence of the Stalinist regime and its rule."

It caused a shift from the conditional determinism and reliance upon revolutionary internationalism of the original Bolsheviks to a theory of casual determinism, in which history marches inevitably, unaffected by man, and to an intense nationalism that left Russia turned inward and isolated.

Forcible industrialism and collectivization, says Horowitz, became the accepted alternatives to "the spread of the revolution." Consequently, the European revolution essential to the total success of the Soviet experiment never materialized, leaving Russian alone in an unfriendly world of imperialistic capitalist powers.

The Stalin brand of revolution, Horowitz writes, was "based not on class but on bureaucracy, not on a popular upsurge, but on the suppression of the popular will. (It) liquidated class rule but regimented lives. . . . (It) encouraged the resurgence of Russian nationalism, the rejection of which had been the very basis of the Leninist break with social democracy."

Horowitz then proceeds with his interpretation of pre-war friction, the uneasy World War II alliance, and the ensuing Cold War and coexistence years.

The de-Stalinization of the Soviet Union was, in Horowitz' opinion, a move toward "decentralization and democratization" that was only "half-hearted and incomplete." Consequently, though other countries adopted Marxism, "no community of socialist states was ever realized."

Yet Horowitz does see new evidence of a delayed realization of the old Bolshevik faith in revolutionary internationalism. Fidel Castro's Cuba is his prime example. To him it is "revolution released from Russian nationalist confines and . . . accelerating socialist development in the direction of (Bolshevism's) democratic and internationalist ideals."

Despite his disappointment with Russian socialism, Horowitz is consistently much harder on his own country and its capitalism. "It is unrealistic not to regard the U.S. as an imperialist power," he argues, though he admits that it has been symbolic of idealistic anti-imperialism.

Now, he continues, the U.S. has hardened its role to that of "conservative guardian of the status quo," shaking off all idealistic inhibitions.

Horowitz sees little hope for permanent reconciliation between the Soviet Union and the United States. "Soviet national interest lies in supporting socialist revolution; the U.S. national interest lies in opposing them," he says, posing a basic conflict. This leaves, in his view, other peoples confronted with a choice between embracing a socialist system or facing domination by the U.S. capitalistic monolith that has been acquiring more and more economic power abroad.

Horowitz' interpretation of history is unquestionably colored by the red-tinted glasses he wears as an unabashed and undisguised radical. But then, analytical history invariably is affected by the beliefs and prejudices of the interpreter. That Horowitz' slant is different and more pronounced than that of more orthodox historians does not necessarily make it less valid, although the degree of partiality should make it more suspect.

Anyway, his book does constitute an earnest effort to explain why some young leftists are insisting that a modification of our system is not enough, that what is needed is an entirely new system. It tells us something of what lies behind the shouting and confronting.

ELIOT PORTER'S PHOTO of a giant yucca cactus in bloom is from "Baja California and the Geography of Hope," the latest volume in the high-quality and high-priced Sierra Club Exhibit Format series to be reprinted by Ballantine Books as a $3.95 paperback. The text is by Joseph Wood Krutch.

ANDREW F. ROLLE, the Occidental College historian, has brought his standard text, "California: A History," that first appeared in 1963, up to date with a second edition that includes both new historical research and key developments of the middle and late 1960s.

Looking into the future, Rolle says: "That (the) state will continue to expand — in population, economy and power — is a prediction easily made. That this expansion will beget cultural depth and significance cannot be forecast so readily. . . . To move from frontier conditions into urban grandeur provides a great challenge to any culture. One day a new faith in their future may help Californians to build more than plastic cities pockmarked by ugliness, and the blight of impersonality.

"At that point materialist boosterism will have given way to the confidence of solid achievement. Beauty lost will have become beauty rewon."

A PRODUCT of Pitman Publishing Corp., 6 East 43rd Street, New York, N.Y., 10017, is the "Bazak Israel Guide, 1969," offering the latest information on one of the globe's most interesting and most dynamic countries.

A continuation of a series started by Avraham Levi in 1965, it is undoubtedly the most comprehensive book of its kind, offering background and detailed data that goes well beyond the contents of the usual tourists' guide.

A fold-up map enclosure is one bonanza. And the book abounds with smaller maps and illustrations. But the emphasis is upon the factual content, not the window dressing, and the traveler with Israel as a destination would do well to equip himself with this $3.95 book and use it for some advance preparation.

PABLO PICASSO, of course, is not noted for his poetry. But he does write poems infrequently. "Trozo de Piel" or "Hunk of Skin" was his first, in 1959, to be written in Spanish, and now it has received its first English translation by Paul Blackburn, in City Lights' The Pocket Poets Series, with an introduction by Camilo Jose Cela.

The small book contains both Spanish and English texts on facing pages.

And there is a good deal of the painter Picasso also to be seen in the poet Picasso: "Every silver lining has its dark cloud said the cobbler/ and you don't skin your mother in the open window . . ."

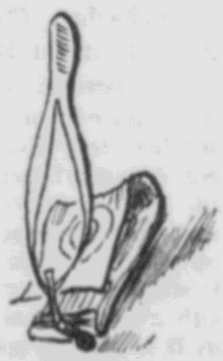
FOR THE poet the problem of getting his or her verse into print is a most frustrating one. The market for poetry is extremely restricted and highly erratic.

Jeanne Hollyfield has put together a 144-page softcover booklet listing some 900 markets. She lists the remuneration when payment is offered. Also included is an index of foreign markets, a separate list of greeting card publishers and a question and answer section in which Miss Hollyfield, a poetry editor, offers some personal advice on the writing and selling of poems.

The book can be obtained for $3 from some bookstores, or direct from the publisher, Young Publications, 69 West Main Street, Appalachia, Va., 24216.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE SPY WHO WASN'T EXCHANGED by Alfred Tack; Doubleday, 215 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.



The cynicism with which nations practice intelligence, the ploys and counter-ploys, the doublecross and triplecross, is a familiar theme in spy fiction by now.

English industrialist-writer Alfred Tack isn't on par with Len Deighton or John LeCarre in handling it, but nevertheless he employs it rather well.

James Mason, business man specializing in export trade, agrees to undertake a mission to Moscow for the English, partly out of patriotism, partly out of his feelings for a younger girl, an agent, with whom he has fallen in love. Once in Moscow, Mason finds himself caught in a pincers, imperiled by two rival Soviet intelligence agencies and possibly by the British as well who just might regard him as expendable.

Tack uses his personal knowledge of international commerce to good effect. His Russian characters tend to become caricature villains. But excitement and intrigue are very much present, and there is a nice surprise twist at the end.

A Storage Unit Serving House And Deck

Patio Closet Will Prevent Clutter In Both Indoor And Outdoor Living Areas

Next to roof, walls and occupants, good storage units are a homes most essential ingredient.

Put the right kind of storage in the right place, and the home will function smoothly. Ignore storage, and life becomes all clutter and confusion.

That applies as much to outdoor living areas as to the interior.

Where, for example, will you stow patio furniture during winter months? What about surplus fuchsia baskets? Or barbecue equipment, bench cushions, snack tables and accessories?

DON'T COUNT on either the garage or basement because they're full already. Besides, they're not easily accessible.

Obviously, what is needed is an outdoor closet built right at the deck's edge. You'll want regular-height doors, so that requires a unit about seven feet tall—all to the good because it can then serve as a privacy wall, too.

If the deck extends to one corner of the house, it's smart to build the storage unit starting at the corner. That way, it looks like a continuation of the house wall, with the siding carried on into the unit's exterior.

ANY SIDING pattern can be repeated — bevel, flush-joint boards, channel or board-and-batten. A stain finish or paint is easy to match, too.

If it makes sense to continue the house roof over the storage wall, do so. But that's less than all-important. A flat roof looks fine, particularly if a trellis overhang is added.

A wood-shingled, shed-style roof is attractive, too, and may be the easiest to handle on a do-it-yourself basis.

DESIGN EACH compartment with double doors; you'll want their full access to the interior. Then use those doors as a decorative accent. If the siding is stained, resawn cedar or fir, painted flush doors make a good contrast.

For a house with painted siding, try raised panel doors stained a rich brown-black.

Be sure to tailor the unit's interior to handle intended contents. If it adjoins the family room, you may also want to use it for storage overflow from there. Sports equipment, camp coolers, folding furniture, craft supplies, baby furniture in temporary retirement, and special-occasion tableware or cookware are among the items that could go outdoors.

IF IT ISN'T convenient to build a storage wall adjoining the house corner, set it at the far end of the deck facing the house, or halfway along one side.

Such a storage wall also could be built as a divider between an outdoor living room and a children's play yard.

LOUDSPEAKER COMMENTS — Periodically articles describing how to build speaker systems appear in magazines. Many of these articles are based on the use of several inexpensive small 4 or 5 inch loudspeakers instead of one or two more costly high fidelity units. Supposedly, several speakers instead of one will provide equal sound quality for less investment.

An example of one of these articles was a speaker system requiring 16 small speakers costing about $2.00 each. What happens with a system of this type? It's true that 16 small speakers moving together push as much or more air in motion as does one large speaker but! There is a great deal more air put into motion at the tones that the small speakers perform their best. Since these small speakers do not perform very well at the low bass tones, these bass tones although much louder than if one speaker were performing alone, are still much weaker than the higher tones.

A small inexpensive speaker has high distortion and an uneven tonal response throughout its useful range. Connecting more of these speakers together does not reduce the distortion, it merely intensifies it. The overall sound will be even more non-linear with several units because of the beaming effects caused by placement of the units around each other. The only real advantages of multiple inexpensive speaker arrangements is a spatial effect caused by the broader area reproducing the sound, and an ability to handle more power.

A commercially available speaker system is made up of several small speakers with an electronic equalizer to make the small speakers sound full range. This type of system is designed by measuring the sound output throughout the range and installing equalizing circuitry to hold down the peaks to correspond with the level of the weak bass tones. Unfortunately, this type of tuning, as it might be called, is only accurate for the location and room for which it was tuned. The sound in any room is greatly influenced by the reflections and the absorbing characteristics of the room. The room may magnify some tones and absorb others. For smooth response, a tuning would be required for each room, and every time the speaker system is moved even within the same room. Our firm is prepared to tune a quality system in your home. We use expensive laboratory test equipment. However, the cost of the broad band filters and narrow band filters is fairly high.

WRITING FOR CHILDREN

The Goal: A Sharpening Of That Dimension Of Amazement

THE GREEN AND BURNING TREE by Eleanor Cameron; Atlantic-Little, Brown, 377 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Eleanor Cameron is one author of books for children who can never be accused of "writing down" for her young audience.

In her "The Green and Burning Tree: On the Writing and Enjoyment of Children's Books," she says: "I have never felt it necessary that a child be able afterwards to explain every twist and turn of a story he has read." The writer, she insists, should not feel restricted as to plotting or to vocabulary.

Yet with her distinguished Mushroom Planet Series and her other books such as the splendid "A Spell Is Cast," all of which rely heavily on fantasy and in none of which is there the slightest condescension, Mrs. Cameron has demonstrated a remarkable gift for establishing a rapport with the very young.

What she sets out to accomplish for her young reader, she says in one of the series of essays that make up "The Green and Burning Tree," is to make certain "that his excitement be set simmering."

"The Green and Burning Tree" is one of those books you begin somewhat hesitantly, almost reluctantly, and then, after some sticky early going, you suddenly find yourself in tune with Mrs. Cameron's wave length, discovering that this talented, vital woman has some most sagacious and stimulating things to say. So you read on and on, more and more eager to follow this most sensitive mind and most expressive voice.

Her chapter on "Of Style and the Stylist" is a work of beauty in itself, and by reading it you realize that Mrs. Cameron is a most extraordinary stylist in her own right, capable of weaving perfectly-crafted phrases into lengthy and at first glance seemingly complicated sentences that, when examined more closely, prove to be astonishingly simple with each individual thread easily separated and followed. She has, too, the knack for pure, exact language — the ability to select the one and only proper word and the courage to then use it unhesitatingly, whether it be of two or many syllables.

In short, her book can be read for example as well as for its discursive merits, which are considerable.

Mrs. Cameron takes strong exception to those who contend there is no such thing as children's books, and even stronger umbrage at those who admit its existence, but are contemptuous of it.

"Children's and adult literature are facets of a single art, and . . . the highest standards of one hold good for the other," she asserts.

Yet, she continues, there are definite qualities that set apart the successful writer for children from other authors: "Perhaps there can be no doubt that what the great writers for children have in common is that they have somehow retained into adulthood many of the mental qualities of children. . . "

She explores with skill and insight the parts played by time and place in the backgrounds and in the works of these authors. And one of her most captivating chapters is devoted to writer-artist-translator Wanda Gag.

It is not surprising that Mrs. Cameron accords the writing of fantasy special attention. It is a genre, she says, that succeeds and survives by dangling before young readers some "unsatisfied desire, the experience of which is in itself more desirable than any satisfaction." Could anyone put it more finely?

And she writes that fantasy that lives avoids the "escape" role even though it is set outside the world of reality, for it possesses a convincing reality of its own, and contains "the essential truths of the human condition."

Great fantasy, she continues, is rooted in such enduring qualities as toughness, wonder, humor, tenderness, wisdom and imagination "pressed down and running over" that nourish the child toward maturity.

Her book sparkles with such names as Walter de la Mare, C. S. Lewis, Rumer Godden, J. R. R. Tolkien, Lewis Carroll, Beatrix Potter, Hans Christian Andersen, Lucy Boston, Hugh Lofting and other fantasists and fairytale spinners she admires. In them she detects a general sharing of the experience of unhappiness in their own childhoods that seems "almost a prerequisite of creativity."

Some readers will suspect Mrs. Cameron of having idealized the reading interests and habits of children, based upon the exceptional coterie of small admirers with whom she is most familiar. But she would reply that this hunger for fine reading is present in all or most children, and she particularly laments the failure of education to give greater attention to children's literature in the preparation of its teachers so that they might be equipped to bring out this latent interest.

"The passion and tenderness and laughter, the imaginative powers and peneirations we find in the great writers . . . can help children in their battle against deprivation," she believes.

Her key point is: "You can write for children without writing down." And the goal she sets is: To sharpen and to intensify that "dimension of amazement" that lies within each child and sets him apart from all other creatures.

NEW READING FOR JUNIORS

As witnessed by their universal popularity as topics of conversation, weather and what determines it have always been of keen interest to people, old and young alike.

Weather-related space achievements have served to heighten that interest.

Roy A. Gallant wrote his "Exploring the Weather" for young readers more than a decade ago, and now has brought it up to date in a new edition for Doubleday to include science's new understanding of the subject.

It is a book that already claims the endorsements of such groups as the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Best Books for Children, National Science Foundation and the Library Journal.

Actually, it seems to us that Gallant has been guilty of lowering his stylistic sights in aiming at an audience of 14 and younger, as deplored by Eleanor Cameron. (See review on this page.) He has used the short, choppy sentences so many writers think appropriate for junior readers, and generally, except where scientific terms are irreplaceable, he has stuck to the simplest words. Children with a genuine interest in meteorology no doubt would be able to absorb and even appreciate a higher level of writing.

But the information that Gallant imparts about weather and related topics is unquestionably sound and understandable. And he has been extended a large assist by illustrator Lowell Hess, who is responsible for the drawings and diagrams, many of them in color, that support the text.

From the making of weather forecasting and recording devices to the anatomy of a tornado, the questions are all answered, making the $4.50 book an excellent choice for the child, especially about 11 or 12, whose intellectual curiosity is pointed in the direction of the sciences and of meteorology in particular.

Some other new books for the juniors:

As a man and as an artist, Charles Dickens is one of literature's most appealing figures of all-time. As a personality he still intrigues us today. And as an author, his work still charms and stimulates us. Lettice Cooper, London biographer, has written his story in "A Hand Upon the Time" (Pantheon, $3.95). Her chronicle of the eventful life of the Victorian great in a colorful era is acceptable if hardly exceptional writing. Supposedly it is for the 12 to 16-year-olds, but most likely it will strike its most responsive chord at about 12 and 13-year level.

"Catproof, Windproof, Rainproof" (Doubleday, $3.50) by Marcelle and Harold Bowman has as its heroine a sparrow in search of a safe place for her nest. Eventually, of course, Amanda Sparrow and her mate Sylvester succeed. It is a cheerful little tale for 7-year-olds and younger, accompanied by soft, subdued artwork enlivened with an occasional splash of color. It is also an appealing plea on behalf of birds.

"Tony and the Toll Collector" (Little, Brown, $3.95) by Eric Stevenson with illustrations by James Stevenson deals with a subject familiar to Marin youngsters, thanks to the proximity of the San Francisco Bay bridges. It tells of the friendship one lad develops with his favorite toll-taker, and of the day that gentleman was replaced by a basket into which you tossed your quarter. It has, however, a happy ending. The black and white ink drawings, too, have a happy, droll simplicity.

Robert Graves is the distinguished author of the small book "The Poor Boy Who Followed His Star." (Doubleday, $3.50). The poet-novelist-critic re-tells beautifully and sensitively a 17th Century fantasy by the Sufi sage Halquavi recorded earlier by Idries Shah in his "Tales of the Dervishes." There is adventure as well as magic, and a happy ending for one poor lad who sets out to better himself. Illustrations in the book, for children up to 10, are by Alice Meyer-Wallace.

"The Curse of the Dragon's Gold" (Doubleday, $4.50) is an unusually rich collection of legendary tales from Europe, put together by Jacynth Hope-Simpson, the English storyteller. She gives us the epic heroes of several lands, doing battle with monsters, trying to please their fair ladies, etc. It is a book populated by werewolves, knights, giants, kings and dragons, and Mrs. Hope-Simpson's retelling of these age-old tales is splendid.

"The Fabulous Earthworm Deal" (Viking $4.50) by Arthur D. Stapp is an entertaining book for boys about a couple of lads who plunge into a most unusual business venture and with ingenuity and industry overcome some unexpected obstacles. The story is told with humor and in a manner which creates in the reader a sense of sharing the experiences of J. T. and Marsh. In other words a true slice from young life.

Things You Can Do With A Window Blind

What can you do with a window blind?

Mount it on a window, of course, to help control view, light and air, and to complement window and room decor.

BUT WITH A little imagination, you can do much more. Levolor Lorentzen manufactures slat blinds and it comes up with these ideas for starters:

Use blinds on porches or patios, instead of awnings. Such areas also may be shielded by decorative and practical trellis or lattice panels. Interlacing or parallel strips of slats can be fastened into removable or fixed framework. Degree of air, light, sun and privacy is easily controlled by the ratio of open spacing to the area covered by the slat itself.

Slats may be interlaced with the convex side up to form paths, patios and decks; particularly useful in sandy or muddy areas. When placed under lawn furniture such a mat eliminates the need to move furniture for grass cutting.

A sunhouse, playhouse, seedhouse, bathhouse can be fashioned by enclosing a framework with crossed, parallel or woven slats, or with complete blinds.

Blinds, or slats, may be used for fencing and screening, for movable wind and sun screens.

Indoors, blinds can be used as room dividers. They'll partition off any size or shape area. With slats closed, they give complete privacy; open they allow passage of light and air. The blinds are easily pulled to allow use of the entire room area when desired.

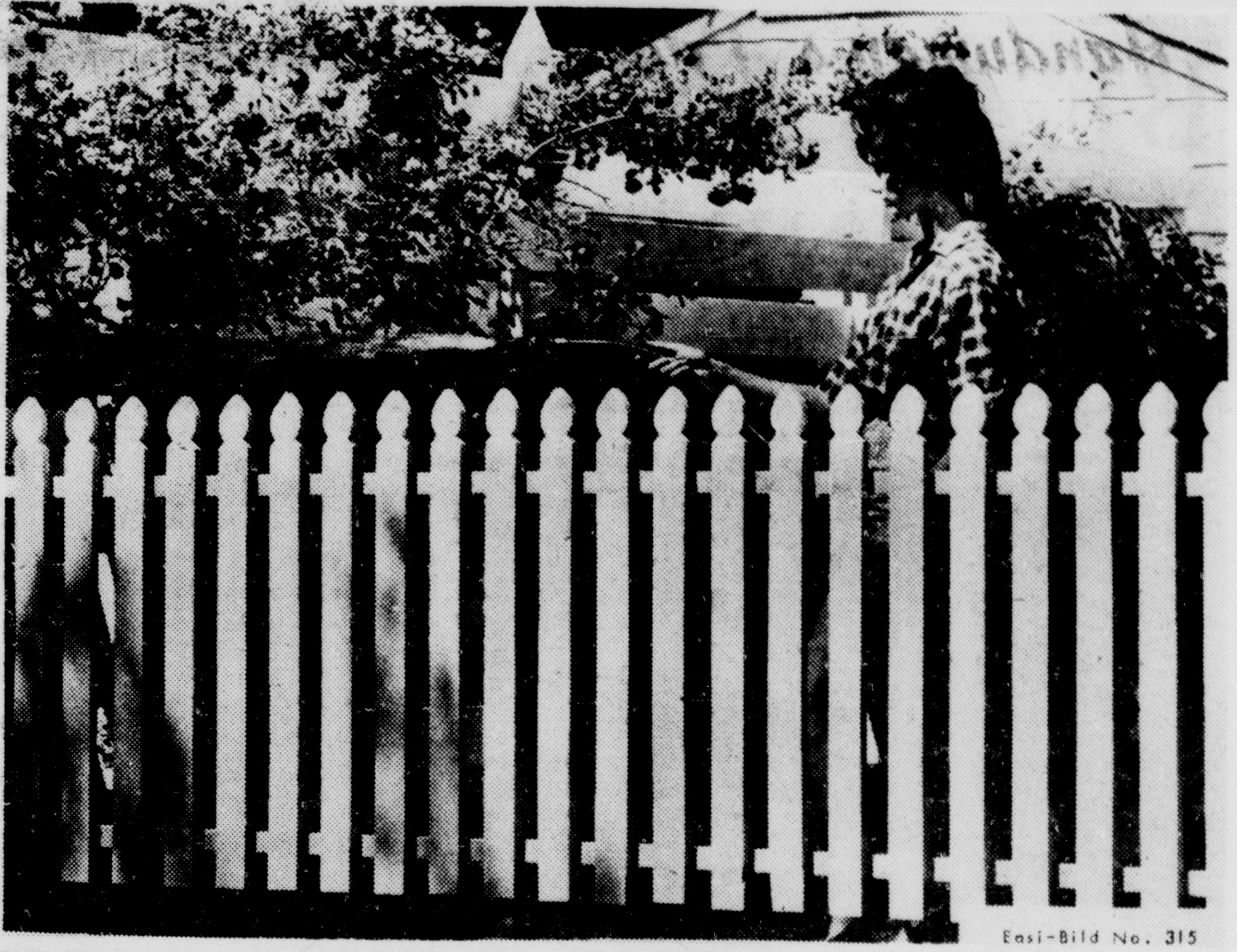
Blinds are versatile as doors for closets and cabinets, and are particularly good where swinging doors would create a space problem.

Accessories such as baskets, hampers and lampshades may be made by weaving slats in either a close or open weave.

Slats, in the normal concave and convex shape, or formed into other shapes, can be fastened to a grid to form a suspended ceiling.

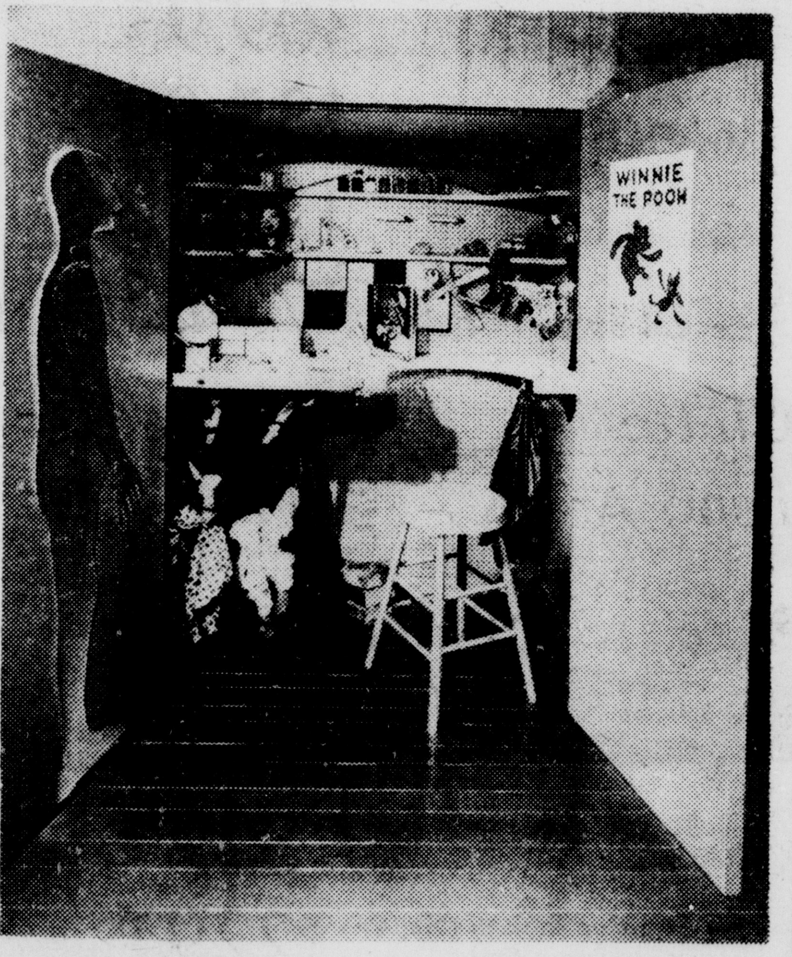
THE SLAT material, Levolor says, is very easy to work because it is only one-hundredth of an inch thick and very flexible. It can be creased, folded over to provide a double thickness; folded around a rod, wire, or even wooden posts. It can be drilled, or nailed; punched with a paper hole punch; stapled with a desk stapler. It can even be sewn, although a heavy duty machine is required.

The slats can be interlaced or woven upon themselves, and additional decorative designs can be achieved by interlacing strips of fabric, yarn, cord and threads.



Easi-Bild No. 315

THE PICKET FENCE isn't as effective as the chain link fence in keeping unwelcome trespassers from your yard. But they can be a lot more decorative; they'll lend a touch of colonial charm to a home. And generally, they'll do a job of keeping all but the most persistent dogs and children off the premises. For Easi-Bild's Colonial Fence and Gate Pattern No. 315, send 75 cents to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and include your zip code number to expedite the mailing. The pattern includes full-size templates for cutting six different styles of colonial fence pickets, a list of the stock materials required, directions for building the fence in sections and then erecting, and instructions for the construction and hanging of a matching gate. While the pattern suggests a fence 38 inches high, it can be raised or lowered to meet individual needs and tastes.



CLOSETS ARE FOR storage. But there is no reason why you cannot slant the one in the room of a son or daughter toward that youngster's hobby. You can line the walls with perforated hardboard, painted a bright color, and then use it to install bracket-supported shelves. And you can build a work counter for the hobbyist from lumber one to two inches thick with a semi-circular indentation so that he or she can get close to the work at hand while seated on a padded stool. Top the counter with something like Marlite's tempered Presdwood, fastened down with an adhesive. A small vise or similar equipment can be mounted on the counter. While planning the hobby closet, consider such factors as adequate lighting and electrical outlets. A fan set up into the closet ceiling will provide air circulation. And locks on the doors will serve to keep unwanted younger brothers and sisters out of the sacred portals.

Pergola Solves A Problem Of Pinpointing The Entry

Designing the exterior entrance to a home is a challenging job made the more interesting — and difficult — by our emphasis on auto travel.

Where once an attractive footpath winding through the front yard was both appropriate and sufficient, the arrival of guests by car has made that arrangement all but obsolete.

A practical approach adopted by many families combines the entry walk with off-street parking for guests. Usually the parking area is at one side of the house with the walk running through or alongside the car area, then in a line parallel to the house.

THE PLAN HAS merit because it recognizes that foot traffic begins where auto traffic ends and because it doesn't demand a traditional front yard landscaping.

Perhaps the plan's only problems are those of pinpointing the entry walk for those who don't arrive by car and of retaining its role as an entrance to the home.

Solutions are possible, however. For one family, it was to build a small pergola at the corner where the walk turns from the driveway toward the house. The whimsical pergola is a just-right accent for the entry area.

ITS CONSTRUCTION was post-and-beam, using, for effect, larger wood members than were necessary structurally. Yet the appearance is light and small-scale.

Barely eight feet square, not counting roof projections, the pitched-roof pergola has six four-by-six-inch posts set in two rows of three posts each.

The rows are four feet apart and the three posts per row are spaced two feet apart.

CONNECTING PAIRS of posts across the four-foot width are two-by-sixes, nailed in pairs that clasp the posts. Resting on the crossbeams and clasping rows of posts lengthwise are beams made of a two-by-eight and a two-by-six. The two-by-eight is nailed to the inside of the rows of posts, and the two-by-six to the outside.

For a ridgebeam, a pair of two-by-eights was used. Appearing suspended in thin air, the two-by-eights actually are nailed on either side of and supported by two-foot-long pieces of four-by-six which, in turn, are nailed between the three pairs of crossbeams.

The pergola is roofed with one-by-twos on edge. Laid like closely spaced rafters, with ends projecting to form "eaves," the one-by-twos cast interesting shadow patterns that change through the day.

THE PERGOLA straddles one end of a screen that outlines the parking area and swings around at the street side to enclose the front yard. Plantings of nandina, rhododendron and viburnum davidii are grouped along the screen and under the pergola.

Compatible shrubs are used as foundation plantings in the border between house wall and front walk, while on the pergola's side, lawn joins paved walk in a clean line.

Rather than painting the pergola, the Douglas fir posts and beams were finished with bleaching oil.

On The Stereo Scene With Sunier

By JOHN SUNIER

RCA's budget-priced Victrola label has had so many fine releases lately I'm forced to credit them in the following checklist fashion:

"THE NEW MUSIC, VOLUME 2" Rome Symphony/Maderna — Victrola VICS-1312; "THE NEW MUSIC, VOLUME 3" Rome Symphony/Maderna—Victrola VICS-1313:

This three-disc series affords an excellent opportunity to hear an over-view of what is happening in really contemporary music, with educational yet readable liner notes and good performances and stereo.

Volume 1 contained the amazing "Threnody for the Victims of Hiroshima" by Penderecki.

Bruno Maderna, who conducts the orchestra, features his own "Concerto for Oboe and Chamber Orchestra" on the second volume, a pontillistic work with tinkly sounds; also flute compositions by Boulez and Haubenstock-Ramati.

Volume 3 is even heavier on flute — works by Nono, Fukushima, Berio and Lehmann, all featuring the instrument in a variety of ways.

"DANCE MUSIC OF THE RENAISSANCE" — Various German artists — Victrola VICS-1328:

Simply adorable light music by composers of this period you probably never heard of and probably won't hear of again; recorders, crumhorns, lute and viols.

SCHUBERT: "Divertissement a la hongroise"; "Variations on an Original Theme" — Jorg Demus and Paul Badura-Skoda, 1845 pianoforte — Victrola VICS-1329:

There are very few recordings made on early pianos, and the sound is something special; so don't miss these two rare Schubertian gems in proficient performances by two familiar names to LPs.

TAKEMITSU: "Coral Island" for soprano and orchestra; "Water Music"; "Vocalism Ai" — Yomiuri Nippon Orchestra/Wakasugi (on Island) — (Magnetic Tape realization of other two selections) — Victrola VICS-1334:

Fascinating new works by an outstanding young Japanese composer. The orchestral work is a sort of 1960s "La Mer"; and the "Vocalism," whose constantly-repeated Japanese word means "love," is both hypnotic and occasionally humorous. A wow in stereo.

CASTELNUOVO-TEDOSO: "Quintet for Guitar and String Quartet"; BONDON: "Concerto de Mars for Guitar and Orchestra" — (1) Manuel Lopez Ramos, guitar/The Parrenin Quartet, (2) Konrad Rogossnig, guitar/Orchestre des Concerts Lamoureux/Jacques Bondon — Victrola VICS-1367:

First stereo version of the rather introspective chamber work by Castelnuovo-Tedesco, composer of the quite popular "Guitar Concerto in D." The Bondon work, conducted by the composer, is a brash modern work that sits comfortably on the ear nevertheless.

JOHN PFEIFFER: "Electronomusic": Nine Images — Victrola VICS-1371:

Pfeiffer is an "artist and repertory" man for RCA. He has some rather brash words about the orginality of what he is doing here which I cannot accept, but the selections are mostly short, varied and generally interesting electronic music. This would be good for someone just getting into the idiom.

ELGAR: "Cockaigne Overture"; "Chanson de Matin" (and) "Chanson de Nuit"; "Pomp and Circumstance Marches Nos. 1 and 4"; "Serenade for Strings in E Minor" — The Royal Philharmonic/George Weldon — Victrola VICS-1377.

Seems like Elgar performed by other than an English orchestra would be unthinkable. These have all been well done before, but these versions sing and strut in best Elgar fashion without being stuffy about it, and the price is great (low, that [illegible]

Marin Poets' Corner

ANTICIPATION

The vacation trip is planned—the road map out,
The camping gear is strewn about.
The smell of musty sleeping bags and a little left-
over sand
Pre-supposes summer days on hand.
We hear in memory's ear children's laughter and
the hum of bees
And feel the coolness under leafy trees.
And as we watch the hot sun sink behind
unfamiliar hills
We eagerly await tomorrow's thrills;
Then in gentleness, embrace the softness of the
lazy moon
Who doesn't want to give way to dawn so soon.
Why is it the anticipation is more than we can bear and it would seem Today's reality is not half the delight of tomorrow's young dream?

Consider The Ever-Lovely Evergreens

Garden Pages

Evergreen trees are a year-around source of delight, but it is in the summer that their abilities to shade and to screen are most appreciated by Marinites.

Home owners here can make their selections from evergreens that range from huge, sprawling trees that shadow large expanses to smaller or more uniquely shaped trees that supply more privacy or ornamentation than shade.

One of the favorites in Marin is the Bailey Acacia — always providing you are not one of those allergic to its pungent pollen. It offers eye-appeal in its blue-gray foliage and its cheery yellow blooms that appear early when color is most gratifying. As a medium grower, sometimes attaining a height of 30 feet, more often 20, and a spread of from 15 to 20 feet, it is a serviceable shade tree.

THERE ARE other acacias that do well in Marin, but they are better suited to screening purposes than to shading.

The sweetshade or Hymenosperum flavum is an evergreen less often seen in Marin, but one that thrives here when given a chance. Its distinctions include yellow blooms in early summer that give off an orange-blossom fragrance.

It is a slow to moderate grower that assumes a slender, graceful habit that is not too desirable in a shade tree, but which makes for an interesting design against a wall.

ANY DISCUSSION of evergreens and Marin preferences inevitably must include mention of the magnolias, some of which, however, fall in the deciduous category.

The Southern Magnolia is the patriarch of a family that features large white and wonderfully fragrant flowers. Two newer evergreen introductions are the Samuel Sommer and Majestic Beauty, globe-like in shape and sporting collosal blooms up to 14 inches across.

Magnolias, generally, are slow growers, so can be used as specimen plantings without overpowering the remainder of a landscape.

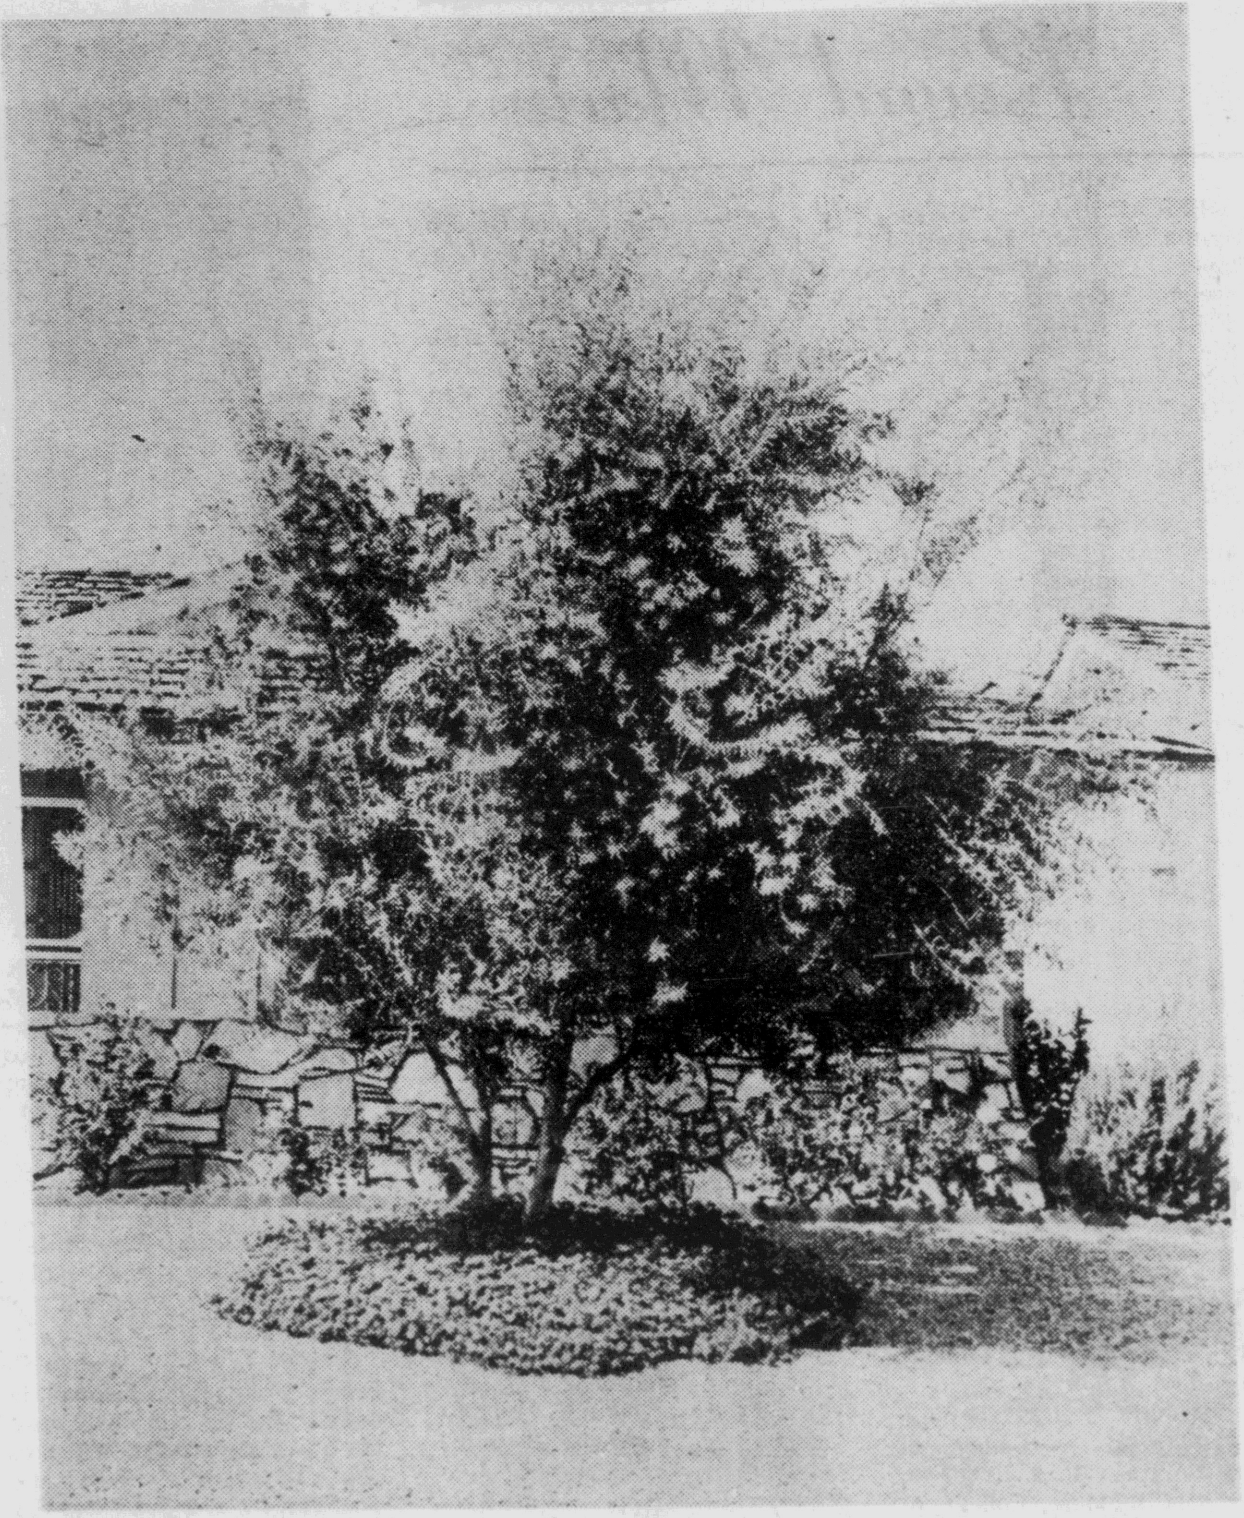
EVERGREEN PEAR is a smaller-growing evergreen tree with deep green, glistening foliage, a pendulous look, and attractive white flowers that appear early. Its versatility includes an adaptability to espaliering.

For parkway areas, some choose the Carolina Cherry, although it takes its time about reaching its full height and spread.

Some other evergreens seen frequently in Marin County include the California Pepper, the Podocarpus or Fern Pine (with a lacy foliage that gives off little shade but a great deal of decoration), and the olives.

THEN THERE is the magnificent redwood, king of the evergreens, as well as all the other lesser but still attractive conifers.

Whether you have a spacious estate that will accommodate the redwood or simply a deck or patio sufficient in size only for a small tree in a tub, the ever-lovely evergreens include in their diversified ranks something that will fit your special needs.



THE EUROPEAN OLIVE is a popular evergreen tree in Marin County, and deservedly so. It has a California history that reaches back into the days of the early Missions. It has, too, finely-cut gray-green foliage and a semi-pendulous growth habit that makes it a graceful addition to any landscape. (Photo courtesy of the California Association of Nurserymen)

The Mahonia Not Restricted To Oregonians

They call it "the Oregon Grape," but nurserymen advise Marin gardeners they should not be misled by that name.

This popular shrub, also known as the Mahonia, with its evergreen foliage, fall color and berries, yellow blooms that arrive in late winter, and good growth habits, thrives in almost all California climes including our own.

In Marin gardens, it will take full sun, but will do equally well in partial shade.

There is a dwarf as well as the standard variety.

HELP WITH THE LAWN

Rand-McNally is the publisher of a new book for home owners, "A Perfect Lawn the Easy Way."

Written by Paul Voykin, grounds superintendent at the Briarwood Country Club in Deerfield, Ill., it sells for $1.95 paperback, $3.95 clothbound.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- ✓Water your tomato plants no more than is necessary, but when you do irrigate, make certain the moisture penetrates at least a foot or more into the ground.
- ✓Pluck faded blooms from your favorite plants regularly. This serves the two-fold purpose of encouraging additional flowering and conserving the strength of the plant.
- ✓Now is the time to choose new hibiscus plants, which are in bloom in nurseries, and to plant them in sunny, protected spots. There is a wide range of colors — white, pink, scarlet, orange and apricot — and both single and double flower forms from which to make your selections.
- ✓You can plant all kinds of container-grown trees and shrubs at this time.
- ✓And you can set out zinnias, salvia or scarlet sage, marigolds, ageratum and other annuals for quick summer color.
- ✓Water fuchsias and camellias regularly and frequently, remembering they prefer an overhead drenching with a spray.

A FLOWER GARDEN isn't always the best solution for the use of that backyard space—not if you have active youngsters in the family. The LeRoy W. Rices of Kentfield have three such children. And so they asked Sidney M. Lewin, landscape architect, to design a backyard playground for their home. When this photograph was taken, the Rice children were in the process of converting the area temporarily into a site for a neighborhood carnival. And other times, it is the scene of basketball, tetherball, volleyball and badminton games. There is also a chinning bar and a shuffleboard. And amazingly enough, the adults use the area almost as often as the children.

New Instant Landscaping Has Its Uses

Instant landscaping is one of our newest and fastest growing developments.

"Artificial shrubbery, impervious to weather, disease and the neighbor's dog, is now being manufactured. . ."

If your reaction is an immediate "ugh" stop and think a bit. No one, not even the manufacturer, wants to replace nature but, as the ladies have proved with their wigs and what-not, nature often can be helped along.

SI SPIEGEL, head of the Tree and Wreath Division of American Technical Industries, says his company is turning out polyvinylchloride versions of three popular varieties — Muhgo pine, white sheared pine and Costa blue spruce — in a variety of sizes. These resemble the realistic looking evergreens now familiar as indoor Christmas trees.

The branches consist of twisted-wire stems and hard, needle-shaped polyvinylchloride bristles. The center poles are of wire or weather-proofed Ponderosa pine.

Larger sizes have cast-iron stakes for outdoor "planting;" the smaller models have wire stands for use indoors or out.

SPIEGEL SAYS the company has in mind, chiefly, highway beautification programs, apartment buildings and housing developments, shopping centers, public recreation areas, schools, hospitals, motels, suburban banks and gasoline service stations, but he suggests a variety of possible uses around the private home:

As fill-in shrubbery in areas where natural shrubs won't grow because of too much sun or wind, too little or too much water; too little light, or too much traffic, human or canine.

Around swimming pools and sundecks where natural plantings often are difficult to maintain and create litter in the pool itself. Particularly good for above-ground pools.

As temporary decor for outdoor weddings, receptions, parties.

Around a barbecue area. The artificial shrubs won't be damaged by heat or smoke, and are flameproof.

As instant screening of the more barren areas on new properties, until natural plantings can be grown.

For landscaping an apartment terrace, or for use in indoor planters.

Even The Old Reliables Among House Plants Need Some Care

Even the old reliables among our house plants still sometimes require a little attention, or at least better treatment.

Is your philodendron beginning to look tired and are the leaves getting smaller and smaller?

The answer is not just food. It needs that, too, but the trouble is you are probably trying to grow it hanging down — and it really wants to grow up. The answer is to grow it upright on a simple trellis you can remove when you want it to hang down for special occasions or effects.

ARE YOUR geraniums getting small-leaved and scrawny? Don't feed or water them very much but give them all the sun you can and as cool a location as you can find. But, make sure it is safe from frost in winter.

Your cacti seem to grow well but never flower as they are supposed to? Here the answer is they are probably getting no rest.

With food, water and heat they will keep growing. But to throw them into bloom, you should have rested them for a couple of months during the short days. You gradually reduce the watering, stop feeding and give them a cool temperature. After such a rest most will burst into bloom when watering is commenced. Try it next fall.

NEARLY EVERYONE likes the richly scented gardenia but it frequently does not do well. The answer — give it 65 degrees during the day (10 less at night) and lots of moisture in the air. If you can't afford humidifiers, at least put trays with pebbles and water all around.

African violets not blooming? Just give them more, or less, light and when you find the right amount it will throw them into bloom — continuously for years, sometimes.

AN OUTDOOR STORAGE UNIT attached to the house serves conveniently both the patio deck and the adjoining family room. The double doors, which have been painted to add a touch of color, give full access to the contents. The cedar-sided unit shown here matches the house. It acts, too, as a privacy screen between the deck and a neighboring home.

A Storage Unit Serving House And Deck

Patio Closet Will Prevent Clutter In Both Indoor And Outdoor Living Areas

Next to roof, walls and occupants, good storage units are a homes most essential ingredient.

Put the right kind of storage in the right place, and the home will function smoothly. Ignore storage, and life becomes all clutter and confusion.

That applies as much to outdoor living areas as to the interior.

Where, for example, will you stow patio furniture during winter months? What about surplus fuchsia baskets? Or barbecue equipment, bench cushions, snack tables and accessories?

DON'T COUNT on either the garage or basement because they're full already. Besides, they're not easily accessible.

Obviously, what is needed is an outdoor closet built right at the deck's edge. You'll want regular-height doors, so that requires a unit about seven feet tall—all to the good because it can then serve as a privacy wall, too.

If the deck extends to one corner of the house, it's smart to build the storage unit starting at the corner. That way, it looks like a continuation of the house wall, with the siding carried on into the unit's exterior.

ANY SIDING pattern can be repeated — bevel, flush-joint boards, channel or board-and-batten. A stain finish or paint is easy to match, too.

If it makes sense to continue the house roof over the storage wall, do so. But that's less than all-important. A flat roof looks fine, particularly if a trellis overhang is added.

A wood-shingled, shed-style roof is attractive, too, and may be the easiest to handle on a do-it-yourself basis.

DESIGN EACH compartment with double doors; you'll want their full access to the interior. Then use those doors as a decorative accent. If the siding is stained, resawn cedar or fir, painted flush doors make a good contrast.

For a house with painted siding, try raised panel doors stained a rich brown-black.

Be sure to tailor the unit's interior to handle intended contents. If it adjoins the family room, you may also want to use it for storage overflow from there. Sports equipment, camp coolers, folding furniture, craft supplies, baby furniture in temporary retirement, and special-occasion tableware or cookware are among the items that could go outdoors.

IF IT ISN'T convenient to build a storage wall adjoining the house corner, set it at the far end of the deck facing the house, or halfway along one side.

Such a storage wall also could be built as a divider between an outdoor living room and a children's play yard.

Things You Can Do With A Window Blind

What can you do with a window blind?

Mount it on a window, of course, to help control view, light and air, and to complement window and room decor.

BUT WITH A little imagination, you can do much more. Levolor Lorentzen manufactures slat blinds and it comes up with these ideas for starters:

Use blinds on porches or patios, instead of awnings. Such areas also may be shielded by decorative and practical trellis or lattice panels. Interlacing or parallel strips of slats can be fastened into removable or fixed framework. Degree of air, light, sun and privacy is easily controlled by the ratio of open spacing to the area covered by the slat itself.

Slats may be interlaced with the convex side up to form paths, patios and decks; particularly useful in sandy or muddy areas. When placed under lawn furniture such a mat eliminates the need to move furniture for grass cutting.

A sunhouse, playhouse, seedhouse, bathhouse can be fashioned by enclosing a framework with crossed, parallel or woven slats, or with complete blinds.

Blinds, or slats, may be used for fencing and screening, for movable wind and sun screens.

Indoors, blinds can be used as room dividers. They'll partition off any size or shape area. With slats closed, they give complete privacy; open they allow passage of light and air. The blinds are easily pulled to allow use of the entire room area when desired.

Blinds are versatile as doors for closets and cabinets, and are particularly good where swinging doors would create a space problem.

Accessories such as baskets, hampers and lampshades may be made by weaving slats in either a close or open weave.

Slats, in the normal concave and convex shape, or formed into other shapes, can be fastened to a grid to form a suspended ceiling.

THE SLAT material, Levolor says, is very easy to work because it is only one-hundredth of an inch thick and very flexible. It can be creased, folded over to provide a double thickness; folded around a rod, wire, or even wooden posts. It can be drilled, or nailed; punched with a paper hole punch; stapled with a desk stapler. It can even be sewn, although a heavy duty machine is required.

The slats can be interlaced or woven upon themselves, and additional decorative designs can be achieved by interlacing strips of fabric, yarn, cord and threads.

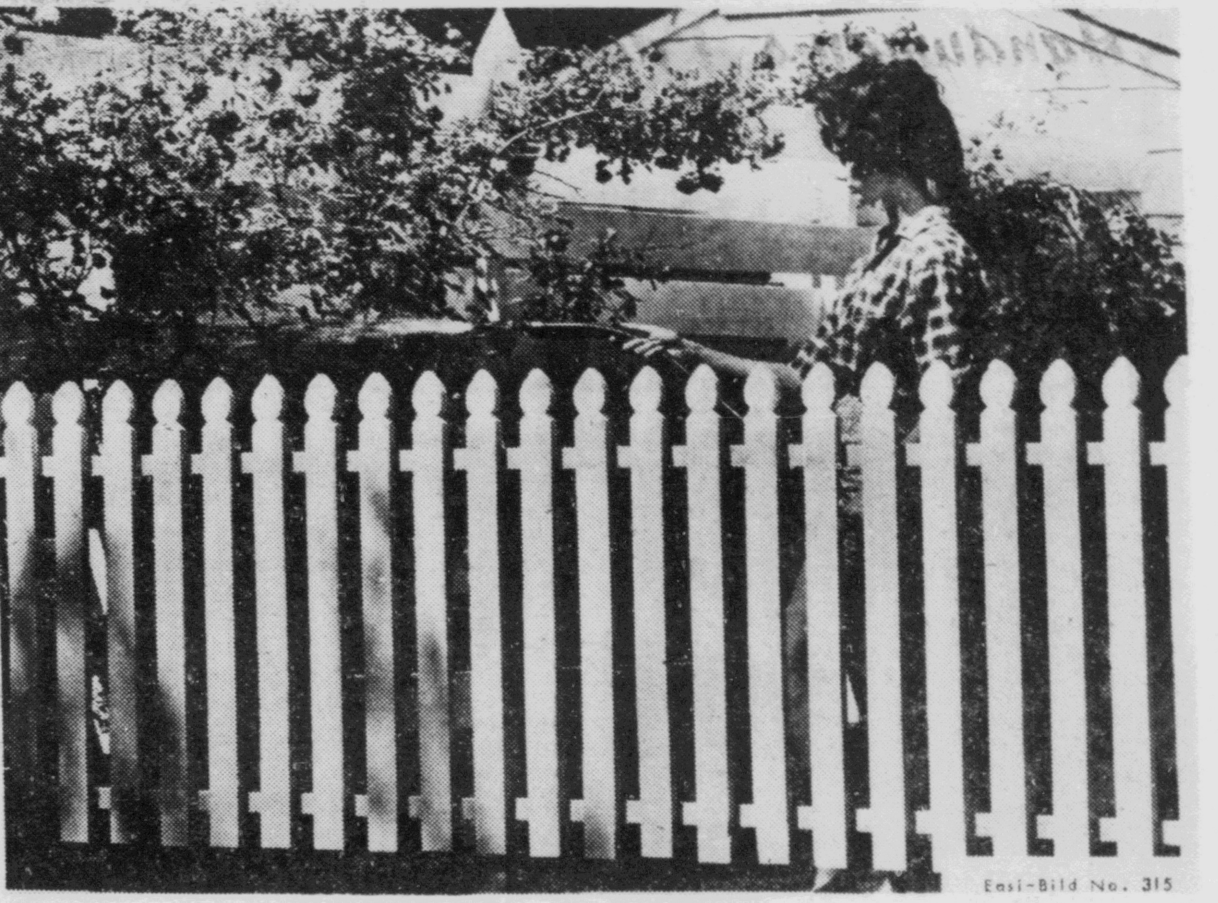
CLOSETS ARE FOR storage. But there is no reason why you cannot slant the one in the room of a son or daughter toward that youngster's hobby. You can line the walls with perforated hardboard, painted a bright color, and then use it to install bracket-supported shelves. And you can build a work counter for the hobbyist from lumber one to two inches thick with a semi-circular indentation so that he or she can get close to the work at hand while seated on a padded stool. Top the counter with something like Marlite's tempered Presdwood, fastened down with an adhesive. A small vise or similar equipment can be mounted on the counter. While planning the hobby closet, consider such factors as adequate lighting and electrical outlets. A fan set up into the closet ceiling will provide air circulation. And locks on the doors will serve to keep unwanted younger brothers and sisters out of the sacred portals.



Easi-Bild No. 315

THE PICKET FENCE isn't as effective as the chain link fence in keeping unwelcome trespassers from your yard. But they can be a lot more decorative; they'll lend a touch of colonial charm to a home. And generally, they'll do a job of keeping all but the most persistent dogs and children off the premises. For Easi-Bild's Colonial Fence and Gate Pattern No. 315, send 75 cents to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and include your zip code number to expedite the mailing. The pattern includes full-size templates for cutting six different styles of colonial fence pickets, a list of the stock materials required, directions for building the fence in sections and then erecting, and instructions for the construction and hanging of a matching gate. While the pattern suggests a fence 38 inches high, it can be raised or lowered to meet individual needs and tastes.

Pergola Solves A Problem Of Pinpointing The Entry

Designing the exterior entrance to a home is a challenging job made the more interesting — and difficult — by our emphasis on auto travel.

Where once an attractive footpath winding through the front yard was both appropriate and sufficient, the arrival of guests by car has made that arrangement all but obsolete.

A practical approach adopted by many families combines the entry walk with off-street parking for guests. Usually the parking area is at one side of the house with the walk running through or alongside the car area, then in a line parallel to the house.

THE PLAN HAS merit because it recognizes that foot traffic begins where auto traffic ends and because it doesn't demand a traditional front yard landscaping.

Perhaps the plan's only problems are those of pinpointing the entry walk for those who don't arrive by car and of retaining its role as an entrance to the home.

Solutions are possible, however. For one family, it was to build a small pergola at the corner where the walk turns from the driveway toward the house. The whimsical pergola is a just-right accent for the entry area.

ITS CONSTRUCTION was post-and-beam, using, for effect, larger wood members than were necessary structurally. Yet the appearance is light and small-scale.

Barely eight feet square, not counting roof projections, the pitched-roof pergola has six four-by-six-inch posts set in two rows of three posts each.

The rows are four feet apart and the three posts per row are spaced two feet apart.

CONNECTING PAIRS of posts across the four-foot width are two-by-sixes, nailed in pairs that clasp the posts. Resting on the crossbeams and clasping rows of posts lengthwise are beams made of a two-by-eight and a two-by-six. The two-by-eight is nailed to the inside of the rows of posts, and the two-by-six to the outside.

For a ridgebeam, a pair of two-by-eights was used. Appearing suspended in thin air, the two-by-eights actually are nailed on either side of and supported by two-foot-long pieces of four-by-six which, in turn, are nailed between the three pairs of crossbeams.

The pergola is roofed with one-by-twos on edge. Laid like closely spaced rafters, with ends projecting to form "eaves," the one-by-twos cast interesting shadow patterns that change through the day.

THE PERGOLA straddles one end of a screen that outlines the parking area and swings around at the street side to enclose the front yard. Plantings of nandina, rhododendron and viburnum davidii are grouped along the screen and under the pergola.

Compatible shrubs are used as foundation plantings in the border between house wall and front walk, while on the pergola's side, lawn joins paved walk in a clean line.

Rather than painting the pergola, the Douglas fir posts and beams were finished with bleaching oil.

Mexican-Americans Demand Better TV-Movie Image

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Now it's the Mexican-Americans who want to improve their movie image.

Following the lead of Negro groups, two organizations claiming to represent the Mexican-American community have petitioned the film and television industries for a better portrayal of their people.

First it was the Mexican-American Political Association, an activist group, which issued a blast about stereotype Mexicans in films.

Next came the culture-oriented Latin American Performing Arts Foundation, headed by Al Ortega, adviser to Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty.

"We want to work with the industries to help create a better image of the Mexican-American in films and also to bring more participation of our people in films," said Ortega.

Ortega said his people complained that Mexicans are most often portrayed as bandits.

Ortega said his group has been having meetings with industry leaders and they have been receptive.

Mexican-Americans Demand Better TV-Movie Image

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Now it's the Mexican-Americans who want to improve their movie image.

Following the lead of Negro groups, two organizations claiming to represent the Mexican-American community have petitioned the film and television industries for a better portrayal of their people.

First it was the Mexican-American Political Association, an activist group, which issued a blast about stereotype Mexicans in films.

Next came the culture-oriented Latin American Performing Arts Foundation, headed by Al Ortega, adviser to Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty.

"We want to work with the industries to help create a better image of the Mexican-American in films and also to bring more participation of our people in films," said Ortega.

Ortega said his people complained that Mexicans are most often portrayed as bandits.

Ortega said his group has been having meetings with industry leaders and they have been receptive.

Mexican-Americans Demand Better TV-Movie Image

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Now it's the Mexican-Americans who want to improve their movie image.

Following the lead of Negro groups, two organizations claiming to represent the Mexican-American community have petitioned the film and television industries for a better portrayal of their people.

First it was the Mexican-American Political Association, an activist group, which issued a blast about stereotype Mexicans in films.

Next came the culture-oriented Latin American Performing Arts Foundation, headed by Al Ortega, adviser to Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty.

"We want to work with the industries to help create a better image of the Mexican-American in films and also to bring more participation of our people in films," said Ortega.

Ortega said his people complained that Mexicans are most often portrayed as bandits.

Ortega said his group has been having meetings with industry leaders and they have been receptive.
